WOULD END STRIKE

PRESIDENT ANXIOUS TO DO SOMETHING IN MINE WAR.

A CONFERENCE WITH HANNA

MINERS HANG AN EFFIGY OF J. P. MORGAN.

DISLIKE THE FINANCIER

GENERAL SITUATION IN THE COAL FIELDS.

Washington, June 7.—The president today had a long conference at the white house with Senator Hanna on the coal strike. The president conveyed to Mr. Hanna the idea that he would like very much to do something toward settling the strike. Nothing definite, however, was decided upon.

The president also sent for Carroll D. Wright, the commissioner of labor, to get his views on the situation, and also as to what might properly be done by the government looking to a settlement of the controversy.

It is probable that other conferences will be held and the president kept advised of the situation. He will be in readiness at any time to extend aid if it is found that he can be of service in settling the differences that exist between the operaters and the miners.

HUNG MORGAN IN EFFIGY.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 7.—The hanging in effigy of J. Pierpont Morgan in one of the streets of South Wilkesbarre by a crowd of men and boys was the only incident to mar the stillness of the Wyoming valley this morning. After the effigy had been hung the crowd cheered and pelted the object with stones until the police came along and dispersed the several hundred persons that made up the throng.

All the mining towns surrounding the city are very quiet. The news from Washington that President Roosevelt could not find his way clear to take a hand in bringing about peace between the miners and operators was received here with genuine disappointment. It had been strongly hoped that the president would be able to find some means of opening up a way to peace.

Today marks the end of the fourth week of the total suspension of coal mining and the miners and their employers are farther apart than ever.

The Susquehanna Coal Co. put non-union firemen to work in its No. 5 colliery at Nanticoke today for the purpose of restoring the water supply to a portion of the borough. The company furnishes the power for the pumping of water in the reservoir and the action of the miners' union in calling out all the men at the colliery caused the company to shut down the whole plant. The borough council was to have brought injunction proceedings today, but they are stayed for the present.

The four coal and iron policemen who are charged with the shooting of Charles W. McCann, the thirteen-year-old boy at the Stanton colliery Thursday night, ware given a preliminary hearing today, and were committed to jail for a further hearing at such time as the result of the boy's injuries shall be definitely known. The only witness examined was a physician who attended the lad. The boy's condition grew worse last night and it is feared he cannot recover. The bullet has not yet been located.

CREWS WOULD NOT WORK.

Hazleton, Pa., June 7.—The Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill railroad crews having declined to take charge of trains carrying deputies from one colliery to the other, Lehigh Valley crews have been substituted. Some of the latter also object to this work.

The stationing of a large force of deputies at two of the Lehigh Valley collieries is regarded by the mine workers as the forerunner of an early attempt at resumption of mining with non-union forces.

BURN BOSSES IN EFFIGY.

Shamokin, Pa., June 7.—A mob of strikers late last night surrounded the homes of Sub-Bosses Homer, Murphy, Shreffler and two Polish men and built bonfires, on which effigies representing the bosses were burned. The demonstration against the homes of Murphy and the Polish men grew so vigorous that the non-union men promised not to go to work today. The firemen at Luke Fidler and Cammeron collieries were stoned today.

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE.

Huntington, W. Va., June 7.—Advices from various points along the Norfolk and Western railroad this morning are to the effect that almost every coal mine along that line is tied up, the miners generally obeying the strike order. Something like 10,000 men are out in that field.

Operators posted notices at Elkhorn this morning that all the strikers living in the company's houses must vacate property at once. Trouble is feared.

DEMONSTRATION A FIZZLE.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 7.—This was to have been the central point of the strike demonstration today, but the agitators found an audience of less than fifty persons at the place of meeting and declined to deliver addresses.

MINE BOSS KILLED.

Huntington, W. Va., June 7.—A skirmish between mine officials and strikers is reported at Keystone. The mine boss was killed. No names or particulars are available.

NO LIGHT ON THE JUDGESHIP

FORT WAYNE MEN GET LITTLE SATISFACTION.

Senator Beveridge Proves Difficult to Interest—Baker's Retirement Uncertain.

Washington, June 7.—From the most trustworthy information that can be obtained it now seems probable that the question of who will succeed Judge John H. Baker on the district bench will not be determined for some time. In fact, if Judge Baker himself has indicated a time when he may see fit to retire, that fact has not been stated. The president has given no intimation of his purpose, and has thus far not asked for final recommendations. It is not true that Senator Fairbanks has asked that the matter be held up, but for other reasons it may be stated that nothing definite has been determined.

W. J. Vesey, Elmer Leonard and William P. Breen, of Fort Wayne, who are here in behalf of John Morris, jr., for district judge, have been unable to smooth Senator Beveridge or to get any satisfaction from the president. They have decided that Senator Fairbanks is for Representative Hawkins, but understand he has made no formal recommendation. Fairbanks entertained them at lunch yesterday.

ROBINSON ON CONVENTION.

Representative Robinson, who is just back from the Indiana democratic convention, was the center of a group of democratic congressmen when the house met yesterday. All were anxious to hear about the convention. "I felt that we ought to refer to the Kansas City platform and refer to Bryan," said Mr. Robinson to his colleagues, "but now that it is all over, I believe the convention did the wise thing. Before leaving Indiana I talked with many representatives of the party who are classed as radical silver men, and they were all satisfied."

ACCEPTS CALL TO NEBRASKA

REV. H. BISCHOFF GETS FINE CHARGE IN THE WEST.

Young Man a Recent Graduate of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, and is a Fort Wayne Boy.

Rev. Hugo Bischoff, who was graduated from Concordia seminary, at St. Louis, recently, has accepted a call to the pastorate of a fine church at Geneva, Neb., and will leave after a few weeks' visit at home to assume his pastoral duties, which, in addition to the Geneva church, includes a small English Lutheran mission.

Rev. Bischoff is a son of Prof. Rudolph R. Bischoff, of Concordia college, and received his early education in this city. He is a bright, promising young man and has all the qualifications of a successful preacher. Rev. Bischoff will preach at the English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. Meyer.

Elwood George and family have gone to Indianapolis for a visit of a month.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

DR. J. W. KANNELL ARRESTED FOR MALPRACTICE.

WOMAN'S DEATH LAID TO HIM

BUNGLING OPERATION CAUSE OF DEATH.

A CORONER'S INVESTIGATION

KANNELL GIVES BOND IN THE SUM OF $1,000.

Dr. John W. Kannell was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Ryan at 10 o'clock this morning to answer the charge of causing the death of Mary Hunt by an operation at Hope hospital May 29.

Mrs. Hunt died at the hospital thirty hours after the operation.

The warrant on which the arrest was made was sworn to by Dr. Walter W. Barnett, county coroner. He told a Sentinel reporter this morning that there were four conditions found in the woman's abdominal region, due to the ignorance and carelessness of the operator, any one of which would have caused her death.

The warrant is in two counts, charging first that the woman's death was caused by Dr. Kannell "unlawfully, feloniously and involuntarily, without malice expressed or implied;" the second count charges her death to Dr. Kannell "feloniously, ignorantly, rashly and involuntarily."

DOCTOR GIVES BOND OF $1,000.

Dr. Kannell was represented in Justice France's court by Joseph Haley, who asked a continuance until next week. Justice France granted the request, setting June 11 at 2 o'clock as the day for the hearing. He placed the defendant's bond at $1,000. Mr. Haley asked that it be made $500, but the court thought the sum named by him would not be excessive. Dr. Morse Harrod appeared in the court room.

"Do you expect to offer Dr. Harrod as your bondsman?" asked the court.

"We did," responded Mr. Haley.

"Then I can't accept him. He owns his property jointly and can't sign a bond for that reason."

The opinion was expressed that Dr. Kannell would have no difficulty in securing satisfactory bond.

Dr. Kannell offered the names of Joseph Haley, father of his attorney, and of Perry Archer as bondsmen and they were accepted. He was thereupon released.

DR. KANNELL A YOUNG MAN.

Dr. Kannell is a young man, giving his age at 35 years. He lives at 1315 Wells street. He came to this city in 1897 from Rockford, O., and has been practicing here ever since except for a month spent in study as a post graduate in a Chicago college last January. In his evidence given before the coroner he said he was graduated at the Eclectic Medical college of Cincinnati after studying there twenty-two months. He announced himself a physician and surgeon, in reply to the coroner's inquiry as to his scope of practice. Dr. Barnett is looking up evidence of Dr. Kennell's former life at Rockford, some rumors having reached him that Dr. Kannell was not "persona grata" to that community. His testimony in regard to the operation on Mrs. Hunt was quite searching and disclosed to the satisfaction of the coroner that he had operated not only carelessly, but in ignorance of the requirements of skilled surgery.

OTHERS TESTIFY.

The witnesses whose testimony was heard by the coroner were Dr. Macbeth, city health commissioner; Emily G. Fornier, superintendent of the hospital, who saw part of the operation; Dr. Morse Harrod, attending physician of the patient; Dr. John Harrod, Dr. Price, interne at the hospital; Robert Klaehn, the undertaker; H. W. Zumbro, his assistant, and several of the nurses attached to the hospital.

Dr. Macbeth in his testimony before the coroner said:

"I believe that the depletion of the body (Mrs. Hunt's) from uncontrolled hemorrhage and from post-operative hemorrhage would continue to deprive the body of vitality. The hemorrhage could have been avoided easily by the ligation of vessels and by taking proper precaution against dividing those that would have bled freely. The evidence presented by the body in the post mortem examination indicated carelessness to a marked degree. I never saw so much evidence of carelessness before in an operation. Dr. Kannell was criminally negligent.

MRS. FORNIER'S STATEMENT.

Mrs. Fonier, superintendent of the hospital, described the operation during the time she was in the operating room. The patient, she said, was under ether from 9:30 in the morning until nearly 2 o'clock. The incision in the abdomen was made with one stroke (about six inches) of the knife, causing profuse bleeding. Dr. Kannell had no forceps ready to catch and tie up the arteries and the patient during the operation required the use of 100 sponges, many of them so full of blood as to be soaked and soppy. The ordinary operation does not require more than thirty or forty sponges. This meant the loss of fully five or six pints of blood, enough to kill a large man. Mrs. Fornier said the operator went at the work with apparent full confidence in himself, but she said that, though she has had ten years' experience in hospital work and had witnessed hundreds of operations, she could not determine what the

MAY BRING A NEW FACTORY

GOTTLIEB HALLER CONFERS WITH EASTERN PARTIES.

Proposition Under Way to Locate Paint, Varnish and Putty Factory in Fort Wayne.

There are splendid prospects for the location of a new manufacturing institution in Fort Wayne in a short time, though as yet all the details of the affair have not been concluded. The concern in prospect is an institution for the manufacture of paint, varnishes and putty.

For several weeks Gottlieb Haller has been quietly in consultation with eastern men of experience in the manufacture of paints and painters' specialties, and they are inclined to look upon Fort Wayne with much favor, both as a shipping point and from the additional fact that there is no industry of this kind in this immediate territory.

Mr. Haller is the owner of the old Winch factory, in the eastern part of the city, and the project contemplates the use of this building for the new enterprise. A vast amount of machinery will be necessary, but the gentleman behind the project are said to have ample capital and experience to conduct the business successfully. A stock company is to be organized, and it is probable that a number of other Fort Wayne gentlemen, in addition to Mr. Haller, may be financially interested in the enterprise. One of the eastern men is expected in the city shortly to confer regarding the matter.

STATE CHAIRMAN IS IN TOWN

PROHIBITIONISTS HOLDING A CONFERENCE TODAY.

L. C. Masters, of Muncie, Organizing a Prohibition Alliance in Fort Wayne.

State Chairman L. C. Masters, of Muncie, the head of the prohibitionist organization in Indiana, arrived in the city this morning. Mr. Masters came from Huntington to Fort Wayne, and his visit to the city is for the purpose of visiting party leaders and getting a glimpse of the political situation here.

At the same time Mr. Masters is perfecting the organization of a prohibition alliance in every city and town where it is practicable, and this afternoon a meeting was held for this purpose in the office of J. E. Graham. The alliance is a social organization, designed to aid in building up the prohibition party. It is educational in its work and literary meetings are held regularly.

Chairman Masters says the situation over the state is most encouraging to the prohibitionists, and he confidently expects a very large vote at the fall election.

BURGLAR FRIGHTENED AWAY.

The house of Walter Van Tochine, at 243 Dawson street, was entered by a burglar last night, through the dining room window. The noise of his climbing the stairs awakened Mr. Van Tochine and the burglar ran down stairs as soon as he found that the family was aroused. As he went down he said, "Oh, mister," in a tone of voice indicating quite as much alarm as those inside could have felt. He escaped without securing anything of value. Mr. Van Tochine found the lamp in the kitchen blazing high and black with smoke, in a condition which might soon have caused an explosion and a fire.

NEWSPAPER DEAL

"DAILY NEWS" ABOUT TO PASS INTO NEW HANDS.

C. F. BICKNELL TO BUY IT

TERRE HAUTE MAN ACCEPTS MR. PAGE'S PROPOSITION.

TO CONTINUE REPUBLICAN

CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT TO TAKE PLACE JUNE 16.

Within a very few days, unless unexpected obstacles should develop in the completion of the negotiations, the Fort Wayne Daily News is to pass into the hands of new owners.

Clarence F. Bicknell, for many years connected with the Terre Haute Tribune, both as owner and as business manager, is in the city to accept a proposition for the purchase of the Daily News made to him several weeks ago by William D. Page, who founded the newspaper twenty-eight years ago.

Mr. Bicknell has been negotiating for the purchase of the property for several weeks, and he has made a number of trips to the city, but the negotiations have been conducted very quietly, and the announcement by The Sentinel this evening that the paper is to be sold will be the occasion of much surprise.

Both Mr. Page and Mr. Bicknell this afternoon confirmed the report that the terms of sale had been practically agreed upon, though a few minor details are yet to be arranged. There is every reason, however, for the belief that the transaction will be completed within a few days, and it is probable that Mr. Bicknell will take charge of the newspaper on Monday, June 16.

No figures are made public, and it was not thought proper to make any announcement as to the future of the paper farther than the fact that it would be continued as a republican organ.

The News was established June 1, 1874, by William D. Page and Charles F. Taylor, under the firm name of Page, Taylor & Co. Mr. Page, who has been identified with the paper from its first issue, purchased Mr. Taylor's interest about fifteen years ago.

While the present purchase is being made by C. F. Bicknell, it is said that associated with him will be his brother, Ernest P. Bicknell, formerly of the Indianapolis News, later secretary of the state board of charities, and now at the head of the public charities department in Chicago.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE

GEORGE KIERSPE EMBRACED BY HUGE REPTILE.

While in Ohio He is Charmed by the Eye of a Blacksnake and Has Narrow Escape.

Friends of George Kierspe, cashier at Rurode's store, have had a letter from him in the last day or two detailing an awful experience he had last Wednesday with a snake in a swamp near Rockford, Ohio, where he is the guest of his mother-in-law. He was going through a wooded swampy field to the postoffice when he saw a bird fluttering and evidently in a state of great excitement. He went over to where it was and suddenly he found himself looking into the eye of an enormous black snake not over fourteen inches from his head. The shock was so intense that he was paralyzed, he said, with horror and stood transfixed, unable to move. The eye of the reptile held his in its spell just as it had done the bird's, which, released by the new captive, flew away. The snake protruded its forked tongue and waved its sinuous head in deadly fashion and then suddenly threw itself around its victim. That broke the spell of its evil eye and managing to draw his pen knife from his pocket, Mr. Kierspe gave it a stab in the neck and then fell over in a faint. He was finally found wrapped in the folds of the reptile by some farmers and was released from its grip. It measured nine and one-half feet long and had it not been for the lucky stab would undoubtedly have killed its victim. As it was he was none the worse for his experience except a horrible memory. The story is vouched for in every particular.

ADDING NEW DIRECTORS.

Stockholders of the First National bank are in session this afternoon to amend the by-laws of the bank so as to provide for a larger board of directors. Seven members have heretofore constituted the board, but it is regarded as probable that eight members will be added to the board. After this is done, and the new board is organized, it will proceed to the election of a vice president and a cashier, though this may not be done at the session today. Among those mentioned for vice president are C. H. Worden and C. A. Wilding, while among those mentioned in connection with the cashiership are H. B. Freeman, C. F. Pfeiffer, H. C. Berghoff and Paul Kuehne.

BOY DROWNED IN MAUMEE

MERL CLARK LOSES LIFE WHILE IN BATHING.

Was in the Water With Other Boys Near Glasgow Avenue and Got Beyond His Depth.

Merl Clark, aged eleven, a stepson of James McHugh, of 2214 Thomas street, was drowned this afternoon while in bathing in the Maumee river near the foot of Glasgow avenue.

The little fellow, in company with a number of other lads of near his own age, was enjoying the sport of swimming when he got beyond his depth and went down.

The police were notified and officers with the city's dragging equipment went out to recover the body, which had not been accomplished at 3 o'clock.

ALREADY HAS A HUSBAND

MRS. MAINS REFUSED MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Albert Cutshall and Wallen Woman Wanted to Wed—The News of the Courts.

An application was made by Albert Cutshall and Rose Mains, of Wallen, this afternoon for a marriage license. Clerk Belot had information that Rose had a husband living in Ohio. She explained that she had been informed that he had secured a divorce from her there, but lacking legal evidence, the license was refused until official knowledge of the separation is secured. The expectant bride and groom thereupon agreed to put off their nuptials for two weeks. Mrs. Mains figured as a witness in the Dunn trial. She had a babe in her arms this morning when applying for the license.

MEDICAL MEN MEET.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 7.—The American Academy of Medicine opened its twenty-seventh annual meeting here today. An address was made by Dr. V. C. Vaughan, of Ann Arbor, Mich., president of the academy, and reports of special committees were presented by Dr. A. L. Benedict, of Buffalo, and Dr. S. Duncan Bulkley, of New York. Papers were read by Drs. Charles McIntyre, of Easton, Pa.; S. A. Kopf, of New York; Charles M. Culver, of Albany, and Winifred S. Hall, of Chicago.

LOCAL LINES.

The closing reception given by Mrs. Trier at Robison park Thursday evening was a splendid success, over 500 young people being in attendance. The Annex orchestra furnished music.

Mrs. C. Hettler accompanies the Misses Elser as far as New York city, the party leaving Monday. Mrs. Hettler will spend some time in the east, and the Misses Elser will sail for Germany.

Harry Schmidt, of 1311 Swinney avenue, entertained the members of his club in a most delightful manner last evening. Music and games were the features of the evening, and refreshments were served.

Rev. C. F. W. Meyer, pastor of Redeemer English Lutheran church, will go to Cincinnati the early part of next week, where he will preach June 15. In the evening he will install Rev. J. G. Henry as pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Our Savior, Dayton and Whitman streets. There will be no evening services at Rev. Meyer's church in the evening.

WITH GOOD WILL

BOERS LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS CHEERFULLY.

MANY HAVE SURRENDERED

LEADERS DIRECT WORK AND GIVE GOOD COUNSEL.

KRUGER TO RETURN HOME

DECLINES BRITISH TENDER OF FACILITIES.

London, June 7.—Lord Kitchener, in a dispatch from Pretoria, dated today, announced that the progress made in the surrender of the Boers is entirely satisfactory. Four hundred and forty burghers have laid down their arms at Middelburg, Transvaal. They also brought in a pom-pom complete, with ammunition, and indicated the hiding places of a howitzer and Maxim gun.

Two hundred and eighty-nine Boers have surrendered their arms at Standerton, Transvaal, and Lord Kitchener confirms the report that 255 Boers, of whom 219 were rebels, surrendered at Cradock, Cape Colony.

Many more surrenders are expected today. All the Boers who surrendered in Cape Colony expressed themselves as being rejoiced at the fact that peace had been arranged.

CHEERED FOR KING.

Cape Town, June 7.—The surrender of more than 1,500 Boers has already been reported, covering various points. Commandant Fouche brought into Cradock, Cape Colony, his commando, consisting of 36 Free Staters and 219 rebels. Fouche is ill.

Commandant Conroy's men, on hearing that peace had been concluded, threw their hats in the air, cheered for King Edward and sang "God Save the King."

These incidents dissipate the fear expressed that the Cape Colony commandoes would refuse to accede to the peace terms.

Gen. Christian DeWet is personally superintending the surrender of the Boers in the Vredefort, Orange River Colony, district.

General Schalk-Burger, former acting president of the Transvaal, who is the guest of the governor of Natal, Col. Sir Henry Edward McCallum, at Pietermaritzburg, in an address to the burghers in the concentration camp, asked them to make the best of the situation and to forget and forgive the past. He pointed out the hopelessness of continuing the struggle; urged the Boers to accept and act in accordance with the terms of surrender, which he intended to uphold, and desired them to work for the good of South Africa.

OOM PAUL DECLINES.

Amsterdam, June 7.—It is reported here that Mr. Kruger has declined the facilities offered by Great Britain for his return to South Africa, but has accepted Queen Wilhelmina's proffer of a Dutch vessel to convey him to South Africa when he decides to return there.

BOERS WANT TO GO HOME.

Denver, Col., June 7.—The twenty-seven Boer refugees in this city have formulated an appeal to the British ambassador at Washington relative to their return to South Africa. These twenty-seven speak for the ninety Boers who are in Colorado. They ask that arrangements be made for their return to South Africa and promise to be law-abiding citizens. The appeal has been forwarded to Washington.

LANDSLIDE DESTROYS TOWN.

Vladikavkaz, North Caucasia, Russia, June 7.—The village of Cambulata, in a mountain pass of the Urach range, has been destroyed by a landslip. A large rent suddenly appeared in the mountain, which shortly afterwards toppled over on the village and the neighboring farms. The inhabitants escaped.

HIGH SCHOOL EXCURSION.

Nearly 900 people went to Bonne City on the high school excursion yesterday morning. The young people spent a most delightful day enjoying the pleasures at Sylvan lake, and rowed, fished and played games until they were tired. There were a few showers in the afternoon, but the rain was not sufficient to spoil the day's sport. About 6:30 a thunder storm came up, and somewhat marred the evening's pleasure. The young people danced in the pavilion on the island, music being furnished by Will Young.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

makes childbirth easy by preparing the system for parturition and thus shortening labor. The painful ordeal is robbed of its terrors, and the danger lessened to both mother and child; the time of confinement is shortened, the mother rested, and child fully developed, strong and healthy.

Morning sickness, or nausea arising from pregnancy, is prevented by its use.

As pregnancy advances, the breasts enlarge, become swollen and hard. Long before the child is born, they are preparing for the secretion of milk. It is important that they receive early attention. Mother's Friend softens the skin and facilitates the secretion of Life Fluid. Undeveloped breasts, hard-caked shortly after delivery, are the result of non-treatment, and likely to culminate in Mammary Abscess, from which so many suffer excruciating pain and are left with these organs permanently impaired.

Softness, pliability and expansion are given to the muscles and tissues, thus bringing ease, rest and comfort to many hours of the child. Try it. Of druggists $1.00. Our book "Motherhood" free.

operator was trying to do at any stage of the operation. According to her evidence all the trouble was on the right side, but the damage which would have caused death and which indicated carelessness and ignorance was on the left side. She said that the intestine was cut in several places, and when the saline enema was given as a stimulant it found its way through the apertures into the abdominal cavity, carrying fecal matter with it. She described the operation as the most unskillful she had ever seen.

WHAT CORONER SAID.

Dr. Barnett says that the operation was performed because of the presence of a pus formation in the fallopian tube on the right side. If proper skill and surgical precaution had been taken, he said, the operation need not have resulted fatally. The operator, he said, explored the uterine cavity, when there was no necessity for it, and thus greatly augmented the danger from shock and inflammation by enlarging the scope or area of the poisonous surface. It was criminal lack of skill and surgical knowledge, he says, to attempt to do what the post mortem showed was done. The nature of the evidence left him no other course, he said, than to prefer charges against the operator for criminal negligence and ignorance in the practice of surgery. He found that Dr. Kannell had operated in three other cases, but that each of the patients died.

The connection of the Drs. Harrod with the case is that the dead woman in life was Dr. Morse Harrod's patient and the anaesthetic was administered by Dr. John Harrod. They are not charged with criminal practice, but will be summoned to testify before the grand jury if Dr. Kannell on his hearing before Justice France is bound over for further investigation and indictment.

The Drs. Harrod and Dr. Kannell, it will be noted, are practitioners of the eclectic school of medicine. They claim that the prosecution is the incident of a doctors' fight.

HISTORY OF THE CASE.

For a week Coroner Barnett has been at work upon the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the case, which in his opinion from the outset promised some sensational disclosures. The patient, Mrs. Mary Hunt, was 28 years of age, the wife of William C. Hunt, and resided on Force street. It is learned that she had been in poor health for several years and had recently been under the professional care of Dr. John Harrod.

The operation was decided upon, and about a week previous to her death Mrs. Hunt was removed to Hope hospital to be prepared for the ordeal. Dr. J. W. Kannel had been in consultation in the case and he was called in as surgeon. Dr. Morse Harrod was also present while the operation was performed, as were also several of the hospital nurses. The operation was performed on Thursday, May 29, and the patient died on Friday night at 11 o'clock.

It was desired to take the remains of the dead woman to Nevada, Ohio, on Saturday for burial, and on the morning following her death an attache of the undertaking establishment presented at the office of the city health department a certificate signed by Dr. Kannel and Dr. John Harrod, certifying that Mrs. Hunt's death was due to shock following a surgical operation.

Meantime, through the remarks of a friend of the dead woman, who witnessed the operation, a description of the case had reached the ears of Dr. A. H. Macbeth, the city health commissioner, and that officer deemed that the situation warranted an investigation. He referred the matter to Coroner Barnett.

HELD A POST MORTEM.

The funeral party was nearly ready to start for the Pennsylvania station with the remains at noon on Saturday when the coroner reached the Hunt residence, and he directed that the remains be removed to the undertaking rooms of Klaehn & Melching, where the casket was opened and a post mortem examination conducted by Dr. Macbeth, in the presence of the coroner. All possible expedition was used consistent with a satisfactory examination in order not to delay the funeral party, and it was completed in time to permit the removal of the remains to Ohio at noon. The interment occurred at Nevada, Ohio, on Monday.

During the past week Coroner Barnett has made a most searching investigation into the case, examining all the physicans in attendance and several of the hospital attaches who saw the operation. Dr. Barnett said today:

"The reason for the finding is the evidence of the loss of blood during the operation to exceed five pints, and the evidence of general depression following, as shown by the difference in the condition of the patient before the operation and after it. When the operation was performed the patient's temperature was 99 2-5; pulse 96. At 8 o'clock the pulse was 180, and temperature 102 4-5, showing extreme depletion from the fact that the woman had lost an excessive amount of blood. The circulation did not improve, and the temperature went down to below a normal point, and the woman's death ensued."

COLLEGE HAS ITS FIELD DAY

CONCORDIA STUDENTS IN ATHLETIC PROGRAM.

Young Men Made Some Splendid Records at Race Track Grove Friday Afternoon.

Concordia students held their annual field day exercises yesterday afternoon and a large number of the lusty young men from the big Lutheran college participated in the program of athletic sports at Wiechman's grove, near the Driving park.

The records of the year are excellent, the greater number of them showing much improvement over last year's marks. Hoetzer, who took part in three dashes, carried off the laurels of the day. Another feature was the pole vault, which Guenther won after the hardest kind of a tussle. The gymnastic exercises were especially enjoyable, for the young men had been in careful training for months and all acquitted themselves creditably.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

The various prizes were awarded as follows:

Broad jump—Schimmel, '02, 20 feet 2 inches.

High jump—Kowert, '02, first, 5 feet 1 inch; Zucker, '02, second.

Hop, step and jump—Schimmel, '02, first, 40 feet; Kowert, '02, second.

Pole vault—Guenther, '05, 8 feet 10 inches, first; Kuchenbecker, '05, second.

One hundred yard dash—Hoetzer, '02, 10 3-5 seconds, first; Umbach, '05, second.

Mile walk—Kretzmann, '02, 8 minutes 37 seconds.

Two hundred and twenty yard dash—Hoetzer, '02, 23⅕ seconds, first; Tautman, '05, second.

Half mile run—Eggers, '03, 2 minutes 16 1-5 seconds, first; Bublitz, '05, second.

Throwing ball—Eggers, '03, 326 feet 9 inches, first; Klindworth, '04, second.

Four hundred and forty yard dash—Hoetzer, '02, 55 4-5 seconds, first; F. Ziemendorf, '05, second.

THE GYMNASTS.

In the gymnastic exercises the percentages were:

Umbach, '05, .71 1-3.
Zucker, '02, 69 1-12.
Wolf, '05, 66 1-6.
Kuelenbecker, '05, 66 1-12.
Guenther, '05, 64 7-12.
Hamann, '04, 63 2-3.
Recknagel, '03, 63¼.

NINE MEN DROWN

LAKE STEAMERS IN COLLISION NEAR DULUTH.

WHALEBACK BOAT IS SUNK

THE HADLEY CUT THE WILSON IN TWO PARTS.

WENT DOWN IMMEDIATELY

OTHER BOAT HAD TO RACE TO SAVE HER CREW.

Duluth, Minn., June 7.—The whaleback steamer Thomas Wilson, Captain Cameron, master, was cut almost in two by the steamer George Hadley, Captain Fitzgerald, master, a half mile south of the Duluth canal, today, and nine men went down. They were mostly men of the night crew who had not time to get out of their bunks before the vessel sunk.

NAMES OF THE LOST.

The names of the men lost are:

Aaron Trippe, cook.
—— Frank, second cook, Superior.
James McDougall, oiler, West Superior.
James M. Frazer, Manitou Island.
Joseph McGraw, wheelsman, Sault St. Marie, Mich.
John Campbell, lookout, Greenleaf, Mich.
John Carey, deck hand, St. Catherines, Ont.
Thomas Jones, deck hand.
William Roebuck, fireman, Port Hampton.

The Wilson was coming toward the canal and the Hadley going out, both loaded. Just before reaching the canal and when about opposite the Wilson, the Hadley was given orders by a tug to go to Superior. Immediately she sheered off for the Superior entry and crashed directly into the Wilson.

WENT DOWN QUICKLY.

The Wilson went down so quickly that it did not seem possible to save a life. One moment the two boats were plowing through the water 200 yards apart, the next the crew of the Wilson could be seen throwing off their clothing and jumping into the water. One man on the Wilson, with great presence of mind, threw life preservers to those who had jumped into the cold water. The crew of the Hadley was without life preservers. Immediately after the collision the Wilson pitched forward and went down. As she plunged, the members of the crew who were still undressing rushed to the stern, jumping overboard as fast as they could free themselves from their clothing. The Wilson did not float a minute after the collision. During the short interval before she sank she seemed to be supported entirely by the Hadley's prow, which was sticking in through her plates.

LIKE AN EXPLOSION.

The plunge of the Wilson released the Hadley and the latter boat swung back with a tremendous jerk. As the whaleback went beneath the water she spouted like a submarin explosion from the compression of air in her.

Two men who jumped last were seen struggling near the hull just before the plunge and could not be seen afterwards.

The Hadley's steering apparatus seemed to be paralyzed after the collision. She swung around in a circle several times and seemed utterly helpless. In a few moments it was apparent that the Hadley was going down and the crew on it could be seen stripping themselves and lowering boats. Some of them got into the bow, but when the Hadley sunk to within a foot of her deck she seemed to cease sinking for a few moments and the men clambered back on the boat.

RACE FOR LIFE.

The race of the life saving crew and the tugs for the wreck was thrilling. The Hadley would not have made the shore had it not been for the tugs. The life saving crew picked up the men in the water. The Hadley had a hard run for shore and a moment after her bow went on the bottom just south of the ship canal pier her stern began to settle and finally went down with a spouting of water similar to that which marked the sinking of the Wilson. Fully half of the way in from the scene of the accident to the point of beaching the decks of the Hadley were covered with water, and the members of the crew that were compelled to stay by her took to the upper works.

The Wilson went down in eighty feet of water and only a few feet of her spars are visible. The Wilson was loaded with ore and belongs to the Pittsburg steamship line, the fleet of the United States Steel company. The Hadley carried coal.

ON DOWN TOWN STREETS.

The Fort Wayne and Southwestern company this morning placed a large force of excavators at work upon Harrison and Columbia streets, preparing for the laying of the tracks on those streets. The work of stringing trolley wire from Taylor street down town is well under way.

MAY BE COURT MARTIALED.

Washington, June 7.—The navy department this morning gave out the following statement concerning the court of inquiry which investigated the case of the American officers arrested at Venice: "The court of inquiry recommends trial by court martial of Lieut. John S. Doddridge, United States navy; Capt. Robert F. Wynne, United States marine corps, and Assistant Surgeon Robert E. Ledbetter, United States navy, on the charge of unbecoming behavior in public, and that no further action be taken in the case of Naval Cadet James C. Kress, United States navy, and Private Wilfred Langley, United States marine corps. Admiral Crownshield has disapproved the opinion and recommendation of the court of inquiry where it is adverse to the officers, on the ground that the evidence is not sufficient."

The members of the Fort Wayne Academy of Medicine were very pleasantly entertained last evening by Dr. G. W. McCaskey. The feature of the evening was a ping pong contest between Drs. W. E. Stemen and Cliff Wallace, Dr. Stemen winning by a majority of sixteen points. The guests enjoyed cards and other games, and refreshments afterward.

CONGRESSMAN CROWLEY

Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family For Catarrhal and Nervous Affections.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great catarrhal tonic, Peruna. Congressman Crowley says:

"After giving Peruna a fair trial I can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with coughs, colds and la grippe, and all catarrhal complaints.

"Mrs. Crowley has taken a number of bottles of Peruna on account of nervous troubles. It has proven a strong tonic and lasting cure. I can cheerfully recommend it."—J. B. CROWLEY.

No other remedy invented by man has ever received as much praise from men of high station as Peruna. Over forty members of Congress have tried it and recommended it to suffering humanity. They use it themselves to guard against the effects of the intense strain of public life; to ward off the ill effects of the changeable climate of Washington. They keep it in their homes for family use. They recommend it to their neighbors, and they do not hesitate in public print to declare their appreciation and endorsement of this greatest of modern remedies.

It is exactly as Congressman Crowley says: "Peruna is a swift and sure remedy for coughs, colds and la grippe and all catarrhal complaints. It is an excellent remedy in all nervous troubles. It never fails to prove itself a powerful tonic and a lasting cure." This is what Congressman Crowley says, and this is what thousands of other people are saying all over the United States.

Congressman Romulus Z. Linney from Taylorsville, N. C., writes: "My secretary had as bad a case of catarrh as I ever saw, and since he has taken one bottle of Peruna he seems like a different man."—Romulus Z. Linney.

Congressman A. T. Goodwyn, Robinson Springs, Ala., writes: "I have now used one bottle of Peruna and am a well man today.—A. T. Goodwyn.

U. S. Senator W. N. Roach from Larimore, N. D., writes: "I have used Peruna as a tonic. It has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite."

Congressman H. W. Ogden from Benton, La., writes: "I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna."—H. W. Ogden.

Congressman H. W. Smith from Murphysboro, Ill., writes: "I have taken one bottle of Peruna for my catarrh and I feel very much benefited."—Geo. W. Smith.

Congressman David Meekison from Napoleon, O., writes: "I have used several bottles of Peruna and feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head."—David Meekison.

Senator Mallory, of Pensacola, Fla., writes: "I have used your excellent remedy, Peruna, and have recommended it both as a tonic and a safe catarrh remedy."—Stephen R. Mallory.

Senator M. C. Butler, ex-Governor of South Carolina, writes: "I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble."—M. C. Butler.

Senator W. V. Sullivan from Oxford, Miss., writes: "I take pleasure in recommending your great national catarrh cure, Peruna, as the best I have ever tried."—W. V. Sullivan.

Senator J. M. Thurston from Omaha, Neb., writes: "Peruna entirely relieved me of a very irritating cough."—J. M. Thurston.

Congressman H. G. Worthington from Nevada, writes: "I have taken one bottle of Peruna and it has benefited me immensely."—H. G. Worthington.

Congressman Howard from Ft. Payne, Ala., writes: "I have taken Peruna for la grippe, and I take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy."—M. W. Howard.

Congressman Willis Brewer from Haynesville, Ala., writes: "I have used one bottle of Peruna for lassitude, and I take pleasure in recommending it."—Willis Brewer.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Wheat and Pure Fruit Combined
Wheat and Pure Fruit Combined
It may be used as the principal article of food for dietetic reasons, or as a dessert or side-dish including the three meals of a day the whole year round, without creating any dislike whatever on account of its constant presence on the table. Nor will Cero-Fruto interfere in any way with particular dishes which one may entertain a special liking for.
Housekeepers may now laugh at the "Beef Trust," as it solves the riddle of prohibitive prices for beef. Its strength and health giving qualities for both brain and muscle is more than apparent. It is a positive and evident: its constituent elements prove it; the percentage of nutrition equals 18% and both the conversion of starch of wheat into sugar in the preparation and the fruit sugar of the fruit, enable immediate absorption of the whole food into the system upon being eaten. It is, in fact, predigested and not like starchy and pasty foods causing flatulency, indigestion and consequent disorders and ailments, it produces a buoyant, cheerful and perfectly healthful condition of body and mind. Try it, if you have not already done so. Sold by all grocers.

B. G. CLUB SOCIAL.

An ice cream social will be given under the auspices of the Steadfast Gleaners' club of the Y. W. C. A., at the residence of Mrs. Mason Long, on Columbia avenue, Tuesday evening, June 10. The object of the social is to raise funds to send a member of the club to the Western Conference for Young Women, which will be held at Lake Geneva, Wis., August 22 to September 23. This will be a conference for bible study and for inspiration to the spiritual life through addresses and devotional services. One of these bible classes will be under the instruction of Dr. W. W. White, of the Bible Normal college, of New York. Dr. Andrew Murray, of South Africa, a well known writer, will be present. Miss Josephine Robinson, of Indianapolis, will have charge of the music. The recreative side of the conference is to be emphasized. Lake Geneva affords every opportunity for outdoor pleasures. This conference is open to all women who would enjoy the study of the bible and platform addresses and who care for Christian work among young women.

RECEIVED BY EMPEROR.

Yokohama, June 7.—The emperor and empress of Japan today received John Barrett, a commissioner of the St. Louis exposition, in special audience and expressed warm interest in the undertaking. Mr. Barrett secured assurances of Japanese participation on an unusual scale.

A BIG EARNER.

Good Food Pays Better Than Any Other Investment.

Money put into properly selected food that brings health and maintains it is better invested than any other way.

A man who had spent hundreds of dollars in medicines to try and get well writes that the past year he has used 15G packages of Grape-Nuts. He says: "Several years ago I had two severe shocks of paralysis, bringing on general nervous debility. I was not able to do work of any kind for several years.

"I doctored hundreds of dollars away. About a year ago I began using Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food and have so steadily gained in strength and health that since last July I have worked every day at collecting for a large company, walking several miles a day, and have not enjoyed better health for over 20 years than I do now. I am able to use all kinds of food, but do not eat much besides Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee." W. F. Albro, 207 Chestnut St., Scranton, Pa.

Don't overlook the recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts.

WHERE JOKES ARE DANGEROUS

Without intending to be taken too seriously A. N. McAlpine, B. Sc., professor of botany in the Glasgow Agricultural College and botanical adviser to the Highland Agricultural society, stated in a lecture at Dumfries that more people had been killed by eating oatmeal than had ever been killed by drinking whisky, because the ciliary processes on the oatmeal set up an irritation of the mucous membrane of the alimentary canal. So much comment has been excited in Scotish agricultural circles by the professor's remarks that the matter will probably be brought before the Highland society's directors at their monthly meeting. The professor has explained that the statement was intended for a joke, and that the serious attention it has excited simply illustrates Sydney Smith's saying that it required a surgical operation to get a joke into the head of a Scotsman.—London Mail.

Now, if America were China, President Roosevelt the son of heaven and General Miles a viceroy or the like, the hint of a silken cord would be sufficient.

"Oom Paul" Kruger declines the tender of a British warship to convey him back to the Transvaal. Doubtless he thinks British responsibility for his movements had gone far enough when he decided to leave.

Party lines very distinctly divide opinion of the Indiana democratic convention. Republican newspapers in general do not seem to like it. Democratic newspapers the country over comment on it with high approval. The conclusion ought to be obvious to every democrat.

Secretary Moody purposes to institute a new order of things in the navy. He has altered the policy of the department and hereafter merit alone will govern in the matter of promotions. Elaborate maneuvers are to be held the coming fall, when three big squadrons will be assembled in the Caribbean sea and the most thorough system of tests of efficiency will be made. The history of the navy since the Spanish war is alone sufficient to make this new policy welcome not only to the men of the navy, but to the public.

Col. Henry Watterson, in the Louisville Courier-Journal, thus enthuses over the late convention of the Indiana democracy: "It is like old times to read of the Indiana democratic convention—the old times when every Indiana democrat stood shoulder to shoulder in party line and battle line, and every foot of Indiana ground was battle ground; the old times when every democratic face throughout the country turned intently to Indiana, watching the progress and awaiting the result of the struggle there with an interest born of the knowledge that the result in Indiana indicated and in large measure shaped the result of the nation. And as it is in Indiana, so, we believe, it is throughout the country. The democratic party is coming to its own again. Everywhere it is putting aside all bickerings and taking its place as the defender of the people against monopoly and extortion, as the defender of the republic against subversion, as the defender of the constitution whose bulwark, and oftentimes whose sole bulwark, the democratic party has been from the first."

A general strike in the Pennsylvania coal region almost inevitably means disorder and it is beginning in the present instance rather earlier than usual. To look at these disturbances in the light of their first causes is to fix responsibility for rioting, burning and beating upon the operators themselves. To the character of the men imported from the low grades of European population may in large part be attributed the violence to which striking miners so frequently resort. To the clamor referred to violence appears lawful to protect their wages and secure their rights when force is employed by the operators to defeat them. It is difficult to determine just how far the operators are to blame for provoking disorder, but it certainly has no mollifying effect upon strikers that about the first thing the mine management does is to import a horde of special police to parade with arms. To the unthinking and primitive-minded men who grovel in the mines such display is apt to be interpreted as a challenge to fight. It would seem that the employment and direction of special armed forces should be less a prerogative of the mine operators and more a function of the state than is the case.

HURT IN TROLLEY MISHAP.

St. Louis, Mo., June 7.—Twenty-five persons were today injured, two of them fatally, in a crossing collision between a car of the Clayton branch of the Suburban Electric line and an engine of the Missouri Pacific railroad. The two men fatally injured are William Layzen, motorman, and George Gibbons, a negro laborer. The fireman and engineer of the railroad train were both injured and removed to the Missouri Pacific hospital. Almost every one of the injured was cut by flying glass or severely bruised.

MR. REID PLEASED.

Queenstown, June 7.—The Cunard line steamer Umbria, from New York, May 31, having on board Whitelaw Reid, the special envoy of the United States to the coronation of King Edward, arrived here today. Mr. Reid, when informed of the situation of affairs in South Africa, expressed his pleasure at the fact that peace had been concluded prior to the coronation.

FITZGERALD-UMBER.

Miss Marie Umber and Will Fitzgerald were quietly married yesterday at the bride's home, on Fairfield avenue, in the presence of a very few intimate friends. Later Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald went to Rochester, Ind., for a brief visit with the groom's parents. The bride was formerly an operator in the Home exchange and is a most charming young lady. The groom was formerly in the Rhoads drug store, on Broadway, and is now connected with the Wayne Knitting mills.

STOCK BUILDINGS BURN.

Philadelphia, June 7.—Three buildings of the Erdenheim stock farm, near this city, were destroyed by fire today. Five thoroughbred horses were burned to death. The loss is placed at $100,000.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE AND DIABETES POSITIVELY CURABLE.

They are curing Bright's Disease and Diabetes in California. The percentage of efficiency (recoveries) in these hitherto incurable diseases averages as high as 87 per cent. The details of the investigation and demonstration of the new compounds are so conclusive that we at once sent for a bundle of the reports and for the new treatment for urgent cases in this city. Call or send for one of the reports at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store. m17-eod-13t

IN NORTHERN INDIANA.

The Kankakee river is the highest known for many years, and hundreds of acres of farm lands are under water.

Miss Wilhelmina Wallace, of Peru, a school teacher, will start Monday for London at her own expense to study charity work in the slums.

Mrs. Caroline Tyler, a pioneer resident of Allen township, Noble county, is dead at the age of 70 years.

A beagle hound presumed to be suffering from hydrophobia bit four people at Decatur Friday night before it was killed.

Threshers in Adams county have formed a sort of union.

Presumably for spite, someone attempted to set fire to the residence of I. N. Perry, at Bluffton, Thursday night. The flames were discovered in time to prevent damage.

Gabe Shoemaker and Harry Popejoy, two prisoners in the Bluffton jail, have occupied their time in the construction of an intricate system of mechanical toys which are operated by water power from a faucet in the cell.

The handsome new Presbyterian church at Ossian will be dedicated June 15. Dr. W. N. Hindman, of Kenton, O., will preach the dedicatory sermon.

Huntington county prohibitionists have nominated a ticket, headed by C. A. Billheimer, of Warren, for representative.

When the case against Gus McGeath, charged with forgery, was called at Bluffton, it developed that McGeath had skipped and his bond of $500 was declared forfeited.

Frank Stilwell, who assaulted Marshal Hayes at Pierceton, was found not guilty of assault with intent to kill, but was mulcted $1 and costs on a simple charge of assault.

SUPERINTENDENT SUSPECTED.

Indianapolis, June 7—Frank Jones, superintendent of public instruction, says that a county superintendent, whose duty it is to conduct the examination of teachers who are seeking licenses, is guilty of selling the questions to Joseph Hall, who was arrested yesterday, and that the superintendent will be prosecuted and Hall probably let go. He says the questions were mailed to superintendents on Wednesday evening and could not have been secured earlier than 7 o'clock Thursday morning; that at 9 o'clock that morning Hall telegraphed from Goshen to Marion that he had a copy of the questions. The law fixes a penalty of $500 for selling the questions. All of the 200 teachers examined at Marion and Frankfort will have to stand another examination, as the questions were sold in Grant and Clinton counties, and the board of education does not know who had copies and who had not.

DISCUSS FRIAR QUESTION

POPE AND RAMPOLLA HAVE MANY CONFERENCES.

Governor Taft Much Annoyed by the Inventions of Newspapers as to His Mission.

Rome, June 7.—The papal secretary of state, Cardinal Rampolla, had his usual private audience with the pope this morning. Naturally the question of the acquisition by the United States of the friar lands in the Philippines will be a subject for discussion at these daily conferences, but the alleged information on the subject is purely surmise, as absolute secrecy is maintained as to what transpires at these official visits. Cardinal Rampolla was agreeably impressed by the frankness shown by Governor Taft in sending him a copy of Secretary Root's instructions for examination.

The pope has not yet appointed the the commission of cardinals, to which the matter is to be referred. This commission will consist of five, instead of three members, as previously supposed, and probably Cardinals Vannutelli, Satolli and Vives y Tuto will be included. Cardinal Martinelli will be excluded because he is an Augustinian.

Cardinal Martinelli will be present at the customary official reception of the cardinals, prior to the consistory, at the Palazzo Borghese, today. The American officials will also be present.

Cardinal Rampolla today returned the visit of Governor Taft at the Hotel Quirinal.

Governor Taft is greatly annoyed by the inventions of the Italian newspapers regarding his visit to Rome. The Italia, one of the chief offenders, publishes an alleged interview with the governor, which was entirely "faked."

NEW HEADQUARTERS.

Local republicans have been receiving a letter from Chairman Goodrich, of the state committee, notifying them that the committee's headquarters for this campaign will be in the Hotel English instead of in the Denison house. The republican committee has operated from the Denison for so many years that only veterans of the civil war recall to the contrary. The fact, however, that the old Bates, now rebuilding as the Claypool, is out of service, thus drawing on the Denison for all its capacity, is presumed to be one reason why rooms for the state committee could not be secured there. The proximity of the Hotel English to the Columbia club on Monument place had already turned the state committee's attention in that direction. The Denison house has changed entirely to the European plan.

TORPEDO BOAT MISHAPS.

London, June 7.—The frequency of British torpedo boat destroyer and torpedo boat collisions and other accidents was emphasized today in a reply of the secretary of the admiralty, Mr. Arnold-Forster, to a question in the house of commons, showing that there were no less than 110 such occurrences in 1900 and 1901. In the former year two torpedo boat destroyers grounded and six torpedo boats and forty-one torpedo boat destroyers were in collision. In 1901 two torpedo boats and four torpedo boat destroyers grounded and five torpedo boats and fifty torpedo boat destroyers were in collisions.

MILITIA OFFICER IS ACCUSED.

Vincennes, Ind., June 7.—A court of inquiry is being held here by order of Brigadier General McKee to investigate the charges against Capt. Hiram A. Hopkins, of company A, Indiana national guard. The members of the board are Lieut. Col. Geo. W. McCoy, of this city; Capt. E. F. French, of Martinsville, and Capt. J. F. Bloom, of Evansville. Captain Hopkins is charged with personal misconduct and appropriation of the company's funds to his own use. He cannot be found. The result of the inquiry will be forwarded to Governor Durbin.

STRIKERS LIABLE FOR DAMAGE.

Indianapolis, June 7.—Acting on a suggestion made by Judge Baker, of the federal court, in connection with an application for an injunction, the Rockwood Manufacturing company, which has had much trouble for the last two months with striking molders, is collecting evidence to establish a claim for damages against the strikers. According to Judge Baker's rulings nothing owned by the strikers will be exempt from an execution if judgment is rendered against them.

SUSPECT MURDER AT MUNCIE.

Muncie, Ind., June 7.—Charles Clark, a white man 25 years old, was found dead at the bottom of a stairway in the rear of the Mystic club room with a deep wound in his forehead. The Mystic club is a colored organization. Nine colored men, three colored women and three white men are held pending an investigation. Clark's home is in Dayton, Ohio.

The Sunday school of the South Congregational church will celebrate Children's day Sunday, and the following musical numbers will be rendered: Chorus, "Songs and Flowers;" quartet, "The Rose of Sharon;" solo and chorus, "The Land of Flowers;" chorus, "The Heavenly Ladder;" solo, "Consider the Lilies;" quartet, "Mizpah."

CYCLONE DOES MUCH DAMAGE

PART OF JASPER COUNTY DEVASTATED BY WIND STORM.

Man, Woman and Child Probably Fatally Injured by Flying Timbers—Wires Down.

Rensselaer, Ind., June 7.—A terrific cyclone passed over the northern portion of this county yesterday afternoon, traveling from southwest to northeast, laying everything low for a distance of five or six miles and covering a strip 200 yards wide. Alexander Leach and his wife and child, who reside near Virgie, were perhaps fatally injured by flying timbers. Telephone and telegraph lines are down, word being received by special messenger, who sought surgical aid for injured victims from adjoining towns. The fact that the course of the wind lay in a sparsely settled community reduced the casualties.

NEWS OF THE POLICE.

Judge Dreibelbiss faced only one culprit this morning and was lenient, being still full-breasted over the fact that he won a case in court yesterday over the mayor of the city and his law partner, the lieutenant governor of Indiana. The defendant pleaded guilty to a plain drunk and was given instructions to get out of town. The orders were as short on time as they were long on leniency. The prisoner gave the name of Tom Coleman. He was arrested by Patrolman Strodel.

Conrad Baus reported to the police this morning that someone robbed his hen roost last night of thirty-eight chickens. He lives at 408 Chicago street.

FRENCH PARTY IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 7.—Count and Countess Rochambeau arrived in Chicago at 8:10 a. m. today and were met at the depot by Alderman Honore Palmer, representing the city. The distinguished Frenchman declared that their experiences in St. Louis yesterday had been very pleasant, and said the trip to Chicago had been uneventful. At the Auditorium Annex, where Count and Countess Rochambeau will stay till they depart for the east tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. Harrison, wife of Mayor Harrison, and a number of ladies, received Countess Rochambeau. A visit of the entire party to the stock yards followed.

THE GRANDEST

The Most Satisfactory and Safest Medicine any Sick Woman Can Take.

Thus Does a Prominent Brooklyn, N.Y., Woman, Speak of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When a woman of the prominence and social standing of Mrs. Atherton whose portrait we are herewith permitted to reproduce, voluntarily furnishes us with a letter of such unqualified endorsement as the following, we feel that we not only owe her a debt of gratitude, but all women who are ill should feel under deep obligations to her, for she tells them in unmistakable words where they may look for a cure and not be disappointed.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt. Truly is it said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine.

MRS. FLORENCE ATHERTON,

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For the benefit of suffering women I want to testify to the fact that I have by personal experience and by friends who have been cured by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound come to the conclusion that it is the safest, the grandest and the most satisfactory medicine any sick woman can take. Life was a burden to me five years ago, I felt so miserable with female troubles and irregular menstruation; to-day it is all different, for I am perfectly well. Dozens of my lady friends join me in singing your praise. Yours, FLORENCE ATHERTON, 47 Hoyt St., Brooklyn, N. Y."

"A Boston Woman's Experience."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. I was a sick woman when I commenced to take it. My trouble was female disease, and I had pain in my back and sides. The doctor said I was going into consumption; I had been married eight years, but had no children. I had some of the best doctors in the city, but none seemed to cure me, so I decided to take your medicine, and it has made me a new woman, and I now have a lovely little baby boy. I would advise all sick and weak women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. ALPHONSE CROIX, 18 Rockingham Place, Roxbury District, Boston, Mass.

Remember every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Her address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

FOREST RESERVE

SENATOR PROPOSES APPROPRIATION FOR IT.

SOUTHERN FOREST AREAS

WOULD BE PURCHASED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

ANTI-ANARCHIST MEASURE

BILL DEBATED AT LENGTH IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 7.—At the conclusion of routine business in the senate today Mr. Depew, of New York, addressed the senate in advocacy of the bill appropriating $10,000,000 for the purchase of 2,000,000 acres of land for a national forest reserve in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. It is stated by the committee reporting the measure that "it may fairly be urged that the establishment of this forest reserve in the region of the southern Appalachian mountains is a matter of great importance, and that owing to the peculiar conditions existing in this region the establishment of this reserve need not necessarily be accepted as a precedent for the establishment for similar reserves elsewhere in the east."

Mr. Depew said the project was favored by President Roosevelt and by the secretary of agriculture and federal action was justified fully by public necessity. He said the most favorable results might be expected from the establishment of the reserve. He said that within ten years the great hard wood forests in the proposed reserve would be destroyed entirely. Such a result would be disastrous to the states affected and to the entire country.

At the conclusion of Mr. Depew's remarks Mr. Hale said that the senate could not fail to be impressed by the great importance of the subject. He had not been aware of the extent of the land to be purchased, but he thought that some action ought to be taken upon the matter at this session.

The senate then began the consideration of the measure commonly known as the London dock charges bill.

Mr. Nelson (republican, of Minnesota) in support of the bill said the charges made at the London docks against American flour principally were a discrimination against the United States.

In response to an inquiry from Mr. McCumber as to what guarantee the shippers of this country would have in the event of the elimination of the London dock charges that the Atlantic freight rates would not be increased, Mr. Nelson replied that there was no guaranty and could be none. The shippers would have to take their chances on that. The steamship trust, organized by J. P. Morgan, he said, might raise the freight charges. That was not to be prevented by the pending bill.

"God deliver us from the trusts," declared Mr. Nelson. "That is a matter which we will have to take care of later on."

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 7.—At the opening of the session of the house today Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriation, asked unanimous consent to consider a resolution to authorize the conferees on the sundry civil appropriation bill to consider and insert in that bill the necessary appropriations authorized by the omnibus public building bill. He explained that about $6,000,000 should be appropriated in the sundry civil bill on account of the omnibus act, which was signed yesterday. It was customary, he said, to place this class of appropriations in the sundry civil bill and unless the conferees on that bill were authorized to insert these appropriations they would have to go into the general deficiency bill, where they did not properly belong.

There was no objection and the resolution was adopted.

ANTI-ANARCHY BILL.

The house then resumed consideration of the anti-anarchy bill. Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, offered an amendment to include the judges of the supreme court in the list of those whose murder while engaged in the performance of their official duties should be made punishable by death. He thought the lives of members of the supreme court should be considered as sacred as those of cabinet officers or foreign ambassadors.

Mr. Ray, chairman of the judiciary committee, said his committee had thoroughly canvassed the question of going beyond the executive, but had decided that it would be unwise to do so. The amendment was lost without division.

Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, moved to strike out the words after vice president describing the cabinet officers entitled by law to succeed to the presidency.

The amendment was lost, 50 to 67.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Indiana, offered as an amendment a new section providing that any person who should kill the president-elect or vice president-elect should suffer death. He argued that more danger to the republic might follow the assassination of the president-elect and vice president-elect before their inauguration than the assassination of the president or vice president while in office.

Mr. Ray declared that the amendment was clearly unconstitutional; that the courts had decided that the president elect, until inaugurated, was simply a private citizen.

The amendment was defeated.

Mr. Gilbert, of Kentucky, offered an amendment to the section providing for the protection of foreign ambassadors or ministers not only in the United States, but "any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof." It was lost.

Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, moved to strike out this section. His motion was defeated, 59 to 72.

TELL OF VOLCANOES' WORK

SCIENTISTS RETURN FROM WEST INDIES.

Prof. Hill Says There Was No Need for Heavy Loss of Life at St. Pierre.

New York, June 7.—Captain Barry, of the cruiser Dixie, just returned from bearing supplies to the volcano victims in the West Indies, said regarding conditions in the islands:

"Conditions are not as bad on Martinique as on St. Vincent, because on Martinique the people are fairly well supplied with everything and there is no danger in future eruptions. Only a small area of twelve square miles has been devastated, but on St. Vincent the destruction extends over a third of the island. Plantations, orchards and everything have been ruined and the means of subsistence has been taken away from the people and thousands have been left in need of some kind of support."

Of the scientific results of the Dixie's expedition, Prof. I. C. Russell, of the University of Michigan, said:

"The overheated rocks, bursting against the water near the base of the mountain, caused superheated steam and burst the mountain open."

PROF. HILL'S VIEWS.

Prof. Hill, who investigated the outbreak for the government, said:

"Months will be required for the final scientific decisions. We have had an eminently satisfactory trip. The rocks and volcanic matter which we have collected must be cut into sections and analyzed before we can give extended opinions for publication."

Prof. Hill advocates the establishment of scientific observatories in the Caribbean district for the detection of the imminence of volcanic eruptions, so that human life may be saved—a scientific institution easily and economically founded and maintained.

"I think Pelee will smoke and remain active for months," said Prof. Russell. "It probably will be a case of Vesuvius again. I hardly think Pelee will smoulder and blow up in one gigantic explosion. I believe it will quiet down and gradually die away. A new lake will form in the crater, tropical verdure will grow where there is now nothing but black, gray ash.

"The people will build new villages and towns at its foot and again hold their holiday picnics on its side and Pelee will remain quiet for probably fifty or sixty years. There should be at least a seismograph in every volcano—an instrument which records the tremors of the earth.

"It was operated by the Chinese centuries ago. The instrument would give the populace ample warning.

NEEDLESS LOSS OF LIFE.

"The seismograph at Vesuvius for thirty-five years has done satisfactory and valuable work.

"There is absolutely no occasion for such tremendous loss of life as occurred at St. Pierre.

"I do not think Fort De France is in much danger from the volcano, but I do think she is in danger from a tidal wave. In volcanic districts these tidal waves are of frequent occurrence. They are caused by a sudden upheaval of the sea bottom.

"In case of such an upheaval Fort De France surely would be wiped out.

"As a safety position from tidal waves, Morne Rouge is finely situated, as it is built on a high ridge. It is about the only town in the volcanic belt so situated."

BLONDIN IS INDICTED.

Boston, Mass., June 7.—An indictment for murder in the first degree was reported today against J. Wilfrid Blondin, of this city. It is charged that Blondin murdered his wife in Boston and transported her body to Chelmsford, where it was found hidden in a brush-heap. The head had been removed and this was found in another spot some distance from where the body was discovered.

LIGHTNING CAUSES FIRES

FORT WAYNE VISITED BY HEAVY THUNDERSTORM.

Two Large Barns South of the City Burn—One of the Most Violent Storms in Years.

A thunderstorm of unusual violence passed over the city last evening and although not as serious in point of damage as previous storms this season, it was one of the most violent that has visited this section in years. The storm broke a little before 7 and raged for several hours. The lightning was very brilliant, each flash being followed by a crashing peal of thunder, and torrents of rain fell, flooding the streets on a level with the curb stones. For a few minutes considerable hail fell in the north and northwest sections of the city, the hail stones being as large as peas.

BARNS ARE BURNED.

Two large barns on the Bluffton road, south of the city, were burned to the ground while the storm was at its height. One of the barns, belonging to Fred Treu, of Wayne township, was struck by lightning and within five minutes the structure was a seething furnace of flame. Nothing could be done to save the structure, and but little of the contents were saved. An alarm was turned in from Leith and Calhoun streets, but the barn had been destroyed before the engines arrived.

A barn belonging to Mrs. Laramore, near the Treu barn, caught fire and in spite of the efforts of a bucket brigade was also destroyed. All the cattle, farm implements and other stock were saved. A large quantity of feed was burned. The loss will be about $2,000, with about $1,500 insurance.

A small barn in the rear of the residence of William Kaech, on Oakland street, was struck about 9 o'clock. The roof was burned off the barn and some hay and feed was destroyed. The loss is about $200. The department was summoned to St. Paul's church, which was thought to have been struck, but no fire could be discovered.

FRIGHTENED THE LADIES.

An interurban traction car left this city last night for Huntington a short time before the storm broke and had reached the open prairie by the time the clouds were cracking with lurid lightning and blazing with the reverberations of the heavy atmosphere, tumbling and colliding in the vacua thus created. A half dozen ladies were among the passengers and were badly frightened; and when the car stopped because the power had been shut off at Huntington for the sake of safety, they were almost panic stricken. The conductor took down the trolley pole and the passengers were as safe under a net-work of telegraph wires to catch and scatter the electric bolts, as if they had been in their own homes. The railroad men say that there can be no safer defense against lightning than under a wire large enough to carry off the fluid to the ground in safety, after the manner of a lightning rod. And yet the women were so much alarmed that they took the first car back to Fort Wayne, following the trail of the storm rather than to flee from it to the west.

THE STORM DIVIDED.

The rain fell in torrents in Aboit township, but farmers living in that direction say that the storm seemed to divide before it reached the city and to pass both to the north and to the south in heavier volume than right over the city. There was not much wind and while some slight damage was done by the immense downfall of water, none was recorded by the wind.

The pupils at a school house near the Bullard farm in Aboit township expected to hold their graduating exercises last night, but owing to the storm, postponement was found to be necessary. The event will occur Monday night. The bell of the school house was rung, but the rain was coming down its heaviest and nobody cared to be exposed to the elements in such profusion, especially as the white dresses of the graduates and of the smaller children would have been sadly marred by the exposure. One child, whose living hours, in imagination by day and in dreams by night, had been set upon the occasion, would not be comforted until the horse and buggy were prepared and she was driven to the school house. It was found locked and sealed against the elements and she was then convinced that the affair would not go off without her presence. Her white dress was the worse for the exposure, but will undoubtedly be in fine shape again for Monday night.

INEFFICIENCY OF OFFICERS

BRITISH MILITARY EDUCATION SADLY DEFICIENT.

Committee Makes Report, Disclosing a Most Lamentable State of Affairs.

London, June 7.—The report of the committee on military education and training, issued today, furnishes the strongest official corroboration of the inefficiency of the officers of the British army. The committee's report, which is based on the evidence of the officers themselves, from the commander-in-chief downwards, fills forty-eight printed pages with caustic criticism of the existing system. The witnesses were unanimous in saying that the junior officers were lamentably deficient in military knowledge, the desire to acquire knowledge and in zeal. The committee finds that the young officers will not work unless compelled to do so, that "keenness is out of fashion," and that "it is not correct form." The committee declares that many officers do not possess common elementary education, and plaintively protest that officers ought "at least to be able to express themselves clearly and concisely in their own language." The report condemns the system of both Woolwich and Sandhurst, where education is "far from satisfactory, the instructors having no inducement to teach the cadets, still less to work."

With the view of diminishing the expenses of officers belonging to cavalry regiments, the report recommends that polo tournaments, regimental coaches and the keeping of hounds be forbidden.

Perhaps the penultimate paragraph is the most important of all. "So long as mediocrity is permitted to pass muster," says the committee, "and signal ability meets with no substantial recognition, it is useless to hope for any valuable results from verbal amendments to the regulations. Nothing but inducements, in the shape of certain reward for good work, either in peace or war, can raise the standard of knowledge through the commissioned ranks."

The committee, therefore recommends an "honest system of promotion by merit, following upon tests honestly conducted and honestly reported on."

The report plainly hints that officers can hardly be expected to work so long as the present system of advancement, through social influence, is in vogue, or so long as efficiency has nothing whatever to do with the selection of officers for desirable appointments.

The committee recommends, among other things, that more commissions be offered to the colonies and that officers be compelled to know either French or German.

Conklin's Microbe Destroyer!

'TIS EASY TO TAKE

This is what your neighbor has to say about this wonderful medicine. We can give you lots of such testimonials. Conklin's Microbe Destroyer positively removes all impurities of the blood and makes a healthy body.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 27, 1902.

CONKLIN MICROBE CO., Chicago, Ill.:

Sirs:—I have been sick for nearly a year and have doctored with several doctors, but got worse until last January, when I had to stop work. I had a bad cough, could not eat, and continued to get weaker until I commenced to take "Conklin's Microbe Destroyer," and before taking all of the first bottle I commenced to gain strength, my cough is not near so bad and I eat heartily. It certainly is a great medicine and has done me lots of good. Yours truly,

BERT RICHMOND, 356 Melita St.

It cures Catarrh, Eczema, Tetter, Cancer, Scrofula, Boils, Pimples, Old Sores, Rheumatism, Stomach Trouble and all diseases that come from impure or impoverished blood.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, June 7.—Firm cables from all foreign markets and continued wet and threatening weather pushed grain prices up again today at the opening. July wheat started ⅝c to ¾c higher at 72⅛c to 72⅜c and advanced to 72⅝@72¾c. Shorts covered freely through fears that the wet weather would hurt the harvest. Outside markets were slightly higher and good buying was reported generally, although the trade was not large. There was practically no selling pressure early and July held its top figures well. Local receipts were 7 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 244 cars, making a total for the three points of 251 cars, against 392 cars for two days last week and 439 a year ago.

Support in wheat continued fair and July sold to 72¾c. Liquidation brought a dip to 72c, but the close was firm, ⅝c up, at 72⅛c.

July corn started ½@¾c to ⅝@¾c higher at 63c to 63¼c. Receipts were large, but the percentage of contract stuff was small. Cars here today were 337. The principal strength came from higher cables and wet weather in corn region. Commission houses and shorts were the best buyers. For the first hour prices fluctuated narrowly between opening figures.

July corn dipped to 62⅞c on light trading, but rallied and closed firm, ½@⅝c up, at 63⅛c.

Oats were strong again at the opening, although without a heavy trade. Cash business still continued good, offerings were light, commission houses bought fairly and the other grains lent some strength. July opened ⅜c up at 39¾c, sold at 39⅞c and steadied after some liquidation near 39½c. Receipts were better at 112 cars.

Manipulation again dominated provisions. After yesterday's advance through artificial buying by packers' brokers, the same crowd tried to unload stuff on the strength of a higher holding market at the yards. Prices advanced a little early but trade was very light and little stuff was wanted. July pork opened unchanged to 5c up at $17.40 to $17.45, advanced ¢ to $17.47½ and eased again to opening figures. July lard started unchanged at $10.25 and sold at $10.27½@10.30, and July ribs 2½c up at $10.17½.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, June 7.—Opening dealings in stocks were so small and the drift of prices so insignificant that no distinct tone was disclosed. International Pump fell away ⅜. In the majority of cases changes did not exceed ⅛.

Fluctuations became a trifle wider and were both upwards and downwards. Amalgamated and Canadian Pacific showed considerable firmness while St. Paul, Reading and Norfolk and Western were depressed. Westinghouse Electric dropped 4 points. Near 11 o'clock there was a slightly higher level of prices all around.

The market was almost stagnant with a drooping tendency. Canadian Pacific fell to a shade under last night. Pressed Steel Car preferred rose 1 and Des Moines and Fort Dodge, after an inactive period of over a year, sold at an advance of 20 points. Canadian Pacific stiffened again to the best. The closing was idle and steady.

THE MONEY MARKET.

MORE THAN 1,000 ARE KILLED

HALF OF ANOTHER GUATEMALAN CITY DESTROYED.

Volcanic Eruption That Caused Great Loss of Life—Country Terror-Stricken.

San Francisco, June 7.—Upward of one thousand lives have been lost and half of the city of Ratalhulen, Guatemala, has been destroyed by the eruption of Tacana volcano, according to advices received here today by the Chilian steamer, Palena, from Valparaiso and way ports. Ratalhulen lay several miles back from Champerico, on the coast, and it was at the latter city that news of the disaster was secured.

Earthquakes, it was said, had continued at short intervals every day since the great disturbance of April 18, when the city of Quezaltenango was destroyed. The shocks have been of sufficient strength to keep the residents of the entire region in a state of terror and little has been done to repair the damage done them and the volcanic eruptions. Pumice stone and ashes thrown from the crater of Tacana have spread a thin coating over the territory surrounding Champerico. A few days before the Palena left Champerico an earthquake destroyed a small town near Guatemala City, but its name was not learned.

THERE IS HOPE FOR EVEN SUCH AS HAVE GLIMPSES OF THE DARK VALLEY.

Paine's Celery Compound

The Medicine that Saves Life and Restores Lost Health.

A merciful Providence still keeps the spark of life in thousands of wasted and feeble bodies. The fitful, flickering spark will burn with decreased power as the hot days of summer approach. There is still hope for even those who are now catching glimpses of the dark valley. The use of Paine's Celery Compound during the month of June will at once arrest the progress of wasting diseases. It will strengthen the weak and inflamed nerves, rid the body of morbid waste material, make the blood pure, and give healthy action to the stomach, liver and kidneys. Nervousness, sleeplessness, rheumatism, neuralgia, liver and kidney troubles quickly vanish when Dr. Phelps' marvelous prescription is used. Mrs. Alice Terry Wood, 515 Highland street, Helena, Mont., says:—

"I can say to all that I believe Paine's Celery Compound a great medicine. I should have been in my grave if it hadn't been for the wonderful curing virtues of the Compound, and I can say to all who are tired and run down, to try it, and they will find relief at once. My trouble was general weakness, lack of appetite and heart trouble. I have taken four bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and feel like a new person. Now I have a good appetite, do all of my work and feel well."

ELECTRIC WORKS PLACES ORDER FOR TOOLS.

INCREASING POWER PLANT

JENNEY ADDS TWO BOILERS TO ITS BATTERY.

NEW B. OF R. T. AUXILIARY

BELLEVUE LADIES WILL INSTITUTE A LODGE.

The Fort Wayne Electric company has placed an order with the Niles Tool company, of Hamilton, Ohio, for six specially designed machines for the shops in this city, delivery to be made within the next sixty days. These machines will be immense affairs and when they are in operation they will open the way for additional lathe and drill machines, some of which have already been ordered, and afford the company an opportunity to increase its working force commensurate with the business of the factory. Supt. A. E. Barnes has been engaged for several months in rearranging the machinery in the factory and has succeeded in making room sufficient in the present plant for all the machinery necessary for the increase mentioned. At present there are over 700 names on the company's pay rolls and before the close of the present year this number will reach 900 and possibly 1,000. Judging from the fact that there is always a skilled workman ready to take a position at this shop when opportunity occurs, while some other establishments employing skilled labor are short of men, it is safe to say that the Electric works is a good place to work and that the wages are equal, if not greater, than at some other places. Work upon the new power plant is progressing satisfactorily. The company this morning sent out a 400 kilowat dynamo, 8,000 light capacity, consigned to parties in Atlantic City, N. J. The shipping department was the only part of the great works in operation today, the main portion of the working force being on an excursion to Rome City.

PLANNING EXCURSIONS.

As the summer season advances and the school vacation term draws near, the people who are fortunate enough to afford a pleasure trip are laying plans of that kind. This year some of the public school teachers will make a pilgrimage to the Shrine of Ste. Anne De Beaupre, going chiefly by steamer and being on the water nearly two weeks. They will visit Niagara, Toronto, Montreal and Quebec en route, and spend an entire day in making the trip down the St. Lawrence, and pass through the Thousand Islands. Six of the teachers have already engaged transportation for this trip. There will also be cheap rates and many opportunities to go to other summer resorts, though the railroads have not yet made announcement of rates nor gotten out their advertisement matter The Nickel Plate will have its annual excursion to Niagara Falls August 19, and will, no doubt, take a big crowd out of this territory. The passenger department of this road is at work upon other events to come off during the summer and announcement will be made later. Next Thursday the Nickel Plate will take an excursion party into Cleveland. The excursion will be under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen of Findlay and it is expected that there will be over 600 people in the party.

ELECTRICIANS' EXCURSION.

The annual excursion of the employes of the Fort Wayne Electric company to Rome City this morning was all that the management could desire in a numerical sense and socially, though there could have been an improvement in weather conditions. The main portion of the excursionists went to the resort on a special train of six cars which left the depot at 8 o'clock. On this train there were 363 persons, and 48 went up to Rome City on No. 7, an hour later, making the total excursionists on the morning trains 411. About fifty expect to go to the resort on the afternoon train, swelling the total number of excursionists to very near the 500 mark. Shober's full band and orchestra accompanied the excursionists and discoursed sweet music en route and played for the dancing at the park. The crew of the special train was made up as follows: Conductor Murphy, Engineer Thomas McGuire, Fireman Al Bitsburger, Brakemen A. M. Hall, George Hotaling and A. Moore.

DAMAGED BY STORM.

The electric storm which swept over the city last evening was less damaging to the telegraph and lighting departments of the railways than might have been expected from a storm of that proportions. The lightning struck an electric light pole on Lafayette street upon which are the wires leading from the power station of the Pennsylvania to the shops and offices, and put out the lights in a portion of the shops. Those in the roundhouse were out three hours, when repairs were made. Several telegraph poles were also struck by lightning and the fuses were blowed out, but the service was not materially disturbed by the stroke. No damage on other lines has been reported.

WILL INSTITUTE NEW LODGE.

Mrs. Cassie Clark, organizer for the Ladies' auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, assisted by the ladies of Loyal lodge, No. 85, will institute an auxiliary at Bellevue next Tuesday. The ladies will leave for that city on Nickel Plate train No. 4, at 7:55 Monday evening, and will be met by a committee of the new lodge at Bellevue upon the arrival of the train at that place. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has a good lodge at Bellevue and there is every prospect for a large auxiliary there also.

GONE TO SPRINGFIELD.

General Foreman William Yergens and Machine Foreman C. A. Agster, of the Wabash shops, went to Springfield, Ill., this morning for a two days' visit with the railway officials and friends. There are many former Fort Wayne men employed in the Wabash shops at Springfield and a visit there is usually a pleasant event to a Fort Wayne man. Messrs. Yergens and Agster will exchange notes in a business way with the shop foremen at Springfield also, to the benefit of all concerned.

WILL REMAIN AT LAFAYETTE.

The Lafayette Daily Courier characterizes the report that the "Monon" shops are to be moved from Lafayette to Hammond as "the work of a newspaper man for the purpose of filling space." The Courier adds that "Superintendent Parker said that if the company had purchased land in Hammond it was news to him, although the road might want ground there for big yards, but not for shops."

BRAKEMEN HURT.

W. L. Kress, a Pennsylvania yard brakeman, had his right ear split in two and his head painfully bruised yesterday by a blow from a projecting log on a passing car. Mr. Kress was standing upon a caboose at the time of the accident and he barely escaped being knocked beneath the wheels. C. O. Spencer, a road brakeman, had a knee sprained while out on his regular trip and he will be unable to work for a few days.

INCREASING BOILER PLANT.

The Bass Foundry and Machine company is making some additions to the boiler plant at the Jenney Electric Light and Power station, on Spy Run avenue. Today a 200-horse power, horizontal tubular boiler was taken out there and Monday another boiler, same capacity, will be taken there. This will make the battery nine boilers and be adequate for all purposes.

TAKING A VACATION.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. VanMeter and children have gone to a lake a short distance north of Cadillac, Mich., for a month's sojourn. Mr. VanMeter is a Nickel Plate conductor. Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Markle have gone to Port Huron, Mich., for a month's visit with their parents. Mr. Markle is a Nickel Plate fireman.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

E. P. Galland, H. W. Arlin, J. Richards and Ben Bowers, Pittsburg shopmen, are off duty on account of sickness.

C. W. Kruse, a sealer; M. P. Branson, a caller, and A. B. Maires and E. C. Webb, truckmen, of the Pittsburg freight house, are off duty on account of sickness.

Supt. D. F. Crawford went to Chicago this morning on business for the Pennsylvania motive power department.

President E. T. Jeffries, of the Denver and Rio Grande, has transferred his headquarters from Denver to New York.

Engineer W. R. Kilgore and Passenger Brakeman A. B. Tousley, of the Pittsburg, are off duty on account of sickness.

Henry Garland, the retiring general western passenger agent of the Wabash, will make a trip around the world in the interest of his health.

The Nickel Plate had a special train from Hibbard to Chicago last Thursday, carrying the Culver Military cadets and their friends to that city.

Charles McCoy, machinist, resumed his position in the Wabash shops this morning, after an absence of several days on account of an injured eye.

William Bell, a street car motorman, resumed his run on the Hanna street line this morning after an absence of two weeks with an injured hand.

Machinist Francis Burgess, of the Wabash, will soon visit his brother, foreman of a blacksmith shop at Danville, Ill., whom he has not seen for several years.

Paymaster Crawford, who has just completed his twenty-second year on the Vandalia, has paid out over $32,000,000. At present the Vandalia has 3,200 persons on its pay rolls.

Machinist J. E. Justus, of the Wabash shops, will spend Sunday with his family in Toledo. Machinist C. T. Blackburn, of the same shop, will visit his family in Huntington over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson and their two children left this morning, over the Pittsburg, for Chicago, and thence to California. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Noble were passengers on the same train, bound for Idaho.

Patrick Lanigan, who has been looking after the safety of the people who cross the Pennsylvania and the Wabash tracks on Calhoun street for several weeks, will return to his old place at the shop gate Monday morning.

When the work of ballasting the Fort Wayne branch of the Lake Erie and Western road is completed, the company will shorten the running time of all passenger trains. An additional train may also go into service.

William Madison called at the Pittsburg shops this morning to see his old comrades. Mr. Madison was foreman of the lathe department of the shops for many years. He has been retired on account of failing health.

J. J. Hill announces that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy company would cease extensions for this season when the Great Falls line is completed. This decision is the result of the recent inspection trip over the lines.

The Boston base ball club passed through the city, over the Wabash, en route to St. Louis, this morning. Chick Stahl, who was with the party, alighted from the train and greeted a few old friends who happened to be at the depot.

Edward Dickmeyer, son of Blacksmith Dickmeyer, of the Pittsburg shops, is improving after an illness of eleven weeks with inflammatory rheumtism. The young man was employed at the Fruit House before he was taken ill.

Engine 417, which was pulling Wabash train No. 8, "fell down" at Huntington this morning and her place was taken by engine 817, which took the train to Montpelier. The train was about a half-hour late in reaching this city.

C. A. Scott has moved his cigar stand from Calhoun, opposite the Y. M. C. A. reading room, to the building adjoining Hotel Hayes, on Brooklyn avenue. Mr. Scott is the collector for the local lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Engineer and Mrs. W. H. Gates will arrive home on Pennsylvania train No. 9 this evening. Mrs. Gates was in attendance at the Ladies' auxiliary and B. of L. E. convention at Norfolk, and was met at Gallion, O., by her husband, where they spent a couple days with their daughter, Mrs. Green.

The Pittsburg and Lake Erie machinists have been notified that their pay has been advanced, dating back to May 1, to $2.75 per day from $2.35 per day. The company at first proposed to advance the pay of only the skilled machinists, but this was objected to and the advance was made general.

Charles Hans, blacksmith at the Wabash shops, will be off duty a few days. While handling some heavy pieces of iron yesterday, his right hand was caught in such manner that the nail on the little finger was cut through and a good portion of the flesh was cut also. The second and third fingers were cut and bruised.

All the embarrassments of the summer tourist have been anticipated by the passenger department of the Pennsylvania lines in a handsome book of 300 pages just issued. The book is a revelation in accurate, painstaking and exhaustive compilation, giving distances, rates and attractions, and is complete in every feature.

Machinist John Ofner has taken a position with the Pittsburg, under Foreman Hugh T. Hogan. Mr. Ofner quit the Wabash shops several weeks ago to take a position at the E. & O. shops in Garrett, but did not like that city. He then accepted service with the Pittsburg. He is a good fellow and his friends will be pleased to know that he will not leave the city.

The crew and passengers on an eastbound Pennsylvania train last night witnessed a sorrowing scene between Bourbon and Etna Green. As the train was passing lightning struck and fired a farm house and the people on the train could see, by the glare of the flames, the farmer and his family running about their home in the fruitless effort to extinguish the fire. The building and much of its contents were burned up.

Engineer Bobbie Johns engine, No. 19, on the Knox local on the Nickel Plate, is resplendent with her new coat of paint and he is justly proud of her. No. 19 received a general overhauling also while in the shops. Engine 11 is out of the shops, after general repairs, and when the tests that are now in progress are completed she will go to the eastern division of the Nickel Plate to go into the passenger service.

Indianapolis Journal: "The Wabash railroad division officials are fitting a commodious instruction room at a convenient place in Peru, and will have all gatherings of men for all purposes there. Charts will be provided explaining compound engines, air brakes, signals, etc., and blackboards will give demonstrations opportunity to carry on instructions. It is the only place of its kind to be so fitted out on the Wabash system."

TEN YEARS IN BED.

R. A. Gray, J. P., Oakville, Ind., writes: "For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys. It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a God-send to me." Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

For one week only I am authorized to take subscriptions to the Saturday Evening Post, 13 months, for $1.00, including either one of the little booklets: "Letters from a Self Made Merchant" or "Makers of Millions," which retail at 50c, but are worth their weight in gold. 350,000 Saturday Evening Posts sold every week. THIS IS A FACT

THERE IS NO QUESTION ABOUT IT, IT'S A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACTS—MADE BY A FORT WAYNE CITIZEN.

Mr. John Mooney, of No. 186 Lafayette street, Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a splendid medicine. My heart was very irregular, due to excessive tobacco using. The nervous system itself was profoundly impressed by the tobacco. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got some at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store. The medicine so toned up the nervous system and strengthened me that the heart action became steady and strong—something it has not been for a long time. I am greatly pleased with the medicine."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

FGHT OVER COURT HOUSE

A FORTY YEARS' BATTLE THAT HAS RAGED OVER THE WORST COUNTY BUILDING IN INDIANA.

Every time a stranger drops from a passenger train on the one railroad running through Kentland, Ind., and ambles northward up the main business street of the town, some citizen whose pride has become calloused through long exposure to sarcasm of the most vitriolic sort is compelled to answer the question, "Where's your court house?"

There was a day when the people of Kentland took time to apologize and explain whenever this question was put to them. But forty years of incessant repetition have robbed the joke of every bit of point it ever possessed, and now they simply nod their heads in an easterly direction and point to a dense grove of healthy maple trees growing in the center of the town.

In a remote corner of this prolific grove stands a small two-story frame building. Viewed from the front, it looks for all the world like a district school house. It is surmounted by a rickety, squatty tower, in which hangs a rusty old bell that has grown hoarse and unmelodious from long usage. The weather boarding shows the effects of almost half a century of Indiana wind and weather. It is warped and cracked and marred by deep scars which numerous coats of paint have failed to heal. The roof, too, reveals its age. Occasionally spots are visible showing the flight of cedar shingles before blasts that have been howling across its gables for more than four decades. The unimposing structure does not rise more than thirty feet above the ground and is completely overshadowed by the thrifty maples by which it is inclosed.

WORTH LITTLE BUT COST MUCH.

This building is the court house, the fountain-head of justice in Newton county. Admittedly, it is the worst court house in Indiana. Placed on the market today, it would not bring to exceed $200, and yet, during its eventful existence, the building has cost much more than many of the modern brick and stone structures that have been erected at county seat towns in various parts of the state. It is, at the same time, the poorest and one of the most expensive court houses in Indiana, and this paradoxical situation is due to a county seat fight that has been waged with relentless activity and great bitterness for more than forty years.

On June 7 the fight is to be taken up anew. Another town will, on that day, attempt to wrest the county seat from the grasp of Kentland by popular election. Every town in the county has been experimenting with this problem in one way or another since the present court house was built in the spring of 1861, yet the unsightly old building has clung to its present location, showing no evil effect from the storm going on about it, except the usual dilapidation brought on by age. In the eyes of Kentland people it is a grand old building, for so long as it stands there seems to be little likelihood of the county seat being moved, and they cling to it with much the same spirit as a drowning man grabs for a straw. Yet, it is, in a sense, an aggravated eyesore.

REFUSE TO ACCEPT FREE OFFER

There is money in the treasury of Newton county to build a court house in keeping with the general prosperity of the people, yet the spirit of jealousy runs so high that no county commissioners ever have held office who had sufficient courage to make an appropriation for the erection of such a building. What is more, Kentland has practically offered to build a court house there and turn it over to the county if the commissioners would but give their consent, but as the opposing faction always managed to hold a majority claim on the board, the offers have not met with encouraging responses. Thus the fight has gone on for forty years or more. Sometimes the field of action has been in the state legislature, again it was within the borders of the county itself, but not once during all these years has the spirit of the fighters subsided one whit, and rising generations in that region have been taught to regard the county seat question as the foremost and most burning local issue. The result of all this strife has been intense feeling and acute jealousy which two or three times every year takes a new turn and breaks out in some unexpected quarter with increased fury.

OTHER TOWNS WANT IT.

The towns that have been leading the fight against Kentland are Brook, Morocco and Goodland, and each of them for years has been nursing a favored spot on which they expected some day to erect a court house. In the general order of things they could not all build court houses for one county, and it is largely through jealousy existing between the fighting towns that Kentland has been able to retain within its borders the old-fashioned frame structure which now stands in its public square. Everybody outside of Kentland and the immediate vicinity wants the county seat moved, but on the question of location they are not so unanimous. In Brook they say, "We want it moved, but if Brook can't get it, then we see no reason why it should be taken away from Kentland." In Morocco and Goodland the same argument is heard. Consequently there is no end of the fighting and no beginning of the results.

For years the regular session of the legislature has attracted a crowd of lobbyists from Newton county, all of whom were deeply involved in the county seat question. Every town interested in the prominent issue has patterned bills after its own way of thinking, and every other town has opposed them with fully as much vigor as shown by the originators. They have fought back and forth in legislative halls until state representatives and senators have learned through intuition to beat a hasty retreat whenever the Newton county-seat question was mentioned. The bill under which they are now fighting was enacted several years ago and provides that 65 per cent of the legal voters of the county shall be necessary to removal. Taking advantage of the provisions of this act, Brook and Morocco both have held elections and each fell short of the required number of votes. The next aspiring town is Goodland, which has called an election for June 7, and is putting up a strong and persistent fight to carry the issue. The whole county is being campaigned from one end to the other and the impending election is causing more excitement than a national campaign.

NORTH END AGAINST SOUTH.

In the conflict there are two general factions, characterized as "Northenders" and "Southenders," and they are arrayed against each other for the next real epoch in this noteworthy bit of Indiana history. Each side has its enthusiastic adherents, and the county is being turned upside down by workers on one side or the other.

The chief grievance against Kentland is a geographical one. Newton county is about forty miles long, and Kentland is situated in the southwest corner, within three miles of the Benton county line and but four miles removed from Illinois. The fight began in the early spring of 1861, when the court house was built. Governor Willard appointed three locating commissioners, who, after casting about for a brief period, selected Kentland. Instantly there was an uprising. Charges of bribery and undue influence were freely made at the time, and the conflict grew so spirited that the governor himself went on a tour of inspection, but he did not alter the verdict of his commissioners. The county was then sparsely populated, but the same fighting blood that is evident today prevailed at that time.

Recalcitrant property-holders rose up in arms. Under the mistaken idea that the county seat would follow the court house, they founded a town now numbering about fifty inhabitants and called Beaver City. Here they built a court house, but it never sheltered one page of county record, and today is used for a barn. Then petitions for removal were circulated, one after another, but always with the same results. Either they did not contain the required number of signatures, or they were knocked out on some technicality. Meanwhile work on the building which was destined to be the center of so much strife went merrily on, and in June, 1861, it was finished and accepted at a total cost of $1,000. Since that time more than $100,000 has been spent in fighting for and against removal, and yet the question seems no nearer solution than when the early settlers laid out a town and built a courthouse of their own.

REFUSE TO MAKE REPAIRS.

The trials of the county officials who have been forced to put up with the accommodations offered in the present building have been many. For a long time the roof of the court house was in such condition that heavy rains easily beat their way into the court room, and it is reported that on one occasion members of a jury sitting in a case were compelled to raise their umbrellas to keep dry. The grand jury used to meet in the town calaboose."

No county building ever has been built since the court house was erected. A small frame building, facing the main street, and fitted with three cells, is utilized as a jail in conjunction with the jurisdiction of town authorities, but when prisoners are to be kept for any length of time they are hurried away to Rensselaer, the county seat of Jasper county, or to Fowler, in Benton county.

Yet meagre as these public accommodations are, they are sufficiently alluring to arouse every ounce of fighting blood in Kentland when the question of county seat removal is brought up, and there isn't a town in the county that would not be willing to pay and pay liberally for what is conceded to be the worst court house in Indiana.

DEPENDS THE VANDALS.

Latterly the corporation of London has been severely criticised for spoiling that famous woodland known as Burnham Beeches, as fine a piece of old forest as exists anywhere in the kingdom. Though there may be some ground for the outcry, there is also a good deal to be urged in defense of the clearance. It is not the beeches that have been interfered with, but the too obtrusive birches, and these have only been removed in places to permit beech saplings a chance of developing. The parts of Burnham so far "spoiled" are small in comparison with those which retain all their primitive wildness and grandeur, and it is evident that conservation and not destruction has influenced the clearances that have been made.—Newcastle (England) Weekly Chronicle.

HONESTY REWARDED.

Earl Fitzwilliam, father of the earl of that name, who died recently, was regarded as an excellent landlord. One day a farmer went to him with the complaint that the earl's fox hunters had ruined a field of wheat. The earl gave him $250 by way of payment for the damage. Later in the year the farmer returned the money, saying that the wheat had turned out well after all. Thereupon Earl Fitzwilliam drew a check for $500 and handed it to the man, saying: "This is as things should be 'twixt man and man. When your eldest son comes of age give him this and tell him how and why you got it."—Mercer Dispatch-Republican.

PHILIPPINE VOLCANOES

Of interest in connection with the recent volcanic eruptions in the West Indies, is the report of George F. Becker on the geology of the Philippine islands which has just appeared in Part III of the Twenty-first Annual Report of the United States Geological Survey, and which contains a review of everything bearing upon the geology of these islands.

The report deals in general with the geologic and economic features of the islands, from extant reports on the subject, and from studies in the field, so far as they could be carried on during the disturbed period of 1898-'99, though geologizing under arms and with a military escort was found to be more exciting than profitable.

In many respects the Philippine Islands so closely resemble the West Indies, especially in being the scene of violent past and present volcanic energy, that the chapter of the report on the active and extinct volcanoes of the archipelago is at this time particularly interesting. While it was possible to visit but few of these mountains owing to the hostility of the natives, much valuable information from local and other sources as collected. Forty-nine of the eruptive mountains were located among the islands, and their eruptions obtained. Conspicuous among them is Mt. Apo, the highest mountain in the Philippines, which rises 10,761 feet above the level of the sea. At Camiguin de Mindanao, one of the most interesting volcanoes of the group, a cone nearly 2,000 feet in height has risen since 1871 over what was formerly a lake, the basin of which was presumably an ancient crater. Mayon, or the volcano of Albay, is said to be the most symmetrically beautiful cone in the world; and the famous Taal volcano, situated on a small volcanic island in the lake of Bonbon, is readily accessible from Manila. The accounts of the eruptions of these and other volcanoes of the group bear a striking resemblance to those of the recent outburst of Mt. Pelee in Martinique. Of an eruption which occurred in the year 1641 near Jolo the report quotes: "the darkness and atmospheric disturbances were so great that the people of Jolo could not perceive whence came the stuff which fell from heaven upon them." And in one of the numerous eruptions at Taal, loud detonations like discharges of artillery were heard, incandescent stones were thrown out, and a great fire ran like a river across the island. The fire then shifted into lake Bonbon throwing up water and ashes in immense masses. "The water grew hot and black, fish were strewn on the beaches as if they had been cooked, and the air was so full of sulphurous smells and the odor of dead fishes that the inhabitants sickened." At one of the eruptions of Albay, that in 1814, 1,200 lives are said to have been lost.

In drawing comparisons between the volcanoes of the Philippines and those of the Dutch East Indies, Mr. Becker notes that "Papandayang, in West Java, had a great eruption in 1772, destroying 40 villages. Galung Gung in 1822 destroyed 114 villages and it is some measure of the violence of the Krakatoa explosion of 1883, that over 36,000 people perished."

SOMETIMES FOIL DEATH

People Who Survive Despite Broken Necks, Holes in Brain and Other Ills.

Neither a hole in the brain nor a broken neck necessarily is a serious matter, according to the every day reports of the newspapers. A good life risk could be taken upon either by a most conservative company, only that the companies judge by the rule and not by the exception.

August Riemaher, of Hartford, Wis., Mrs. E. H. Wilder, of Wilton, Pa., and Thomas Degolyer, of Indianapolis, Ind., are living examples of the insignificance of a mere broken neck.

Riemaher fell and broke his neck on April 16. A physician put his neck in a cast and the patient is accused of being able to "rubber-neck" now with all his old-time ease and confidence. In the case of Mrs. Wilder, who is the wife of the postmaster of the village of Wilton, Pa., she was going down a flight of stairs when she tripped and fell to the bottom. She was picked up unconscious, but after a consultation of doctors the dislocated vertebra were set and she is recovering. Thomas Degolyer, the Indianapolis drayman, was an hour and a half on the operating table and he is partially paralyzed because of the shock of his fall. But his physicians say that he will get well.

As to the small matter of a hole in the brain, a three-and-half-year-old son of Joseph Wagner, near Wautoma, Wis., is a striking example. The child's brother, fifteen years old, was playing with a rifle, when the weapon was discharged, sending the ball through the little one's head. A skiagraph showed that the bullet had passed from the right temple back, lodging against the bone at the base of the skull. But he will get well.

MENDED HOLE IN HIS SKULL.

Albert Henry, an Indian from Iowa, got drunk at La Crosse, Wis., and proceeded to walk over the railroad bridge at that place, choosing a dark night for the trip. When Albert struck bottom in a hard place he still had nerve left to hunt up a doctor. The doctor found a hole in Albert's skull as big as a half-dollar, in which Albert's think tank was badly exposed. But Albert is using the tank quite as well as ever he did before the fall.

Miss Janet Appleton, of Arcola, Ill., went to Alton a short time ago to have a pin extracted from the base of her right lung. Several years before she had swallowed the thing, and as it was nearly three inches long, it had given her much pain. The pin was found lodged in the lung near the diaphragm and was extracted through an incision in her side.

Alonzo Dickson, of Logansport, Ind., had suffered several years with something variously diagnosed as tuberculosis, chronic dyspepsia and catarrh of the stomach. Some of the best physicians had treated him ineffectually. In a fit of coughing the other day, however, three grains of wheat were raised in the effort, each of the grains having sprouted while in his bronchial tubes. Then Dickson recalled that he had first begun to suffer after having helped thrash a wheat crop several years ago.

NUMBER 13 AND A TOOTH.

Dying of an ulcerated tooth, Archie Wallace, of La Crosse, left a legacy of superstitious dread among his friends regarding the number 13. Wallace was employed on the Milwaukee's new steel bridge and the last pay check that he received was numbered 13. He was the thirteenth man on the pay roll, and it was just thirteen days after he received the check that he was troubled with the tooth. His death thirteen days after the first attack has left a score of his acquaintances too superstitious to pick up a $13 bill if they should see one in the road.

A little daughter of C. E. Johnson, of Paxton, Ill., holds the record for sneezing, in her vicinity at least. She began at 6 o'clock on Sunday morning and she kept it up without a break until 5 o'clock on Monday morning, when physicians relieved her. When relief came the child was in a state of collapse and it was several days before she recovered.

Mrs. Philo M. Pierce, of Beloit, Wis., had lost her power of speech three months ago, when suddenly the other day her husband was seized with a dangerous illness. When he saw that death was near he said to her that he would be content to go if only he might hear her voice again. In a moment the long-lost speech came back to her tongue and from that time she has been able to talk as if nothing had ever happened.

HYPNOTIZED HIMSELF.

At St. Mary's hospital in Quincy the other day A. J. Clark surprised several surgeons by putting himself into a hypnotic sleep just before they were to operate upon his injured hand. Clark, a well borer, had torn the flesh from the back of his hand, and he objected to taking either chloroform or ether while it should be dressed. He was told that the operation would require at least an hour, and after being assured of the time necessary he said he would put himself to sleep for just that length of time. Then the wondering doctors looked on, while, rubbing his head with his uninjured palm, Clark dropped into a child-like sleep. All the tendons in the hand had been strained and the skin was in tatters, and the doctors cut and sewed and tied until the time limit was almost up. Then with the job complete they sat back to await the man's awakening. He was lying like a log, but at the minute the hour was up his eyes opened, he stretched himself and finally sat up, perfectly rational. He had heard nothing and felt nothing from the time sleep came upon him.

MINUS MANY OF HIS BONES.

As a full graduate from the knife of the surgeon, George Burns, of Rome, N. Y., seems to have few bones left which may be cut away as a possible afterthought. He has lost the following portions of his anatomy:

The entire bony vault of the skull, the top of his head and the entire left side down to the ear being covered with a silver plate. The scars are plain, and by placing the hand on the side of his head the points of the plate may be felt where they come in contact with the upper jaw. Five ribs were removed by the surgeons from his left side, and a portion of his right hip has been removed. Both of his legs were fractured in two places, both elbow joints are missing, so that he can twist his forearms in all shapes, and the right kneecap is gone. Owing to the absence of the ribs on the left side his heart was moved over to the right side for protection, and on that side the pulse beats of the heart are plainly felt. Imbedded in his breastbone is a bullet which could not be removed on account of its too close proximity to the main artery. He is blind in his left eye, but this fact cannot be noticed. Burns is a veteran of the United States navy of 1861-64.

THE SHORTEST NOVEL.

"The Transgressors, a Story of a Great Sin," by Francis A. Adams, is a political novel of the twentieth century. It appears in two forms; one a novel of 250 words, the other in 100,000 words, says The Book Lover.

In the library of congress at Washington copies of the 250-word novel are on file. This miniature novel was written, set up, printed and dispatched to Washington in the marvelously short space of six hours.

Mr. Adams was in Philadelphia recently superintending the publication of "The Transgressors." He received word from his city that a pirated version of his novel, built from a synopsis that had been surreptitiously obtained, was being offered for publication.

He immediately condensed his novel into 250 words, had it printed and sent to Washington. This made his copyright complete.

According to the copyright law, it is necessary for an author to file in Washington two copies of his printed book. Until this is done all that he can do is to protect his title.

The body of the story can be stolen bodily and printed under another title and the author has no redress if the copyright is not completed.

By the promptitude with which the little novel was sent to the library of congress, the chapters, scenes and characters of the novel in its amplified form were at once protected.

This method of protecting authorship has never been tried before. It opens a positive and speedy course for authors and dramatists to guard their rights.

The unique novel contains thirty-three chapters, is divided into four books and printed on pages 3 by 4 inches. It makes a book of twelve pages. It has a cover, title page, index of chapters and book headings similar in every respect except size to the 350-page novel of which it is a minature.

"The Transgressors" is a romance that deals with the trust problem and the fortunes of a presidential candidate.

WILL BE SWALLOWED UP.

Inverness, the capital of the Highlands, is threatened with a terrible calamity, according to Dr. Davidson, of Birmingham, an authority in seismology. It is known to geologists that Inverness occupies a most interesting position at the outlet of the great crack, or crevasse, in the geological formation of the northern part of the island, which, as the Caledonian canal, cuts the country in two. He warns the inhabitants of Inverness to be prepared for earthquakes periodically. The earth's crust in the Inverness district is gradually slipping seawards, and Loch Ness (one of the chain of lakes which form the canal), in a few hundreds of thousands of years will be part of the sea.—Pearson's Weekly.

The purchase of 25,000 head of cattle at one time was the transaction of a Texas man recently. It is said that 25 trains were required to transport them.

FREDERICK AND WASHINGTON

MUTUAL ADMIRATION UNQUESTIONED, BUT TRADITION OF SWORD RESTS ON SHADOWY FOUNDATION.

It may be urged that is is not a proper thing for a republic to accept from a monarchy and set up in its national capital a statue of a king; it may be urged in this instance, where the king is Frederick the Great, of Prussia, that he did nothing for this country, and it may be urged also that Louis XVI., of France, did, and that we have some reason then for setting up his statue; but when all these arguments are threshed over, proven to the satisfaction of those who offer them, and apparently settled, the real reason why a bronze of Frederick the Great should prove acceptable is the great admiration Frederick and Washington had for each other.

That Frederick's bust occupied a place of honor in Washington's home is unquestioned. This was not given to our immortal president and general; was not placed in his hands in such a way that courtesy would prompt paying it some honor. It was ordered by him personally, paid for and placed in its niche of esteem in 1773, long before Frederick the Great had ever dreamed that there was such a soldier on the face of this green globe as Washington, the colonial, who thus testified at a considerable financial cost to himself the high regard in which he held the Prussian monarch. Six great generals and monarchs were Washington's especial heroes; all six of them he honored by placing their busts in his home; Frederick was the only one who was contemporary with him, and to Frederick's bust was accorded the particular place of honor above them all, the place in the drawing room, the most public position in the house, where it could scarcely fail to fall within the range of vision of all those who entered. So high was Washington's regard for Frederick that the bust went with him wherever he went, to each of his several homes; from Mount Vernon to New York, to Philadelphia, and back again to Mount Vernon, where it was when he died.

Turning to Frederick's side of this, what do we find? Many open and avowed acts of friendship and all that sort of thing? No; but we do find that in those dark days of 1777 he declared that Washington's campaign in New Jersey from December 25, 1776, to January 4, 1777, was the most brilliant ever conducted in the world's history. Not many in this country and few in Europe would have made that assertion or would have believed it. Why should our hearts not warm a little, therefore, to the old king who could see our first great citizen as we see him, as the world now sees him, and frankly state what he thought at the time?

Concerning the stories of his gift of a sword to Washington, of the gift of a portrait and of the correspondence carried on between them, it must be admitted that there is so much haze around them it is hard to unravel facts. Tradition has it that Frederick sent a beautiful sword to Washington with the inscription graven upon it, "From the oldest general in the world to the greatest." The New York state library authorities own a sword of Washington's, the sword he wore most frequently when in New York city, a plain sword with a hilt and chain of polished steel, ornamented with steel beads, and the claim has been made that this was the sword given by Frederick, but the claim was manifestly absurd on its very face. The sword is too plain for a gift; it is almost cheap, and is devoid of any inscription at all, when in nearly every instance such things are always placed on gift swords. M. D. Conway, who attempted to explode this sword story in an elaborate treatise in the Century ten years ago, accepted this claim and built all his arguments around this sword. But it appears perfectly clear that if Frederick ever gave a sword to Washington it was the one selected by Bushrod Washington from his uncle's collection after his death. This sword is now at Mount Vernon, and when it was in good condition it was certainly a fairly good gift for a monarch to make. Its hilt was of silver gilt, handsomely chased; its scabbard of fine black leather, mounted with gold, and the blade of the best tempered steel had on one side the inscription in gold inlaid letters "Recti Fac Etice" (do what is right), and on the other "Neminem Timeas" (fear no man). All the traditions of the Frederick legend cluster around this sword. Next to his service sword, this was the one Washington appeared to value the most. He wore it nearly always on formal occasions, during his incumbency of the presidential chair. Apparently none knew how it came into Washington's possession. It does not figure among his properties until after 1780, the year in which the legend has it the gift was made.

At Bushrod Washington's death the sword passed to his brother, George Corbin Washington, from whom it descended to his son, Col. Lewis William Washington, in 1854. Col. Washington's home was at Bel Air, Halltown, Harper's Ferry, and at the time of John Brown's raid that worthy conceived the idea of securing this sword to use in his undertaking, and it is significant that he wanted it because "it was the sword given to Washington by Frederick the Great." He purloined the sword, but it was recovered later. During the civil war the precious relic was placed in the humble dwelling of a cotter named Odin for safety, and here it was found years afterward in a deplorable condition. The scabbard was almost entirely gone, the gold band from its top and a plate on top of the hilt missing, and the blade so rusted that it was scarcely possible to decipher the inscriptions on it. Who knows but what that famous sentence, "From the oldest general in the world to the greatest," might not have been graven on the band missing from the scabbard or on the plate that once adorned the crest of the hilt.

The New Jersey Journal of August 9, 1780, a copy of which is now in possession of the New York Historical society, brings another alleged gift to Washington from Frederick, and with it another origin for the sentence. In this newspaper appears an item to the effect that Gen. Washington had just received from the monarch a handsome autographed portrait of the king, with an accompanying message stating that it was "From the oldest general in Europe to the greatest on earth." And with this announcement is printed an account of Frederick stating to one of his generals that "This noble chief has encountered every embarrassment, has surmounted untold difficulties and thereby stands entitled to such honors as conquest, fame and magnanimity only can give." No portrait given to the general by the king is now known to exist.

WHAT ROBINSON KNOWS.

Mr. Robinson, of Indiana, is becoming an accomplished scholar of the Kanaka language, as spoken in the islands of the mid-Pacific. He converses somewhat in that tone when he meets Delegate Robert Wilcox, his close friend, to whom he is an adviser in many things political.

Notwithstanding all this, the Hoosier hit his linguistic abilities under a bushel till late last week, when he and Governor Powers, of Maine, as a sub-committee, reported a plan they had hit upon for the apportionment of territorial senators for short and long terms. Quite to the surprise of Chairman Knox and others about the long table, Mr. Robinson showed great familiarity with Kanaka names. He spoke readily and correctly such words as "Maui," "Wahiki," "Oahu," "Kalanokoil," "Kauuhu," "Wakupauhu," and "Kahilina."

That let the secret out, and not only displayed Mr. Robinson's learning in the musical language the brown people speak in Hawaii, but likewise his knowledge of the names of public men and places in the far-off territory.—Washington Post.

BULL COST $9,100.

Speaking of "bulling the market," Prince Ito monopolized the Chicago Exchange recently. He spoke never a word, made not a sign, but he sent stock up with a jump. It was Ito stock the prince sent up, and the bidding was all on his valuable self.

Ito is a famous Angus bull, "king of the beef breeds" and champion of the world. In the auction ring at the amphitheater of Dexter park, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, the Prince brought $9,100, the largest amount ever paid for a bull in this country.

His owner, M. A. Judy, of Williamsport, Ind., was justly proud of the beast, and felt little called on to enumerate his good points. A short history of Ito was given before the bidding commenced, and the pedigree made the eyes of the breeders glisten.

The Prince is not homebred. He is an imported animal, coming all the way from Scotland, and is of the best Aberdeen stock. He was bred by Sir George Macpherson Grant, and was sired by the great Erica Highland Society champion, Eltham, out of a Mulben Pride of Aberdeen dam that was sired by the famous Justice.

Before he was brought to this country the Prince won the championship of the Highland Society at the royal show of Edinburg as being the purest of his breed.

CHURCH AND STATE APART

CANNOT RULE JOINTLY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Instructions to Taft—Basis for Negotiations With Vatican Submitted to Congress.

Washington, June 7.—Secretary Root has sent to the Philippine committees of the senate and house copies of the instructions given by him to Governor Taft for his guidance in dealing with the Vatican respecting the acquisition by the United States of the friars' lands in the Philippines. These instructions were exhibited yesterday by Governor Taft to the Vatican officials, and, as will be perceived from their context, served the purpose of credentials. The instructions are as follows:

"May 9, 1902.—Sir: It is now apparent that congress will not have acted upon the Philippine commission's recommendations regarding the purchase of friars' lands before the time of your departure for Manila, which cannot be longer delayed. You cannot, therefore, as we had hoped, now receive definite instructions and proceed to take such steps in the execution of specific authority from congress as should properly be taken before you return to Manila. The committees of both houses have, however, reported favorably upon the commission's recommendations, and it appears probable that congress will confirm their action.

TO AVOID DELAY.

"In view, therefore, of the critical sitation of this subject in the Philippines, and of the apparent impossibility of disposing of the matter there by negotiation with the friars themselves, the president does not feel at liberty to lose the opportunity for effective action afforded by your presence in the west. He wishes you to take the subject up tentatively with the ecclesiastical superiors who must ultimately determine the friars' course of conduct, and endeavor to reach at least a basis of negotiations along lines which will be satisfactory to them and to the Philippine government, accompanied by a full understanding on both sides of the facts and of the views and purposes of the parties to the negotiations, so that when congress shall have acted the business may proceed to a conclusion without delay.

SUBJECT TO CONGRESS.

"You are accordingly authorized, in the course of your return journey to Manila, to visit Rome and there ascertain what church authorities have the power to negotiate for and determine upon a sale of the lands of the religious orders in the Philippine islands, and if you find, as we are informed, that the officers of the church at Rome have such power and authority, you will endeavor to attain the results above indicated. Any negotiations which you may enter upon are always subject to granting of power by congress to follow the negotiations by binding action.

"In any conferences and negotiations you will bear in mind the following propositions, which are deemed to be fundamental and which should be fully and frankly stated to the other side in the negotiations:

"1. One of the controlling principles of our government is the complete separation of church and state, with the entire freedom of each from any control or interference by the other. This principle is imperative wherever American jurisdiction extends, and no modification or shading thereof can be a subject of discussion.

MUST BE SEPARATE.

"2. It is necessary to deal now with the results of establishing a government controlled by this principle in the Philippine islands, which have for centuries been governed under an entirely different system, with church and state closely united and having functions of the one exercised by agents of the other; where the church has long controlled and acted virtually as the agent of the state in the field of public instruction and public charities, and has from time to time acquired large properties held by it or by its subordinate corporations or officers for these public uses. A novel situation has been created under which the adjustment of means to ends appropriate to the former system entirely fails to produce the intended results under the new system, and the separation of church and state requires to be followed by a readjustment and rearrangement in the interests both of church and state, and for the attainment of the great ends of civil government, of education, of charity and of religion.

OBJECTS TO HOSTILITY.

"3. By reason of the separation, the religious orders can no longer perform in behalf of the state the duties in relation to public instruction and public charities formerly resting upon them, and the power which they formerly exercised, through their relations to the civil government, being now withdrawn, they find themselves the objects of such hostility on the part of their tenantry against them as landlords, and on the part of the people of the parishes against them as representatives of the former government, that they are no longer capable of serving any useful purpose for the church. No rents can be collected from the populous communities occupying their lands unless it be by the intervention of the civil government with armed force.

OTHER METHODS NECESSARY.

"Speaking generally, for several years past the friars, formerly installed over the parishes, have been unable to remain at their posts and are collected in Manila with the vain hope of returning. They will not be voluntarily accepted again by the people, and cannot be restored to their possessions except by forcible intervention on the part of the civil government, which the principles of our government forbid. It is manifest that under these conditions it is for the interest of the church, as well as of the state, that the landed proprietorship of the religious orders in the Philippine islands should cease, and that if the church wishes, as of course it does, to continue its ministration among the people of the islands, and to conduct in its own behalf a system of instruction, with which we have no desire to interfere, it should seek other agents therefor.

TO GIVE COMPENSATION.

"4. It is the wish of our government, in case congress shall grant authority, that the titles of the religious orders to the large tracts of agricultural lands which they now hold shall be extinguished, but that full an fair compensation shall be made therefor.

"5 It is not, however, deemed to be for the interests of the people of the Philippine islands that in thus transforming wholly unproductive tracts of land into money capable of productive investment, a fund should thereby be created to be used for the attempted restoration of the friars to the parishes from which they are now separated, with the consequent disturbance of law and order.

"6. The titles to the great amount of church lands and buildings in the islands, other than those of the religious orders and now apparently owned by the state, should be settled fairly.

"7. Provision should be made for ascertaining what rentals, if any, ought to be paid for convents and other church buildings which have been occupied by United States troops during the insurrection, this being, of course, subject to further specific action by congress.

SCHOOLS AND CHARITIES.

"8. The rights and obligations remaining under the various specific trusts for education and charity which are now in doubt and controversy ought to be settled by agreement, if possible, rather than by the slow and frequently disastrous processes of litigation, so that the beneficient purposes of these foundations may not fail.

"9. Your errand will not be in any sense or degree diplomatic in its nature, but will be purely a business matter of negotiation by you as governor of the Philippines for the purchase of property from the owners thereof, and the settlement of lands in such a manner as to contribute to the best interests of the people of the islands.

"Any assistance which you may desire whatever on the part of officers of the civil government or of military officers to enable you to perform the duties above described in a manner satisfactory to yourself, will be afforded, but the business is left entirely in your hands, subject to such action as may be taken pursuant to law upon your report."

SAVED FROM AN AWFUL FATE.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa. "I was so low after six months of severe sickness, caused by Hay Fever and Asthma, that few thought I could get well, but I learned of the marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, used it, and was completely cured." For desperate Throat and Lung Diseases it is the safest cure in the world, and is infallible for Coughs, Colds and Bronchial affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. EMPLOYES TO HAVE OUTING

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY ISSUES INVITATION.

Traction Men and Their Families to Be Guests of Company at Robison Park.

The Fort Wayne Traction company has issued an invitation for its employes and their families to be the guests of the company for a day of pleasure at Robison park.

The date fixed is Wednesday, June 11, and the invitation is to include the operatives in all departments of the street railway system who can possibly be spared from duty, as well as the families of all employes. Special cars will be provided for the trip to Robison park, and once inside the gates of the pleasure grounds the company will provide a feast, entertainment and amusement to its guests free of charge. All the attractions at the park are to be free for the day to the employes of the company and their families.

It is certain there will be a liberal response to the invitation of the company, and the outing of the street car men and their families promises to be a most enjoyable one.

BASE BALL NOTES.

There were not many features in yesterday's games in the National league, the principal one being the tie game between Pittsburg and New York. At the end of the eleventh inning the game was called on account of darkness, each club having scored four runs. The combined attendance at four games was 10,779. In the American league only one game was scheduled and played, resulting in a victory for Cleveland over Boston by a score of 14 to 3. Whether Lajoie is a mascot or a ball player don't matter much so long as Cleveland continues to win. The attendance at Cleveland was quite remarkable for that town, being 2,956. In the American association Columbus and Indianapolis both lost, while Louisville won, thus putting the three leading clubs in a closer bunch than they have ever been before. Toledo astonished the world by winning a game, the first one in over two weeks, while Louisville trimmed up Columbus to the queen's taste. The attendance at the three games—not counting Kansas City, where attendance is not given—was 4,087. Yesterday's results were as follows:

AN ALLEN COUNTY PIONEER.

At the age of 80 years another of the old pioneers of Allen county is gone, says the Monroeville Breeze. On May 23, at Kokomo, occurred the funeral of Mrs. Mary J. McLain, widow of the late ex-Judge Nelson McLain, of Allen county. Mrs. McLain for more than sixty years was a kind and devoted wife and mother and with her husband an earnest and devoted Christian from early childhood. Their home was ever open to the preacher and all workers for the church. They were both good active members of the M. E. church. Judge McLain died at Wabash, Indiana, four years ago, at the good old age of 88 years. They settled in Marion township, Allen county, in 1836 and he was one of the organizers of the first election board at which there were only nine votes cast. He was prominent in politics and social life. Serving as school teacher and filled various township offices, state land commissioner, county commissioner, as state legislator and twice as judge of Allen county. To them were born six children, three sons and three daughters, all of whom are living. The eldest, Prof. B. W. McLain, of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. M. E. Argo, of Monroeville, Ind.; Dr. D. A. McLain, of Muncie, Ind.; Mrs. L. D., wife of Dr. J. H. Ford, chief surgeon of the Big Four railroad at Indianapolis; Chas. J. McLain, of the Lumbard agency, Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Rose M., wife of Richard Ruddell, president of the Citizens' National bank, of Kokomo, Ind.

HEAVY MARKET TODAY.

The city market was in full swing this morning, with most of the stands occupied. The only new thing on sale was cherries, at ten cents a quart. New home-grown beets were more plentiful and were selling at two bunches for five cents. Peas were not plentiful and held their price of five cents a quart, though some were selling three quarts for a quarter. Strawberries were more plentiful and of fine quality. They were selling in full quart measurements for ten cents, or three quarts for a quarter. Growers say that next week will see the berries in full bearing and as cheap as they will get. They advise housekeepers to begin canning them at that time. Asparagus was scarce. The marketmen say that there was a heavy rain last night again and no more will be needed now for several weeks.

NEWSPAPER CIRCULATIONS.

lished in the world. The United States comes first, and is far in advance of all other countries, with 19,760 papers. Great Britain ranks next, with 6,050. In Russia there are only 743 newspapers, or one to every 170,000 people. The Petit Journal of Paris has a daily circulation of 1,000,000.

The paper which has the smallest circulation is the Imperial Review, published for the sole benefit of the emperor of Austria. It is made up from the translations from all the principal daily items in European papers, and the daily edition is three copies.

A REAL FRIEND.

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for fifteen years," says W. T. Sturdevant, of Merry Oaks, N. C. "After I had tried many doctors and medicines to no avail, one of my friends persuaded me to try Kodol. It gave immediate relief. I can eat almost anything I want now and my digestion is good. I cheerfully recommend Kodol." Don't try to cure stomach trouble by dieting. That only further weakens the system. You need wholesome, strengthening food. Kodol enables you to assimilate what you eat by digesting it without the stomach's aid. Meyer Bros. & Co.

CARRY GOLD IN QUILLS.

According to Le Roux, a French explorer, the natives of Abyssinia have a queer way of carrying to market the gold that they find in the beds of streams. They find it as dust and as small nuggets, and put it into large quills, as transparent as glass tubes. The brokers who buy it work it up into the form of circles of the size of an ordinary finger ring, but without closing the circle, for the purchaser always insists on twisting it to see that it does not contain any adulteration. Experienced fingers can tell at once whether the yielding metal has the exact malleability of pure gold.—Philadelphia Record.

JAS. BOSS CASE
WONT BEND OR DENT
WATCH PROTECTION
The Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Watch Cases are an improvement on solid gold cases. They are stronger and won't bend or dent. Made of two layers of gold, with a layer of stiffening metal between, welded together into one solid sheet. The outside layer contains more gold than can be worn off in case in 25 years, the time for which a Jas. Boss Case is guaranteed.
Jas. Boss Stiffened Gold Watch Cases are recognized as the standard by all jewelers. They are identical with solid gold cases in appearance and size, but much lower in price. Don't accept any case said to be "just as good" as the Boss. Look for the Keystone trade-mark. Send for booklet.

HOW CHINESE DODGE DEBTS.

New Year time in China is always fruitful of fires. It is the Chinese custom that all debts must be liquidated by the end of the year. Failure to do so means utter ruin of one's credit. It frequently happens that a Chinaman, seeing disgrace staring him in the face, will set fire to his house and then plead to his creditors: "How could I pay? The gods have destroyed my home. Ask the gods for the money." In this way, if not detected, honor is saved and credit unimpaired.—Leslie's Weekly.

Miss M. A. Gibson

Secretary of the Metaric Literary Club of Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE woman who travels continually, whether on business or pleasure, frequently hazards her health. The nervous excitement of catching trains, hurrying here and there, sleeping in cold beds and hastily eating ill prepared meals will even break down the health of the strongest man. The highly sensitive organism of a woman needs much leisure and quiet, plenty of sleep and the proper nutriment or the debt will be paid by continual menstrual suffering and an early grave.

There are thousands of women like Miss Marion A. Gibson, of 47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who go into business and travel a great deal of their time. These women know full well the trials they undergo. Out on the road they do not have the opportunity to care for themselves as they would byre at home. Miss Gibson uses Wine of Cardui and keeps in perfect health despite the inconveniences and dangers of traveling. She is the secretary of the Metaric Literary Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., and her letter is the experience of a highly intelligent woman and will be gladly received by her unfortunate sisters who need the competent advice she gives. She writes:

"As a large part of my time is spent in travel I often suffered with the discomforts of chilly beds and poor food. Frequent colds settled in the pelvic organs and produced some bladder trouble. I paid little attention to it at first but soon found that I needed medical attention. At the time I was miles away from a physician and as the friend with whom I was visiting had some Wine of Cardui in the house she recommended that I try it, and while I had little faith in it I soon found that it brought good results and kept taking it for six weeks and found then I was cured. I am never without it now and I am glad to recommend it."

This article appears in this paper today to tell you directly that Wine of Cardui will relieve the suffering of sick women. It regulates menstruation and restores health to women who know they are weak but do not believe that it is possible to be strong and healthy. Miss Gibson can travel and not suffer because she has a remedy that keeps menstruation regular and preserves her health and energy. How much more interest she takes in her club only she and her associates know. But we all know she is a useful and active woman instead of a sufferer. You can make the choice by securing a bottle of Wine of Cardui and getting relief from suffering. Miss Ada Shaw, of Phoenix, Miss., has made the choice you should make and she joins Miss Gibson in praising Wine of Cardui in the following letter:

"I was a great sufferer of female troubles, I tried every doctor in this country, but none did me any good. Last week I couldn't move any further than some one would move me. I got a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui and a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and took it. Already I am able to do most anything I want in my house and am gaining flesh rapidly. I think your medicine is a God-send to poor suffering women. I am trying to induce every suffering woman in this section to use Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught."

You may begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today by securing a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist.

WINE OF CARDUI RELIEVES ALL "FEMALE ILLS".

THE TALMAGE SERMON.

(Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage, Jefferson Park Presbyterian church, Chicago, in the Christian Herald.)

In this sermon Rev. Talmage preaches a strong discourse on "The Twain Mile," finding his text in Matthew v., 41: "Whosoever shall compel three to go a mile, go with him twain."

A keen, shrewd lawyer was one day listening to John Wesley preaching. The founder of Methodism had three different headings for his sermon. First: "Get all you can without hurting your soul, your body or your neighbors." "That is sensible," thought the merchant, "unless a man is continually reaching out for something he will never have anything. Industry is the foundation of all success." Second heading: "Save all you can, cutting off any needless expense." "Right again," muttered the listener. "It is not so much what a man earns that makes him wealthy as what he saves." Third heading: "Give all you can." "There," exclaimed the hard-headed merchant, "the minister has foolishly gone and spoilt everything that he has said. He ought to have had for his third heading, 'Give as little as you can.' You cannot save unless you keep what you have earned." So some of Christ's auditors felt that he was preaching the most foolish doctrine when he used the illustration of the twain mile. They were ready to obey the Mosaic law of justice. They would assent to an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a hand for a hand. They would travel the first mile willingly, and pay every penny that they legitimately owed. But they were not ready to turn the left cheek to a foe after that enemy had deliberately struck them a stinging blow upon the right cheek. They protested against a communistic gospel, which allowed a thief to run away with their whole wardrobe, with their cloak as well as their coat. They would not enslave themselves to any merciless taskmaster. For every day's labor, they must have a full day's pay. Yet Christ's statement is strikingly true. It is right in reference to the temporal life, as well as the spiritual. The willingness to travel the twain mile is the forerunner of all true success. The unwillingness to travel the twain mile is the cause of almost certain failure.

THE TEST MILE.

The twain mile is the place of testing. It is where the powers-that-be choose the men who are to be honored in life's service. There the human race is sifted. There the faithful are separated from the irresponsible; the energetic from the slothful, the true man from the false, the self-sacrificing from the selfish, the one-purpose man from the indolent, lazy, shiftless individual who lives without a definite aim. The twain mile is the threshing floor of human life, where the wheat is separated from the chaff; the rich grain from the useless tares.

Most of the human race are huddled together and jostling each other during the first mile, where they only do what they have to do. But in the second or the twain mile of life's journey, where a man does more than he is asked to do, he always has plenty of elbow-room. As the great statesman once said, "There is plenty of room at the top of the ladder of Success, although thousands of hands may be reaching for the lowest rung."

Every merchant knows of the separating or testing influence of the twain mile. When a position in the store became vacant, whom, in all probability, did you promote to the vacancy? The clerk who has been in the store for ten or fifteen years, the young man who has never been willing to do any more than he was compelled to do? Did you select the employe who was generally ten minutes late in the morning, the clerk who has his hat in his hand ready to run for home as soon as the hour hand points to the numeral six? Did you promote one who seemed to be indifferent to his work and had to be watched day by day to be kept busy, as a mother has to watch a little child? No. The young man who received the promotion was the poor country boy who entered your store with no recommendation except the willingness to travel the twain mile; the willingness to do more than he was told or paid to do. For years the twain mile young man was the first employe at work in the morning. For years he was the last person to leave the store at night. When the work piled up upon his desk, unbidden by the head of his department, he always staid many hours overtime until the work was done. He was the young man who threw himself into his allotted task with such intensity that he made his employer's interests his interests.

Who is the leading member today of the New York bar? The lawyer who when he graduated and could not find clients spent most of the time in the neighboring billiard hall? The young man who became ing the races? No. He was the an expert in card playing or in judg- young lawyer who studied night and day and kept on studying. He was the young man who put his whole heart and soul into the smallest cases which came to him. He did not fritter away his energies, waiting for the big cases to command his services. He is the twain mile lawyer. He does more than he is compelled to do.

A noted case was to be decided in New York city. The chief counsel for the defense was suddenly taken sick. Within twenty-four hours the plea had to be made before the jury. Daniel Webster at that time happened to be stopping at one of the hotels. He was sent for to come to the rescue. The next day he came into the court room and made one of the clearest interpretations of the most abstruse facts of the law ever delivered before a judge. He won his case, and was paid a fee amounting to thousands of dollars. When the friends crowded around to congratulate, declaring that he had performed a legal miracle, Mr. Webster answered, "My effort was no miracle. I did not prepare that address in a few hours. It took me months and months to master these facts of the law. The history of my plea is this. Many years ago, when a young man, I was engaged to defend a poor farmer. His case financially represented only a few dollars. I think a fifty dollar bill was my fee. It was a small case, but the points of the law involved then, were exactly the same as the legal points which I presented today. I went to Boston and bought many books. They cost me hundreds of dollars. I spent four exhaustive months in work upon that case. I am receiving today the reward of the mental labor which I expended for my country friend." Mr. Webster was

A TWAIN-MILE LAWYER.

He was willing to do more than he was asked or paid to do. The same facts which have been stated in reference to the clerk and the lawyer are true when applied to the successful physician, the minister, or inventor. They can be applied to the true temporal success of all men in every department of life.

Now, God in the same way is testing the spiritual availability and the future usefulness of His servants. He tests them by their willingness to travel the twain mile; to do more than they are asked to do. He tests them by the way they go and hunt up the poor invalids in the back alleys. He tests them by the way they are willing to assist in some mission work. He tests them by the way they are ready to teach in the Sunday school, and by the way they take part in the Christian Endeavor prayer meetings. He tests them by the way the mistresses try to uplift the spiritual welfare of the kitchen, and by the conversations the merchant has with the young clerk in reference to the salvation of the boy's soul.

My friend, you think your spiritual position in life is very humble, but you have a twain mile to travel. That twain mile, whether it starts from the nursery, the factory, the mechanic's bench, the laborer's ditch, or the farmer's plow, heads straight up to the Throne of Grace. God is spiritually judging you today by what you are spiritually willing of your own accord to do for Him.

The twain mile has for a guide the angel of inspiring Hope. The man who lives without ambition, or without the hope of making something better out of his life is practically dead. He is like the branch of a tree in midwinter. All its latent buds are frozen. Then the sap of life is unable to flow. But when the spring comes, then the snowflakes melt away. Then the air is redolent with incense. Then the tree takes on a new life. Later on, if the tree is an apple tree, its branches are ladened with the golden fruits.

The pathway of the twain mile is always warmed by the life-developing sunshine of Hope. The young man says to himself, "I am ready to work years and years, if necessary, in an inconspicuous position. I am ready to work hard and do more than I am asked to do, because I know that at last my employer will reward me with a higher position." The young college student says, "I am ready to bury myself in my books and work hard, because I know that at last there will come a time when my industry will be recompensed as well as recognized."

TWAIN-MILE WORKERS.

The young man is led along the twain mile of sacrifice the more willingly, because as he walks hand-in-hand with the sweet angel of inspiring Hope, he reads the lives of the great men of the past. He finds that the position from which some of them started to climb the mountain of fame and usefulness was often more humble than that which he is filling. He sees a poor, ignorant, colored boy standing before the bill-board poster, trying to learn how to spell. Then he sees that ignorant colored boy grow into the great orator, until Frederick Douglass' name becomes known over the civilized world. He sees a young man as a Sunday school teacher gather his own class of rough boys by going into one of the poorest and most depraved sections of Chicago. Then he hears of that young man, D. L. Moody, who was the greatest evangelist of the last century. He sees Dr. Barnado called to his great work by being led by the hand of a street urchin to where fifteen little boys were spending a winter night in a coal-bin. There the great human savior of the London street arab saw fifteen hungry urchins, who were on their way, but for his rescue, towards the gallows, the penitentiary, or the poorhouse. When the young man thinks of these great men he says, "I, too, have a mission in life. I, too, can accomplish some good for my fellowmen, if I am ready to travel the twain mile of self-sacrifice."

So the sweet-faced angel of Hope leads the disciple of Christ along the self-sacrificing pathway of the twain mile. She puts the Bible into the disciple's hand and says, "Read, Christian, read. That Bible is the promise God has given to you. God declares that if you will do what He bids you do, you shall have your reward for traveling the twain mile for Him." Then the Christian, believing the Bible, says to himself, "I will do what Christ wants me to do. I will live as Christ wants me to live. I will speak what Christ wants me to say. I know that Christ will reward me at the end of the twain mile. Did not my Savior promise: 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.' I may not have earthly wealth, but I shall surely have treasures laid up in heaven. I may not have worldly adoration, but I shall have the commendation of my Savior. I may never be a temporal potentate, but I shall be coronated among the redeemed of heaven. I shall hear Christ say, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.'" When the disciple of Christ is traveling the twain mile, he is always being led by the angel of inspiring Hope.

The twain mile is the place where the Christian traveler upon life's journey learns how to forgive an injustice, as well as to forget. Forgiveness is one of the Gospel fine arts. It is the power which comes into a Christian's life which practically says, "When I have a work to do, and only a short time in which to do it, I cannot afford to be wasting my energies in foolishly attacking those people who are attacking me. I cannot, as a general, be spending most of my time in pursuing a few foraging parties when I ought to be marching on towards the great city of Gospel Success." Besides that, the Christian traveler says to himself, "Perhaps I have not done my full duty toward my enemies. Perhaps I have not been kind and loving enough. Perhaps I have not presented my Jesus in a clear, simple way. If I did, then I might change the foes of Christ into His loving disciples. I will forgive as well as forget. After mine enemy has smitten me on one cheek, I will turn to him the other also. After he has compelled me to go with him one mile, I will go with him twain."

SELF-SACRIFICE.

This is not an absurd interpretation to make of the Christian's feelings in reference to his enemies when he is trying to travel the twain mile of forgiveness. Almost without exception, the truly great men who have consecrated their lives to a temporal cause have been able to drop the bitter personalities out of their existence. They were able to forgive as well as forget the personal injustices which had been practiced against them. When the North German states were being welded into the great confederacy of the German empire by the master statesman of the last century, Prince Bismarck said to a friend during the darkest days of the struggle, "I must not think of what mine enemies might say or do. To attain this end, I would brave all dangers, exile, indeed, the scaffold itself. What matter if they hang me, provided the rope with which I am hanged binds this new Germany firm to the Prussian throne?"

During the last days of the southern confederacy, the southern army was fleeing towards Appomattox court house. On account of the awful bombardment, it had dwindled into a mere handful. Gen. Robert E. Lee, one of the grandest characters in history, summoned a prominent general to his side and asked him what he should do. "Anything, General Lee," answered the subordinate, "except surrender. We do not want your enemies to say that you had to give up your sword. Bid the soldiers scatter and we will join the armies in the south. Do not spoil your grand record. Do not surrender." "No," answered General Lee, "I cannot think of myself. The war is hopeless. If the men disperse, they must live off the country and cause useless suffering. I must be true to what is right. I must not think of what people might say. I shall surrender." If such men could drop the personalities out of their lives, all true Christian soldiers should be ready to travel the twain mile for Christ's cause. We should forget as well as forgive. We should no longer have the enmities which some of us bear our fellowmen.

Jesus has been given as an example for all his disciples to copy. What did Christ do when He was scoffed at and spit upon? Why the enemies made so many charges against Christ, that Pilate, in amazement, asked Him to say something and refute the charges. "Hearest thou not how many things they witness against Thee? And He answered him never a word, insomuch that the governor marveled greatly." Christ came to save a world. Jesus did not have time, nor inclination to spend the last moments of His earthly life fighting His detractors, neither should we.

The twain mile is the place where the enemies of the true Christian are either mellowed, or completely conquered by love. As the willingness to love one's enemies makes a man strong to go forth to the battle of life, so that willingness to love an enemy dulls the battle-axe of almost every foe. Love is the most dangerous enemy Hate has to combat. Love is the duelist which will disarm many a fatal adversary. Love is the shield which can blunt or snap every plunging spear. Love is the dazzling light which can woo a smile from many a scornful lip, and the tear of remorse from many a flashing eye.

My brother, the difficulty with you and myself is, we have been fighting our enemies with the wrong kind of weapon. We have been fighting fire with fire, hate with hate, bitterness with bitterness, slander with slander, death with death. But now Jesus has given to us a new way to conquer our enemies. We must disarm hate with love, we must submerge slander with forgiveness, we must answer a curse with prayer, we must offer to the clenched fist an open palm, we must extend to every enemy a helping hand. Surely this idea is the interpretation of the words: "Whosoever shall smite thee upon thy right cheek, turn to him the other also." "Whosoever shall compel thee to go with him one mile, go with him twain."

In ancient times, so goes the story, a Roman commander at the head of his legion, went forth to capture a great city. With rattle of chariot wheel, and flashing of spear, and defiant standards, and signaling bugle blast, the invading army approached the city wall. Much to their surprise, they found every gate wide open. The merchants were working in their stores, the women were working in their kitchens, the farmers were in their fields. The Roman commander asked in surprise of the inhabitants who came forth to greet him, "Where are your soldiers? We have come to fight." "We have no soldiers," was the answer of the inhabitants. "We are a people of peace. We welcome you to our homes. We will care for you as long as you wish to stay." "Well," answered the Roman commander, "if there are no soldiers to fight, we shall march on." The Roman army came to battle with sword and with spear. They were conquered by love. So our enemies have been for years attacking the walled and fortified citadels of our hearts. If we would open the barred gates of love to those enemies, and lower the drawbridge of affection, we would capture nearly all of our foes by the power of love. The twain mile may have its thistles and thorns and stony highways, but most of those thorns can be blanketed with the roses of Sharon. Most of those pebbled pathways can be covered over with a soft quilt of grass which once grew at the foot of the tree, out of which was cut the beam of the cross.

The twain mile is the place where Jesus becomes to every Christian a treasured, loving personality. Well substantiated is the fact that love grows as much upon what we do for others as what others do for us, upon what we are ready to give as upon what we are ready to receive. In order to have true love, we must be ready to lose our lives before we can have those lives come to their true development. We must be ready to die if we want to truly live as we ought to live.

Why is a mother's love the purest of all earthly loves? Because the baby directly does so much for the mother? Oh, no. There never was a bigger tyrant who ever wielded a sceptre than a little baby in the average home. From the time the child is born, until grown, it practically does nothing for the mother. The mother is always doing something for the child. From the advent, someone has to keep tending the child. The mother feeds it, dresses it, cares for it. For the first year, at least, the mother has a tugging silver cord of affection, with one end attached to the crib, and the other end attached to her heart. She practically lives by the side of that child for weeks and months. Then, when the baby is sick, who nurses it? The graduate from the school for trained nurses? Oh, no. The trained nurse may come in and help. The person who, for weeks, never takes off her clothes, the person who is always by the side of the crib, and sees that the medicines are given regularly, the person who is anxiously touching the fevered cheek, is the mother, the sacrificing mother.

Why is love generally purer and deeper and wider in the poor man's home than in the rich man's palace? Some people may declare that this statement is untrue. But if you have been around as a pastor as much as some ministers, you will find that such a statement is true. The reason that love is generally sweeter and purer in the poor man's home is not because the poor man naturally has a bigger heart than the rich man; but the poor man has to daily sacrifice for his wife and children. When Christmas comes around, in order to have a Christmas tree, perhaps the father himself has to go without an overcoat. When his sons are to be sent to college in all probability the poor man will have to run into debt. He has to work overtime. He has to live in a small house upon a side street. His love feeds upon his sacrifices. So, my brother, if you and I want to love, and truly love Christ, we must be willing to do something for Christ. We must give ourselves body, mind and soul to his service. We must be ready to travel for him the twain mile. It is because some of us are not ready to travel this twain mile that Christ's teachings seem harsh and perhaps unsympathetic.

Some years ago, in the mountains of North Carolina, a rich lady was riding along in her carriage. Being overtaken by a thunderstorm, she found shelter in a farmer's home. The place was very humble. As in many poor homes, there seemed to be healthy children everywhere. But there was also one crippled child. The rich lady said to the mother, "Can nothing be done for that child?" "No," answered the mother, "nothing can be done. The village doctor said the great surgeons in New York might help him. Of course, we have no money to send him there." The rich lady pitied the child. She took him to New York. While there the surgeons straightened out the crippled limbs. But though the little child was at that time a cripple, yet on account of what the rich lady was doing for him, he had strength enough to crawl into the rich lady's heart. Then the rich lady went back and said to the mother, "Since I have been caring for your boy I have learned to love him. Will you let me adopt him? I want to bring him up as my own child and make him my heir." In after years the boy used to crawl into the rich lady's lap and say, "Mamma, I am glad I was once a poor little cripple. If I had not been a poor little cripple you would not have pitied and worked for me and learned to love me when you were saving my life." So, when we work for Christ, when we travel for him the twain mile, the Saviour creeps into our hearts as well as we creep into his.

And, my friend, I want you to further remember that as you travel along the twain mile for Christ, He is also traveling along the twain mile with you. Upon the one side of you will go, as I said before, the sweet-faced angel of inspiring hope. But upon the other side, the left side, the side nearest to the heart, you will have for companionship the One who sticketh closer than a brother—the One who will be by your side even if your father and your mother should forsake you. If you will only trust Him, He will not let you carry a burden greater than you can bear. He will not let you have a sorrow which He cannot and will not cure. He will not let you shed a tear unless He is ready to wipe it away. He is used to traveling the twain mile. He once traveled that twain mile of His own accord. He left heaven and traveled it to the foot of the cross to carry our sins and to die for us. Christ gladly did all this for you. Are you ready to travel the twain mile for Christ?

CORONATION CLAIMS.

"There is in England," writes Karl Edwin Harriman in the Pilgrim for June, in the course of an article entitled, "When England Crowns a King," "certain families that down the ages have inherited rights, originally gained through some remote ancestor's personal service to the king, which make their heads today personages to be reckoned with in all the earl marshal's plans for the coronation festivities. Thus it is the inherited privilege of the duke of Newcastle to provide a glove for and support his majesty to the chair. The bishops of Durham and Bath and Wells claim the right to support their majesties during the ceremony proper. It is also the privilege of the duke of Somerset to carry the golden orb, while, if he choose, the earl of Errol, carrying a gold-tipped silver baton, may walk in the procession as the lord high constable of Scotland. It is the right of the Lord Grey of Ruthyn to carry the royal spurs of gold, and by the same token of ancestral service to a king, Col. C. G. Brown, as baron of Fordwich, may, if he so elect, carry above their majesties' heads a crimson canopy."

LIVE BY CRACKING WHIPS.

The Paris police have recently been informed by one of the fraternity of whipcrackers that such a calling exists and claims recognition as one of the "professions" by the exercise of which men earn their livelihood in France.

Whipcrackers, it appears, are men who possess strong wrists and are willing to crack whips all day long, if required, on receipt of a suitable fee. At the commencement of the shooting season, when the proprietors of neighboring demesnes are not good friends, the one who bears ill will to the other engages a whipcracker, whose duty it is to crack a whip so as to frighten away all the birds at the approach of the disliked sportsman and his friends.

The whipcrackers are also found useful by farmers afflicted with diseased cattle which they cannot sell. Having engaged a whipcracker, they turn out the sick beasts on the most frequented highway they can find. The cracker follows with his whip, ostensibly to guide the cattle, really to drive them under the wheels of a carriage, a motor or a tram. This he does by cracking his whip at the critical moment so as to frighten the beasts and drive them to destruction.

VIRULENT CANCER CURED.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by Druggist G. W. Roberts, of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious, kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Bitters 50c, Salve 25c, at Dreier & Bro.

WARNING TO COLLECTORS.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, the distinguished Italian writer, has been receiving during the past few months so many requests for his autograph from collectors and admirers, not only in Italy, but throughout Europe, that he has at last grown tired of signing his name and has adopted a novel method of notifying the public that he is unable to comply with any such requests in future.

In the hotel at Bologna, where he is staying, the notice may now be read: "Gabriele d'Annunzio's right hand is injured and therefore he regrets to say that he cannot write his name in albums or on postal cards, etc."

INTERESTING TO ASTHMA SUFFERERS.

Daniel Bante, of Otterville, Iowa, writes: "I have had asthma for three or four years and have tried about all the cough and asthma cures in the market and have received treatment from physicians in New York and other cities, but got very little benefit until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar, which gave me immediate relief and I will never be without it in my house. I sincerely recommend it to all." Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

Ten years ago 10 of every 17 physicians in Berlin did not earn more than $750 a year, and only 250 earned more than $2,000. Today the situation is even worse.

FILTHY TEMPLES IN INDIA.

Sacred cows often defile Indian temples, but worse yet is a body that's polluted by constipation. Don't permit it. Cleanse your system with Dr. King's New Life Pills and avoid untold misery. They give lively livers, active bowels, good digestion, fine appetite. Only 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

Sweden's last census records the lowest death rate yet attained by a civilized nation. During the last ten years it only averaged 18.40 per 1,000.

Rheumatism CURED

After 30 Years' Suffering.

"I had Rheumatism in my right knee for 30 years; sometimes better, sometimes worse, until finally it moved up into my hip and across my back, until I could hardly get about to do anything. The doctor said it was Sciatica, and nothing did me any good until I used Dreis' Gout and Rheumatic Pills. Now I can say I am as nearly without pain as any man of my age in the country. I am nearly 75 years of age and can walk 10 miles in 3 hours without being much fatigued." James Goetz, Dunkirk, N. Y.

Greatest Medicine on Earth.

35 Marion Street, Natick, Mass.

Words cannot express my gratitude for your valuable medicine. I used to have four or five fits a day and even eight to ten the early part of every month. But since taking Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic (which was recommended to me by Rev. Herther, of Rogersburg) the fits have left me, and I thank your medicine, the greatest medicine on earth for it.

CORNELIUS GOSS.

Alpena, Mich., Feb. 23, 1900.

I have recommended Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic in many cases that came under my observation while stationed at Isadore, Mich., and in all cases it had the desired effect, and especially so with Mrs. T. Bobstek, Mr. Jas. Sullivan and daughter, and Mary Maurer. Knowing the Tonic is no humbug, I recommend it whenever any sick come to my notice.

REV. S. NOWAKOWSKI.

Mr. O. P. Tregus writes from Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, Cincinnati, that he just heard of a case from reliable authority, which defied the Doctors' skill, but was cured by Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic.

WHY SO CALLED.

Nicknames of Many Cities of Indiana—Describe Character or Surroundings.

(Indianapolis News.)

There are a number of Indiana cities having popular names aside from those by which they are known on the maps and in the gazeteers. These nicknames are distinctive of the cities so-called or typical of their surroundings. Indianapolis, for illustration, is known as the "Railroad City" on account of its many railroads and because it is the great thoroughfare by rail between the east and the west. The old union station, when built more than a half century ago, was admitted at that time to be the finest railway station west of the Alleghenies. Indianapolis is known as the "Convention City" because numerous assemblies of national and state character are held there. It is called the "Queen of Inland Cities."

Irvington is known as the "Classic Suburb" because it is suburban to Indianapolis, and is the seat of Butler college, the leading educational institution of the state capital.

Evansville is called the "Crescent City" from its location on the outer side of a curve in the Ohio river; the "Pocket City" from its location in and as the metropolis of that part of the state popularly designated as "The Pocket."

THE PRAIRIE CITY.

Terre Haute is the "Prairie City" from its location on Fort Harrison prairie, a section of the Wabash valley made memorable and historic by the campaign of Gen. William Henry Harrison against the Indians.

Fort Wayne is known as the "Summit City" from the comparative elevation of the site on which it is located.

South Bend is called the "Metropolis of Northern Indiana" from its population and importance, having more than one hundred manufacturing establishments, and as the seat of Notre Dame university, the largest Roman Catholic school in the United States. It is called the "Wagon City" because the great Studebaker plant is located there, the largest of its kind in the world. South Bend is also called the "Lotion City" from the many quack preparations, dermic remedies, etc., advertised as manufactured there.

Richmond is called the "Quaker City of the West," the Society of Friends composing a large per cent. of its population and controlling largely its institutions. Earlham college is located in this city.

Anderson is called the "Pittsburg of the White River Valley" because of its extensive manufacturing interests, especially in iron and glass.

CITY 'NEATH THE HILLS.

Madison is known as the "City 'Neath the Hills" from its Picturesque location on the banks of the Ohio river, the marginal heights and bluffs bordering the river overlooking the city. Madison has the distinction of being the oldest railroad city west of the Alleghenies.

Vincennes is the "Old Post," familiarly and historically; also the "Pioneer City of the Wabash Valley," having been settled as early as 1742.

Wabash is known as the "Rock City," the hills on which much of the city is located being composed of solid stone.

Logansport is the "City of Bridges," being located on both the Wabash and Eel rivers, the two streams spanned by more than twenty bridges within the corporate limits for street and railway crossings. It is also called the "City of Churches," having nineteen Protestant church buildings with a membership of five thousand in a total population of less than four times that number, not counting the Catholic institutions.

Huntington is the "Lime City" on account of its celebrated white lime, which is manufactured and shipped to all markets.

Bedford is the "Stone City" because of its practically unlimited supply of the finest and best oolitic limestone in the world.

THE STAR CITY.

Lafayette is the "Star City," the name acquired in the early history of the place because of location and relative importance, shining as a star of first magnitude in the fancy of its people, as contrasted with its satellites.

Auburn is the "Buggy City," having four large factories, producing more buggies than any other city or town in the state.

Bluffton is the "Asphalt City," its streets generally being paved with asphalt, contributing to the beauty and cleanliness of the place.

Bloomington is the "University City," because it is the seat of the State university, one of the oldest educational institutions in the west.

Elwood is the "Gem City of the Gas Belt" for most obvious reasons. It is also the "Buckle of the Gas Belt," as it is practically the center of the field.

Elkhart is the "City of Musical Doings," the home of more musicians and virtuosos of distinction than any other city of the same size in the state, or, perhaps, in the United States, with a large musical instrument factory and a conservatory of music. People go there from all parts of the country to study music. It is also known as the "Independent State," a local sobriquet given it by Goshen, the county seat, and other surrounding towns, out of jealousy over its fancied assumption of importance.

Peru is the "Barbecue City," so named from its numerous barbecues of phenomenal proportions in presidential campaigns.

Brazil is the "Black Diamond City," from its output of block coal, this quality of coal having been named "black diamond" because of its superior value in the motivity of the industrial and productive world. It is called the "Clay Metropolis" from its output of clay and clay products and utilities, having eight or ten large manufacturing plants in this industry alone.

Angola is the "Hub," locally; "Onla," for short.

Martinsville is the "Artesian City," so named from its seven mineral wells and sanitariums.

THE HOOSIER ATHENS.

Crawfordsville is the "Hoosier Athens," because of its educational facilities; the seat of Wabash college, one of the oldest and most reputable educational institutions in the west. It is also the "Hoosier Wool Market," purchasing and handling more wool than any other place in the Wabash valley.

Muncie is the "Magic City of the Gas Belt," from its almost unprecedented development in manufacturing industries and corresponding growth in population and business incident to the discovery and utilization of gas.

Rockport is the "Bluff City," because it is situated on the rugged heights overlooking the Ohio river; perhaps as much as eighty feet above high water mark.

Laporte is the "Maple City" on account of its miles of streets lined with maple trees. Laporte lays claim to being the handsomest city in the United States.

Lawrenceburg is the "Garden City of the World," so known in its earlier history and prior to the floods of 1847 and 1884.

HAS LOST ONE TITLE.

Jeffersonville, until within recent months, was the "Gretna Green of the Ohio Valley" because of the many marriages of runaway coupics from Kentucky and other states, taking its cue from Gretna Green, Scotland, just across the border, to which English people used to resort for clandestine marriages. It is also the "Falls City of Indiana," with respect to Louisville, lying immediately on the opposite side of the Ohio river.

Valparaiso is the "Normal City," the seat of the Northern Indiana Normal School.

Washington is called "Shoptown" from its factories and industries, more especially the railway shops of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern.

Marion is the "Queen City of the Gas Belt," the beautiful capital of Grant county.

Greencastle is the "College City," the seat of DePauw university, and also the "West Point of Indiana Methodism."

Frankfort is the "Gem City of Hoosierdom" because of its beautiful streets, residences and business blocks, as well as its generally handsome and attractive appearance.

TEARS BENEFIT THE EYES.

Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech, implying the lack of balmy tears that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

The reason some women weep more easily than others, and still more readily than the sterner sex, has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate in re easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion; their sympathetic nature—the term is used in a medical sense—is less developed, and the eye is therefore protected from shocks. Consequently, a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptuously scorns tears as a woman's practice.

WHY RATS GNAW.

Some years ago a German scientist began to study rats and mice, with the object of ascertaining why they are so fond of gnawing wood, and, indeed, almost anything on which their teeth can be employed, and news now comes that his patient researches have at last been crowned with success.

He says that these animals, and especially rats, have teeth which grow longer every year and keep growing longer during their entire life, and that the object of the animals in gnawing is to keep them at a proper length, as otherwise it would be impossible for them to grasp or chew any food.

DISEASES OF LOCALITIES.

Lombardy is the one place where pellagra is always prevalent—that mysterious modern ailment, due to eating damaged maize, which, since 1833, when it was first noticed, is computed to have been responsible for the death of more than 50,000 peasants. Mandalay ringworm, again, is known and dreaded throughout Burmah; but even the most ignorant Burmese is aware that it cannot be contracted outside the ancient capital. Similarly "Rock" fever is confined to Gibraltar, although it is probable that the ailment known as Maltese fever, which can be contracted only in Malta, and there only in the spring and autumn, is closely allied to it. Aleppo evil, too, is unknown in any of the other cities of Asia Minor just as the Delhi boil, so dreaded of our soldiery, is confined to Delhi.—Chambers' Journal.

CURES ECZEMA AND ITCHING HUMORS THROUGH THE BLOOD—COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) is a certain and sure cure for eczema, itching skin, humors, scabs, scales, watery blisters, pimples, aching bones or joints, boils, carbuncles, prickling pain in the skin, old, eating sores, ulcers, etc. Botanic Blood Balm cures the worst and most deep-seated cases by enriching, purifying and vitalizing the blood, thereby giving a healthy blood supply to the skin. Other remedies may relieve, but B. B. B. actually cures, heals every sore, and gives the rich glow of health to the skin, making the blood red and nourishing. Especially advised for old, obstinate cases. Druggists, $1. Trial treatment free and prepaid by writing Dr. Gillam, 213 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and free medical advice given. Sold by Ranke & Nusbaum, 88 Calhoun St.

Kansas permits the sale of spirits for mechanical purposes, and one applicant writes that he needs "four gallon mechanically—goin' to have a barn raisin'."

SPRING FEVER.

Spring fever is another name for biliousness. It is more serious than most people think. A torpid liver and inactive bowels mean a poisoned system. If neglected, serious illness may follow such symptoms. DeWitt's Little Early Risers remove all danger by stimulating the liver, opening the bowels and cleansing the system of impurities. Safe pills. Never gripe. "I have taken DeWitt's Little Early Risers for torpid liver every spring for years," writes R. M. Everly, Moundsville, W. Va. "They do me more good than anything I have ever tried." Meyer Bros. & Co.

By arrangement with the London school board the London county council is to rehouse 1,030 persons whose homes have been acquired to make room for new schools.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson for Sunday, June 8, 1902. Topic—"The Council at Jerusalem." Text—Acts xv., 22-33.

THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED.

(By Prof. Forest E. Dager, D. D., in the International Sunday School Evangel.)

Life is full of discussion and controversy concerning religious matters, and in almost every one of these disputes one often hears: "My opinion is," or "I think." The expression of the old Scottchman in the midst of a warm debate, "Bax me the Bible," is very suggestive. In religion disputes are not beneficial unless the contending parties agree to make the Bible their referee and umpire. Note how the members of this council referred to the prophets.

One of the worst features of religious discussion is the tendency to consider the hidden things of God, the degrees of reward and punishment before the disputants have entered the way of life.

A vessel is reported to have struck a rock while the officers were together discussing the question of how far the rock was distant from their course. Two boys set traps to catch rabbits. Early in the morning they started out to see if any of the desired game had been snared. It was not long before they saw a large rabbit struggling in the snare. Immediately they began to dispute about the possession of it. They became angry and excited and the noise aroused the energy of the rabbit. He made a desperate effort and the snare broke.

The spirit of this council is hinted at in verse 28. "It seemed good to the Holy Ghost and us." They were ready to hide personal opinions behind the manifest mind of the Spirit. There are not wanting instances in the history of wars of men firing on their own comrades, and even, in the darkness of the night, of one vessel opening fire upon another that was commissioned by the same government. The action of the mason who took a brick from the wall which he was building and knocked his fellow workman from the scaffold, because the latter asserted that the left hand was the better one for handling the trowel, is often repeated among those who are building the spiritual temple.

While the decision of the council was in favor of the Gentiles, yet they had something to yield. In connection with verse 29, it has been well said, "The demand to abstain from blood and pollutions of idols involved many sacrifices and what would seem privations. The convert had to refuse invitations to birthday and marriage and funeral feasts, or, if present, to refuse to eat. He would have to refrain from entering a temple and to dislodge busts or statues of the gods from his house and gardens."

This brings before the class the interesting subject of denying self for the sake of another's conscience, of refraining from that which might cause another to stumble, of avoiding the very appearance of evil. I was taught a lesson in this by a dog. Walking through the country with a friend, I noticed that his dog easily jumped from bank to bank of a deep gully that we passed. A few days later we walked in the same direction and took with us, in addition to the old dog, a young one that he was training. The older dog was deeply attached to the younger, and when we approached the gully I noticed that the former, instead of jumping over, ran around fully a quarter of a mile to the path and thus crossed. When we returned he did the same thing. Calling my friend's attention to this, he remarked that the reason was very evident; he did it for the sake of the little one who could not safely make the jump. In this light how significant are the little boy's words, "Take a safe path, father, I am coming in your footsteps."

When this line of thought is carefully considered by a young Christian, it puts all such questions as drinking, smoking, dancing and theater-going upon a higher basis than—Do they injure me? He must settle them upon this basis: Even if they do not injure me personally, am I sure that my example in favoring them is not leading some weaker brother to inordinate indulgence?

On one of our rivers a boy was drowned in a manner that illustrates our meaning. An experienced fisherman rowed out and set a night line in a rapid portion of the river, just above a dangerous falls. A boy who was visiting in the neighborhood saw him, and not knowing the amount of skill and strength and experience necessary to guide a boat there, started out to set his line near the same place. He had scarcely gone a hundred feet from shore before the swift current overcame his feeble strength and whirled him to death.

REMARKABLE BELL TOWER.

In the suburbs of Tacoma is a little wooden edifice called St. Peter's chapel, which owns not only the oldest but probably the quaintest bell tower in America. The church was built in the early seventies in old Tacoma, which was then a small lumber camp. Bishop Morris built the church in an incredibly short time, almost over night, and this unique bell tower was his idea.

He left a magnificent fir tree, 300 or more years old, standing beside the little chapel. The topmost branches were cut off, leaving the trunk, 40 feet high, smooth and shapely. On top of this a bell tower was built, surmounted by a cross.

A short ladder reaches from roof to tower. The bell ringer need not ascend the tower to sound the call to worship, a rope is attached, by means of which the bell may be rung from the ground.

For many years the trunk of this tree was a mass of living ivy, which never lost its color throughout the year. English ivy, which thrives in that moist climate, was planted about the church and trained to grow through the windows and spaces left for it, until the whole interior was more or less decorated with it. The space behind the altar was a great sheet of vivid green. For the past few years the ivy seems to have been neglected somewhat, but the church is still a mecca toward which many travelers turn their footsteps when in search of quaint and curious sights.

BRISK TRADE IN HAIR.

Never has the demand for women's hair in Europe been greater than it is now, and men are going from town to town in France, Germany, Switzerland and Russia and buying all they can get. It is even said that one enterprising dealer has sent some agents to China for this purpose.

The finest hair in France is furnished by Brittany, for the Breton women have very luxuriant tresses, which never fail to fetch a high price in London. Most of these women are poor and are quite willing to sacrifice their hair, especially as they wear bonnets which completely cover their heads and thus effectively hide them when shorn.

France furnishes more brown and black hair than any other country, and fair and golden hair is furnished, as a rule, by the women of Germany and the north of Europe. Gray and white hair is always in demand, and if of good quality fetch a high price.

A French woman's hair weighs generally five ounces and a half, an Italian woman's six ounces and a German woman's nine ounces. It requires much tact to persuade some women to part with their hair, and it is therefore no wonder that a man who possesses that tact and who is a good judge of hair can readily command a salary of from $4,000 to $6,000.

JAPAN MAKES GLASS.

Minister Buck, of Tokio, sends a copy of a report made by Mr. Wilson, secretary of legation, in reply to an inquiry as to the promotion of window glass manufacture in Japan.

After some discussion in the Japanese Diet in regard to the promotion of window glass manufacture in Japan, the government has decided to establish at the industrial experiment station a model factory or technical school for training workers in window glass manufacture. Japan affords the necessary materials for this industry and the cheap labor but lacks the skilled artisans necessary to make it a success.

All of the window glass now used in Japan is imported, and it is used for buildings of both foreign and Japanese style. The importation of window glass in 1899 was valued at 1,250,000 yen ($625,500). Belgium furnishes the greater part of this import. It is estimated that a box of glass which now costs, imported, 7 to 10 yen ($3.49 to $4.98) would, if made in Japan, cost about 5½ yen (2.75).

It is expected that the factory, for which money will probably be appropriated at the next session of the diet, will be working in a year, and in the course of two or three years will be able to supply enough skilled Japanese artisans to carry on the work in private factories.

In the meantime one or two Japanese have been sent to Germany to study the art, but it is probable that foreigners will be employed to teach methods, assist in the selection of machines and in other arrangements for the plant.

An American applicant for employment as an expert in glassmaking should apply through the Japanese legation at Washington, presenting his credentials and recommendations.

LA BELLE OTERO IN THE AIR.

Madame Otero is evidently desirous of emulating the exploits of the famous Madame Angot when she made her balloon journey, for she has given an order to an engineer in Brussels to construct for her an airship wherein she means to arrive at Biarritz next August. Madame Otero, however, has no idea of entrusting her valuable person to the caprices of rude Boreas; her airship is to be safely moored by a steel hawser to an automobile, whose terrestial progress will guide the goddess in the car 100 feet above.

In the event of an accident the goddess will descend to earth by a rope ladder hanging from the airship. It is almost to be hoped that some small accident will happen, as the spectacle of La Belle Otero clinging like some gorgeous spider in mid-air to a rope ladder is too tempting a prospect to forego. The lady will probably wear her famous bolero of jewels which caused such a sensation last autumn in the window of a jeweler in the Rue de la Paix, and Biarritz will probably be crowded on the occasion.

STICK TO ONE THING.

"The only way for a man on a salary to make a success of life, financially and otherwise, is to stick to one thing," said a Washington department employe. "Twenty years ago I had plenty of energy, a little money and a huge stock of ideas. I determined to become a power in the money market, and as a starter dabbled for six months or more in stocks, at the expiration of which time I came to the conclusion that Jay Gould knew more about such things than I did. That experience cost me $4,000.

"I soon became convinced that I was cut out for a druggist, and straightway invested $2,000 in a pharmacy. Cut rates were unknown in those days, and in a short time I was doing well, but one day I read of a prominent lawyer receiving $25,000 as a fee for some case, and instantly I became imbued with the idea that I would make a great lawyer. I neglected my drug business to such an extent that in two years I was $500 to the bad. In the meantime I read law diligently. After a time I graduated as a full-fledged disciple of Blackstone and hung out my shingle. Business not coming my way as fast as I thought it should, I opened a small hotel. Result, $1,800 in the hole.

"Then I tried my hand at real estate, my legal training helping me greatly. But the same old story will have to be recorded here—failure. By this time my money was nearly all gone. What to do next was the all-absorbing question. One day a friend convinced me that big money could be made out of chickens. I invested every cent I had left—$1,200—in hens. At the end of six months I sold out my hennery for $500. And then I got a government job, and here I've been ever since. Shortly after my arrival in this town I purchased a little land in the northwest section. That investment has yielded me a very handsome return, and I am now thoroughly satisfied that the only thing for a man on a salary to do is to either put a little each month in some good savings bank or invest his surplus in land or brick and mortar. Remembering one thing: This is an age of specialists. Stick to one thing, make a success of it, and maybe one of these days some big trust company will offer you a princely salary for your knowledge. A rolling stone gathers no moss—nor money."

MR. UNITED STATES.

G. I. Gillespie, of 210 Lewis avenue, Brooklyn, says he had a playmate in his boyhood whose name was United and whose father was John States, a resident of Canoe township, near Punxsutawney, Pa. Mr. United States was elected a commissioner of Jefferson county a few years ago. At the same time Clearfield county elected Mr. Bine Koozer sheriff.—New York Press.

Friday Half Holiday.

The Foster Furniture Co. Leads the Way.

A Move in behalf of the Clerks of the City.

Forty-two years ago, the retail stores of New York city, all kept open until 9 o'clock every night and until 11 p. m. Saturday nights.

At that time an effort was made to shorten the hours of labor and a "Clerk's Early Closing Association" was organized. The first dollar contributed by any firm to the clerks, in support of the movement, was a check sent to their organization by our firm, then recently organized, under the title of Foster Brothers. From that day to this, we have favored the early closing movement. The "Big Store" has always found that it could do business enough between 7 a. m. and 6 p. m., Saturday evenings excepted, and it has therefore, always closed at 6 o'clock, even when some of its smaller competitors have kept open.

Early Closing is an Evidence of Prosperity

And people like to trade with prosperous stores. Then, too, we have always found valuable to us, the influence and good will of the clerks of the city. They frequently have it within their power to throw trade to us, in case of customers inquiring where to buy Furniture and Carpets to the best advantage.

For these reasons, we believe we have increased, rather than lessened, our sales by early closing. We have, therefore, decided to take another step forward.

The "BIG STORE" Will Close FRIDAY AFTERNOONS

during July and August and our clerks will be given a half holiday. We propose to do this whether any other store does or not. But why shouldn't everybody close? There isn't much trade on hot Friday afternoons during those months and if all will close nobody will lose any trade.

Last year the suggestion of closing Saturday afternoons was made, but that cannot be accomplished, because Saturday afternoon is the farmer's day and Saturday evening, the one evening set apart for the accommodation of such of our city people as cannot get out conveniently during the day.

A further suggestion has been made to close each evening during July and August at five, instead of six o'clock; instead of giving the half holiday. But inquiry among clerks furnishes the information that the extra hour would not be of much benefit to them, as they would have to wait around until supper time came, 6 o'clock, and that the extra hour would very largely be lost. They also say, that in hot weather customers are disposed to shop between five and six, the coolest hour of the afternoon. If the extra five hours each week is given together and Friday afternoon is made a half holiday, they say, it will enable them to go to Rome City or Robison Park, or elsewhere, for a half day's outing and pleasure.

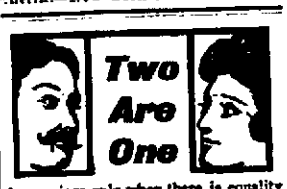
What say you, fellow merchants, shall we not all close Friday afternoons, during July and August, join the Golf Club, get recreation and health and live five years longer for it?

FOSTER FURNITURE & CARPET CO.

At Robison Park Theater.

For the coming week at Robison Park theater there are again three headliners who have made pronounced success in the other houses they have played, one of which should be as popular here as elsewhere. Hal Davis and Inez Macauley are given first place. They are new here and for that reason should make a big hit with the local theater goers. They are two people who have devoted their attention to comedy sketches since leaving the legitimate and will present here their latest comedietta by Edmund Day "The Unexpected," which is credited with being a laughing success of more than usual merit and based upon a distinctly original idea. Charles Leonard Fletcher is also new here and with his charming assistant, they introduce the sensation of the season, "At the Stage Door." This combines two important characteristics for successful vaudeville, originality and spontaneity. The originality in it is so surprisingly simple when you have seen it, that you are amazed that it has never before been thought of as a feasible form of stage entertainment. The simplicity, however, does not lessen the genius of Mr. Fletcher the least bit. The audience is introduced to the stage entrance—that gate to fairy land—of a theater. You will see the actor approach and see him enter too, and to the eyes of the unaccustomed, the sight of the actor's dressing room, with the paraphernalia for making up and to see him actually preparing himself for his part, will be quite a treat. All this of course leads up to a series of clever impersonations, ranging all the way from Chauncey Depew to Richard Mansfield. Next comes LeRoy and Levanion in an eccentric comedy bar act, which has always pleased the people wherever they have played. Ben Mowatt and son, the greatest jugglers in this or any other country, will be seen in feats of this kind, that are certainly marvelous. Plank Leh, the clay modeler, will also entertain you for a few minutes. With the aid of clay he can produce in a few seconds the likeness of any prominent man this country has ever known.

Hal Davis and Inez Macauley, at Robison Park theater next week in "The Unexpected." The finish, with Lady Bird a neck away and Lobster close second.



In marriage only when there is equality of health as well as affection. Affection may be the basis of unity in marriage, but the superstructure depends largely on the womanly health. When the wife is tormented with backache, distressed by headache, and racked by nervousness, she has no ambition for exercise or pleasure.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures headache, backache, and other womanly ills by curing the diseases of the womanly organism which cause them. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

"My wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief of Police, 31 Prospect Street, Weweport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors, she took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told me what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart.

"You can publish this letter if you wish. We have received much benefit that we wish every sufferer could derive the same amount of good. My wife's complaint seemed to be a complication of diseases—so the doctors said. We will ever remain your friends. May God bless you and your Institute."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

NIHILISTS POOR PATRIOTS.

If the nihilists who murdered Alexander II. of Russia had adopted a different mode of political agitation a baby born at that time would now have been able to vote. The crime which deprived Russia of a constitution twenty-one years ago has kept her without one ever since. But now, after more than two decades of torpor, new stirrings of political life are beginning in the empire of the czars. It is said now that Nicholas II. intends to take up the work of his grandfather and the unrest among the peasantry warns him that it is time.—Saturday Evening Post.

WAS WASTING AWAY.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive: "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Fellens & Polster.

"BLACK ROCK"--Continued.--By RALPH CONNOR.

By this time Craig was standing before her, his face deathly pale. When she came to the end of her words, he said in a voice low, sweet and thrilling with emotion:

"Ah, if you only knew! Do not make me forget myself. You do not guess what you are doing."

"What am I doing? What is there to know but that you tell me easily to go?"

She was struggling with the tears she was too proud to let him see.

He put his hands resolutely behind him, looking at her as if studying her face for the first time. Under his searching look she dropped her eyes, and the warm color came slowly up into her neck and face. Then, as if with a sudden resolve, she lifted her eyes to his and looked back at him unflinchingly.

He started, surprised, drew slowly near, put his hands upon her shoulders, surprise giving place to wild joy. She never moved her eyes. They drew him toward her. He took her face between his hands, smiled into her eyes, kissed her lips. She did not move. He stood back from her, threw up his head and laughed aloud. She came to him, put her head upon his breast and, lifting up her face, said, "Kiss me." He put his arms about her, bent down and kissed her lips again and then reverently her brow. Then, putting her back from him, but still holding both her hands, he cried:

"No, you shall not go! I shall never let you go."

She gave a little sigh of content and, smiling at him, said:

"I can go now." But even as she spoke the flush died from her face, and she shuddered.

"Never!" he almost shouted. "Nothing shall take you away. We shall work here together."

"Ah, if we could, if we only could!" she said piteously.

"Why not?" he demanded fiercely.

"You will send me away. You will say it is right for me to go," she replied sadly.

"Do we not love each other?" was his impatient answer.

"Ah, yes, my love," she said, "but love is not all."

"No!" cried Craig. "But love is the best."

"Yes," she said sadly; "love is the best, and it is for love's sake we will do the best."

"There is no better work than here. Surely this is best." And he pictured his plans before her.

She listened eagerly.

"Oh, if it should be right," she cried, "I will do what you say! You are good; you are wise. You shall tell me."

She could not have recalled him better. He stood silent some moments, then burst out passionately:

"Why, then, has love come to us? We did not seek it. Surely love is of God. Does God mock us?"

He threw himself into his chair, pouring out his words of passionate protestation. She listened, smiling, then came to him and, touching his hair as a mother might her child's, said:

"Oh, I am very happy! I was afraid you would not care, and I could not bear to go that way."

"You shall not go!" he cried aloud, as if in pain. "Nothing can make that right."

But she only said: "You shall tell me tomorrow. You cannot see tonight, but you will see, and you will tell me."

He stood up and, holding both her hands, looked long into her eyes, then turned abruptly away and went out.

She stood where he left her for some moments, her face radiant and her hands pressed upon her heart. Then she came toward my room. She found me busy with my painting, but as I looked up and met her eyes she flushed slightly and said:

"I quite forgot you."

"So it appeared to me."

"You heard?"

"And saw," I replied boldly. "It would have been rude to interrupt, you see."

"Oh, I am so glad and thankful!"

"Yes; it was rather considerate of me."

"Oh, I don't mean that!" the flush deepening. "I am glad you know."

"I have known some time."

"How could you? I only knew today myself."

"I have eyes."

She flushed again.

"Do you mean that people"— she began anxiously.

"No; I am not 'people.' I have eyes, and my eyes have been opened."

"Opened?"

"Yes, by love."

Then I told her openly how weeks ago I struggled with my heart and mastered it, for I saw it was vain to love her because she loved a better man, who loved her in return. She looked at me shyly and said:

"I am sorry."

"Don't worry," I said cheerfully. "I didn't break my heart, you know. I stopped it in time."

"Oh!" she said, slightly disappointed. Then her lips began to twitch, and she went off into a fit of hysterical laughter.

"Forgive me," she said humbly, "but you speak as if it had been a fever."

"Fever is nothing to it," I said solemnly. "It was a near thing."

At which she went off again. I was glad to see her laugh. It gave me time to recover my equilibrium, and it relieved her intense emotional strain. So I rattled on some nonsense about Craig and myself till I saw she was giving no heed, but thinking her own thoughts, and what these were it was not hard to guess.

Suddenly she broke in upon my talk:

"He will tell me that I must go from him."

"I hope he is no such fool," I said emphatically and somewhat rudely, I fear, for I confess I was impatient with the very possibility of separation for these two, to whom love meant so much. Some people take this sort of thing easily and some not so easily, but love for a woman like this comes once only to a man, and then he carries it with him through the length of his life and warms his heart with it in death. And when a man smiles or sneers at such love as this I pity him and say no word, for my speech would be in an unknown tongue. So my heart was sore as I sat looking up at this woman who stood before me, overflowing with the joy of her new love, and dully conscious of the coming pain. But I soon found it was vain to urge my opinion that she should remain and share the work and life of the man she loved. She only answered:

"You will help him all you can, for it will hurt him to have me go."

The quiver in her voice took out all the anger from my heart, and before I knew I had pledged myself to do all I could to help him.

But when I came upon him that night, sitting in the light of his fire, I saw he must be let alone. Some battles we fight side by side, with comrades cheering us and being cheered to victory, but there are fights we may not share, and these are deadly fights, where lives are lost and won. So I could only lay my hand upon his shoulder without a word. He looked up quickly, read my face and said, with a groan:

"You know?"

"I could not help it. But why groan?"

"She will think it right to go," he said desperately.

"Then you must think for her. You must bring some common sense to bear upon the question."

"I cannot see clearly yet," he said. "The light will come."

"May I show you how I see it?" I asked.

"Go on," he said.

For an hour I talked, eloquently, even vehemently, urging the reason and right of my opinion. She would be doing no more than every woman does, no more than she did before. Her mother-in-law had a comfortable home, all that wealth could procure, good servants and friends. The estates could be managed without her personal supervision. After a few years' work here they would go east for little Marjorie's education. Why should two lives be broken? And so I went on.

He listened carefully, even eagerly.

"You make a good case," he said, with a slight smile. "I will take time. Perhaps you are right. The light will come. Surely it will come. But," and here he sprang up and stretched his arms to full length above his head, "I am not sorry. Whatever comes I am not sorry. It is great to have her love, but greater to love her as I do. Thank God, nothing can take that away. I am willing, glad, to suffer for the joy of loving her."

Next morning before I was awake he was gone, leaving a note for me:

My Dear Connor—I am due at the Landing. When I see you again, I think my way will be clear. Now all is dark. At times I am a coward and often, as you sometimes kindly inform me, an ass, but I hope I may never become a mule.

I am willing to be led, or want to be at any rate. I must do the best, not second best, for her, for me. The best only is God's will. What else would you have? Be good to her these days, dear old fellow.

Yours, Craig.

How often those words have braced me he will never know, but I am a better man for them: "The best only is God's will. What else would you have?" I resolved I would rage and fret no more and that I would worry Mrs. Mavor with no more argument or expostulation, but, as my friend had asked, "be good to her."

CHAPTER XII.

LOVE IS NOT ALL.

THOSE days when we were waiting Craig's return we spent in the woods or on the mountain sides or down in the canyon beside the stream that danced down to meet the Black Rock river, I talking and sketching and reading and she listening and dreaming, with often a happy smile upon her face. But there were moments when a cloud of shuddering fear would sweep the smile away, and then I would talk of Craig till the smile came back again.

But the woods and the mountains and the river were her best, her truest, friends during those days. How sweet the ministry of the woods to her! The trees were in their new summer leaves, fresh and full of life. They swayed and rustled above us, flinging their interlacing shadows upon us, and their swaying and their rustling soothed and comforted like the voice and touch of a mother. And the mountains, too, in all the glory of their varying robes of blues and purples, stood calmly, solemnly, about us, uplifting our souls into regions of rest. The changing lights and shadows flitted swiftly over their rugged fronts, but left them ever as before in their steadfast majesty. "God's in his heaven." What would you have? And ever the little river sang its cheerful courage, fearing not the great mountains that threatened to bar its passage to the sea. Mrs. Mavor heard the song, and her courage rose.

"We, too, shall find our way," she said, and I believed her.

But through these days I could not make her out, and I found myself studying her as I might a new acquaintance. Years had fallen from her. She was a girl again, full of young, warm life. She was as sweet as before, but there was a soft shrewdness over her, a half shamed, half frank consciousness in her face, a glad light in her eyes that made her all new to me. Her perfect trust in Craig was touching to see.

"He will tell me what to do," she would say till I began to realize how impossible it would be for him to betray such trust and be anything but true to the best.

So much did I dread Craig's homecoming that I sent for Graeme and old man Nelson, who was more and more Graeme's trusted counselor and friend. They were both highly excited by the story I had to tell, for I thought it best to tell them all, but I was not a little surprised and disgusted that they did not see the matter in my light. In vain I protested against the madness of allowing anything to send these two from each other. Graeme summed up the discussion in his own emphatic way, but with an earnestness in his words not usual with him.

"Craig will know better than any of us what is right to do, and he will do that, and no man can turn him from it, and," he added, "I should be sorry to try."

Then my wrath rose, and I cried:

"It's a tremendous shame! They love each other. You are talking sentimental humbug and nonsense."

"He must do the right," said Nelson in his deep, quiet voice.

"Right! Nonsense! By what right does he send from him the woman he loves?"

"Nelson is right," said Graeme. "I should not like to see him weaken."

"Look here," I stormed. "I didn't bring you men to back him up in his nonsense. I thought you could keep your heads level."

"Now, Connor," said Graeme, "don't rage. Leave that for the heathen. It's bad form and useless besides. Craig will walk his way where his light falls, and, by all that's holy, I should hate to see him fail, for if he weakens like the rest of us my North star will have dropped from my sky."

"Nice selfish spirit," I muttered.

"Entirely so. I'm not a saint, but I feel like steering by one when I see him."

When, after a week had gone, Craig rode up one early morning to his shack door, his face told me that he had fought his fight and had not been beaten. He had ridden all night and was ready to drop with weariness.

"Connor, old boy," he said, putting out his hand, "I'm rather played. There was a bad row at the Landing. I have just closed poor Colley's eyes. It was awful. I must get sleep. Look after Dandy, will you, like a good chap."

"Oh, Dandy be hanged!" I said, for I knew it was not the fight nor the watching nor the long ride that had shaken his iron nerve and given him that face. "Go in and lie down. I'll bring you something."

"Wake me in the afternoon," he said. "She is waiting. Perhaps you will go to her." His lips quivered. "My nerve is rather gone." Then, with a very wan smile, he added, "I am giving you a lot of trouble."

"You go to thunder!" I burst out, for my throat was hot and sore with grief for him.

"I think I'd rather go to sleep," he replied, still smiling.

I could not speak and was glad of the chance of being alone with Dandy.

When I came in, I found him sitting with his head in his arms upon the table fast asleep. I made him tea, forced him to take a warm bath and sent him to bed, while I went to Mrs. Mavor. I went with a fearful heart, but that was because I had forgotten the kind of woman she was.

She was standing in the light of the window waiting for me. Her face was pale, but steady; there was a proud light in her fathomless eyes, a slight smile parted her lips, and she carried her head like a queen.

"Come in," she said. "You need not fear to tell me. I saw him ride home. He has not failed, thank God! I am proud of him. I knew he would be true. He loves me"—she drew in her breath sharply, and a faint color tinged her cheek—"but he knows love is not all—ah, love is not all! Oh, I am glad and proud!"

"Glad!" I gasped, amazed.

"You would not have him prove faithless?" she said, with proud defiance.

"Oh, it is high sentimental nonsense!" I could not help saying.

"You should not say so," she replied, and her voice rang clear. "Honor, faith and duty are sentiments, but they are not nonsense."

In spite of my rage I was lost in amazed admiration of the high spirit of the woman who stood up so straight before me, but as I told how worn and broken he was she listened with changing color and swelling bosom, her proud courage all gone and only love, anxious and pitying, in her eyes.

"Shall I go to him?" she asked, with timid eagerness and deepening color.

"He is sleeping. He said he would come to you," I replied.

"I shall wait for him," she said softly, and the tenderness in her tone went straight to my heart, and it seemed to me a man might suffer much to be loved with love such as this.

In the early afternoon Graeme came to her. She met him with both hands outstretched, saying in a low voice:

"I am very happy."

"Are you sure?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, yes," she said, but her voice was like a sob, "quite, quite sure!"

They talked long together till I saw that Craig must soon be coming, and I called Graeme away. He held her hands, looking steadily into her eyes, and said:

"You are better even than I thought. I'm going to be a better man."

Her eyes filled with tears, but her smile did not fade as she answered:

"Yes, you will be a good man, and God will give you work to do."

He bent his head over her hands and stepped back from her as from a queen, but he spoke no word till we came to Craig's door. Then he said with humility that seemed strange in him:

"Connor, that is great—to conquer oneself. It is worth while. I am going to try."

I would not have missed his meeting with Craig. Nelson was busy with tea. Craig was writing near the window. He looked up as Graeme came in and nodded an easy good evening, but Graeme strode to him and, putting one hand on his shoulder, held out his other for Craig to take.

After a moment's surprise Craig rose to his feet and, facing him squarely, took the offered hand in both of his and held it fast without a word. Graeme was the first to speak, and his voice was deep with emotion.

"You are a great man, a good man. I'd give something to have your grit."

Poor Craig stood looking at him, not daring to speak for some moments. Then he said quietly:

"Not good or great, but, thank God, not quite a traitor."

"Good man!" went on Graeme, patting him on the shoulder. "Good man! But it's tough."

Craig sat down quickly, saying, "Don't do that, old chap!"

I went up with Craig to Mrs. Mavor's door. She did not hear us coming, but stood near the window gazing up at the mountains. She was dressed in some rich soft stuff and wore at her breast a bunch of wild flowers. I had never seen her so beautiful. I did not wonder that Craig paused with his foot upon the threshold to look at her. She turned and saw us. With a glad cry, "Oh, my darling, you have come to me!" she came with outstretched arms. I turned and fled, but the cry and the vision were long with me.

It was decided that night that Mrs. Mavor should go the next week. A miner and his wife were going east, and I, too, would join the party.

The camp went into mourning at the news, but it was understood that any display of grief before Mrs. Mavor was bad form. She was not to be annoyed.

But when I suggested that she should leave quietly and avoid the pain of saying goodby she flatly refused.

"I must say goodby to every man. They love me, and I love them."

It was decided, too, at first, that there should be nothing in the way of a testimonial, but when Craig found out that the men were coming to her with all sorts of extraordinary gifts he agreed that it would be better that they should unite in one gift. So it was agreed that I should buy a ring for her. And were it not that the contributions were strictly limited to $1 the purse that Slavin handed her when Shaw read the address at the farewell supper would have been many times filled with the gold that was pressed upon the committee. There were no speeches at the supper except one by myself in reply on Mrs. Mavor's behalf. She had given me the words to say, and I was thoroughly prepared, else I should not have got through. I began in the usual way:

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, Mrs. Mavor is"—

But I got no further, for at the mention of her name the men stood on the chairs and yelled until they could yell no more. There were over 250 of them, and the effect was overpowering. But I got through my speech. I remember it well. It began:

"Mrs. Mavor is greatly touched by this mark of your love, and she will wear your ring always with pride."

And it ended with:

"She has one request to make—that you will be true to the league and that you stand close about the man who did most to make it. She wishes me to say that, however far away she may have to go, she is leaving her heart in Black Rock and she can think of no greater joy than to come back to you again."

Then they had "The Sweet By and By," but the men would not join in the refrain, unwilling to lose a note of the glorious voice they loved to hear. Before the last verse she beckoned to me. I went to her standing by Craig's side as he played for her.

"Ask them to sing," she entreated. "I cannot bear it."

"Mrs. Mavor wishes you to sing in the refrain," I said, and at once the men sat up and cleared their throats.

The singing was not good, but at the first sound of the hoarse notes of the men Craig's head went down over the organ, for he was thinking, I suppose, of the days before them when they would long in vain for that thrilling voice that soared high over their own hoarse tones. And after the voices died away he kept on playing till, half turning toward him, she sang alone once more the refrain in a voice low and sweet and tender, as if for him alone, and so he took it, for he smiled up at her his old smile, full of courage and full of love.

Then for one whole hour she stood saying goodby to those rough, gentle hearted men whose inspiration to goodness she had been for five years. It was very wonderful and very quiet. It was understood that there was to be no nonsense, and Abe had been heard to declare that he would "throw out any cotton backed fool" who couldn't hold himself down, and, further, he had enjoined them to remember that her arm wasn't a pump handle.

At last they were all gone, all but her guard of honor—Shaw, Vernon Winton, Geordie, Nixon, Abe, Nelson, Craig and myself.

This was the real farewell, for, though in the early light of the next morning 200 men stood silent about the stage and as it moved out waved their hats and yelled madly, this was the last touch they had of her Land. Her place was up on the driver's seat between Abe and Mr. Craig, who held little Marjorie on his knee. The rest of the guard of honor were to follow with Graeme's team. It was Winton's fine sense that kept Graeme from following them close. "Let her go out alone," he said, and so we held back and watched her go.

She stood with her back toward Abe's plunging four horse team and, steadying herself with one hand on Abe's shoulder, gazed down upon us. Her head was bare, her lips parted in a smile, her eyes glowing with their own deep light, and so, facing us, erect and smiling, she drove away, waving us farewell till Abe swung his team into the canyon road and we saw her no more. A sigh shuddered through the crowd, and, with a sob in his voice, Winton said, "God help us all!"

I close my eyes and see it all again—the waving crowd of dark faced men, the plunging horses, and, high up beside the driver, the swaying, smiling, waving figure, and about all the mountains, framing the picture with their dark sides and white peaks tipped with the gold of the rising sun. It is a picture I love to look upon, albeit it calls up another that I can never see but through tears.

I look across a strip of ever widening water at a group of men upon the wharf, standing with heads uncovered, every man a hero, though not a man of them suspects it, least of all the man who stands in front, strong, resolute, self conquered, and, gazing long, I think I see him turn again to his place among the men of the mountains, not forgetting, but every day remembering, the great love that came to him and remembering, too, that love is not all. It is then the tears come.

But for that picture two of us at least are better men today.

CHAPTER XIII.

HOW NELSON CAME HOME.

THROUGH the long summer the mountains and the pines were with me, and through the winter, too, busy as I was filling in my Black Rock sketches for the railway people who would still persist in ordering them by the dozen, the memory of that stirring life would come over me, and once more I would be among the silent pines and the mighty snow peaked mountains, and before me would appear the red shirted shanty men or dark faced miners, great, free, bold fellows, driving me almost mad with the desire to seize and fix those swiftly changing groups of picturesque figures. At such times I would drop my sketch and with eager brush seize a group, a face, a figure, and that is how my studio comes to be filled with the men of Black Rock. There they are about me—Graeme and the men from the woods, Sandy, Baptiste, the Campbells and, in many attitudes and groups, old man Nelson; Craig, too, and his miners, Shaw, Geordie, Nixon, poor old Billy and the keeper of the league saloon.

It seemed as if I lived among them, and the illusion was greatly helped by the vivid letters Graeme sent me from time to time. Brief notes came now and then from Craig, too, to whom I had sent a faithful account of how I had brought Mrs. Mavor to her ship and of how I had watched her sail away with none too brave a face as she held up her hand that bore the miners' ring and smiled with that deep light in her eyes. Ah, those eyes have driven me to despair and made me fear that I am no great painter after all, in spite of what my friends tell me who come in to smoke my good cigars and praise my brush! I can get the brow and hair and mouth and pose, but the eyes—the eyes elude me. And the faces of Mrs. Mavor on my wall, that the men praise and rave over, are not such as I could show to any of the men from the mountains.

Graeme's letters tell me chiefly about Craig and his doings and about old man Nelson, while from Craig I hear about Graeme and how he and Nelson are standing at his back and doing what they can to fill the gap that never can be filled. The three are much together, I can see, and I am glad for them all, but chiefly for Craig, whose face, grief stricken, but resolute and often gentle as a woman's, will not leave me or let me rest in peace.

The note of thanks he sent me was entirely characteristic. There were no heroics, much less pining or self pity. It was simple and manly, not ignoring the pain, but making much of the joy. And then they had their work to do. That note, so clear, so manly, so nobly sensible, stiffens my back yet at times.

In the spring came the startling news that Black Rock would soon be no more. The mines were to close down on April 1. The company, having allured the confiding public with enticing descriptions of marvelous drifts, veins, assays and prospects and having expended vast sums of the public's money in developing the mines till the assurance of their reliability was absolutely final, calmly shut down and vanished. With their vanishing vanishes Black Rock, not without loss and much deep cursing on the part of the men brought some hundreds of miles to aid the company in its extraordinary and wholly inexplicable game.

Personally it grieved me to think that my plan of returning to Black Rock could never be carried out. It was a great compensation, however, that the three men most representative to me of that life were soon to visit me actually in my own home and den. Graeme's letter said that in one month they might be expected to appear. At least he and Nelson were soon to come, and Craig would soon follow.

On receiving the great news I at once looked up young Nelson and his sister, and we proceeded to celebrate the joyful prospect with a specially good dinner. I found the greatest delight in picturing the joy and pride of the old man in his children, whom he had not seen for fifteen or sixteen years. The mother had died some five years before. Then the farm was sold, and the brother and sister came into the city, and any father might be proud of them. The son was a well made young fellow, handsome enough, thoughtful and solid looking. The girl reminded me of her father. The same resolution was seen in mouth and jaw, and the same passion slumbered in the dark gray eyes. She was not beautiful, but she carried herself well, and one would always look at her twice. It would be worth something to see the meeting between father and daughter.

But fate, the greatest artist of us all, takes little count of the careful drawing and the bright coloring of our fancy's pictures, but with rude hand deranges all and with one swift sweet paints out the bright and paints in the dark, and this trick he served me when one June night, after long and anxious waiting for some word from the west my door suddenly opened and Graeme walked in upon me like a specter, gray and voiceless. My shout of welcome was choked back by the look in his face, and I could only gaze at him and wait for his word. He gripped my hand, tried to speak, but failed to make words come.

"Sit down, old man," I said, pushing him into my chair, "and take your time."

He obeyed, looking up at me with burning, sleepless eyes. My heart was sore for his misery, and I said: "Don't mind, old chap. It can't be so awfully bad. You're here safe and sound at any rate." And so I went on to give him time, but he shuddered and looked round and groaned.

"Now, look here, Graeme, let's have it. When did you land here? Where is Nelson? Why didn't you bring him up?"

"He is at the station in his coffin," he answered slowly.

"In his coffin?" I echoed, my beautiful pictures all vanishing. "How was it?"

"Through my cursed folly," he groaned bitterly.

"What happened?" I asked.

But, ignoring my question, he said: "I must see his children. I have not slept for four nights. I hardly know what I am doing, but I can't rest till I see his children. I promised him. Get them for me."

"Tomorrow will do. Go to sleep now, and we shall arrange everything tomorrow," I urged.

"No," he said fiercely; "tonight, now!"

In half an hour they were listening, pale and grief stricken, to the story of their father's death.

Poor Graeme was relentless in his self condemnation as he told how, through his "cursed folly," old Nelson was killed. The three—Craig, Graeme and Nelson—had come as far as Victoria together. There they left Craig and came on to San Francisco. In an evil hour Graeme met a companion of other and evil days, and it was not long till the old fever came upon him.

In vain Nelson warned and pleaded. The reaction from the monotony and poverty of camp life to the excitement and luxury of the San Francisco gaming palaces swung Graeme quite off his feet, and all that Nelson could do was to follow from place to place and keep watch.

"And there he would sit," said Graeme in a hard, bitter voice, "waiting and watching often till the gray morning light, while my madness held me fast to the table. One night"—here he paused a moment, put his face in his hands and shuddered, but quickly he was master of himself again and went on in the same hard voice—"one night my partner and I were playing two men who had done us up before. I know they were cheating, but could not detect them. Game after game they won till I was furious at my stupidity in not being able to catch them. Happening to glance at Nelson in the corner, I caught a meaning look, and, looking again, he threw me a signal. I knew at once what the fraud was and next game charged the fellow with it. He gave me the lie. I struck his mouth, but before I could draw my gun his partner had me by the arms. What followed I hardly know. While I was struggling to get free I saw him reach for his weapon, but as he drew it Nelson sprang across the table and bore him down. When the row was over, three men lay on the floor. One was Nelson. He took the shot meant for me."

Again the story paused.

"And the man that shot him?"

I started at the intense fierceness in the voice and, looking upon the girl, saw her eyes blazing with a terrible light.

"He is dead," answered Graeme indifferently.

"You killed him?" she asked eagerly.

Graeme looked at her curiously and answered slowly:

"I did not mean to. He came at me. I struck him harder than I knew. He never moved."

She drew a sigh of satisfaction and waited.

"I got him to a private ward, had the best doctor in the city and sent for Craig to Victoria. For three days we thought he would live—he was keen to get home—but by the time Craig came we had given up hope. Oh, but I was thankful to see Craig come in, and the joy in the old man's eyes was beautiful to see! There was no pain at last and no fear. He would not allow me to reproach myself, saying over and over, 'You would have done the same for me,' as I would, fast enough, 'and it is better me than you. I am old and done. You will do much good yet for the boys.' And he kept looking at me till I could only promise to do my best.

"But I am glad I told him how much good he had done me during the last year, for he seemed to think that too good to be true, and when Craig told him how he had helped the boys in the camp and how Sandy and Baptiste and the Campbells would always be better men for his life among them the old man's face actually shone as if light were coming through, and with surprise and joy he kept on saying: 'Do you think so? Do you think so? Perhaps so, perhaps so.' At the last he talked of Christmas night at the camp. You were there, you remember. Craig had been holding a service, and something happened. I don't know what, but they both knew."

"I know," I said, and I saw again the picture of the old man under the pine, upon his knees in the snow, with his face turned up to the stars.

"Whatever it was, it was in his mind at the very last, and I can never forget his face as he turned it to Craig. One hears of such things. I had often, but had never put much faith in them. But joy, rapture, triumph—these are what were in his face as he said, his breath coming short:

"'You said—he wouldn't—fail me—you were right—not once—not once—he took to me—I'm glad he told me—thank God—for you—you showed—me—I'll see him—and—tell him'— And Craig, kneeling beside him so steady—I was behaving like a fool—smiled down through his streaming tears into the dim eyes so brightly till they could see no more. Thank him for that! He helped the old man through, and he helped me, too, that night, thank God!"

And Graeme's voice, hard till now, broke in a sob.

He had forgotten us and was back beside his passing friend, and all his self control could not keep back the flowing tears.

"It was his life for mine," he said huskily.

The brother and sister were quietly weeping, but spoke no word, though I knew Graeme was waiting for them.

I took up the word and told of what I had known of Nelson and his influence upon the men of Black Rock. They listened eagerly enough, but still without speaking. There seemed nothing to say till I suggested to Graeme that he must get some rest. Then the girl turned to him and, impulsively putting out her hand, said:

"Oh, it is all so sad, but how can we ever thank you?"

"Thank me?" gasped Graeme. "Can you forgive me? I brought him to his death."

"No, no! You must not say so!" she answered hurriedly. "You would have done the same for him."

"God knows I would," said Graeme earnestly, "and God bless you for your words!"

And I was thankful to see the tears start in his dry, burning eyes.

We carried him to the old home in the country, that he might lie by the side of the wife he had loved and wronged. A few friends met us at the wayside station and followed in sad procession along the country road that wound past farms and through woods and at last up to the ascent where the quaint old wooden church, black with the rains and snows of many years, stood among its silent graves. The little graveyard sloped gently toward the setting sun, and from it one could see, far on every side, the fields of grain and meadowland that wandered off over softly undulating hills to meet the maple woods at the horizon, dark, green and cool. Here and there white farmhouses, with great barns standing near, looked out from clustering orchards.

Up the grass grown walk and through the crowding mounds, over which waves uncut the long, tangling grass, we bear our friend and let him gently down into the kindly bosom of Mother Earth, dark, moist and warm. The sound of a distant cowbell mingles with the voice of the last prayer; the clods drop heavily with heart startling echo; the mound is heaped and shaped by kindly friends, sharing with one another the task; the long, rough sods are laid over and patted into place; the old minister takes farewell in a few words of gentle sympathy; the brother and sister, with lingering looks at the two graves side by side, the old and the new, step into the farmer's carriage and drive away; the sexton locks the gate and goes home, and we are left outside alone.

Then we went back and stood by Nelson's grave.

After a long silence Graeme spoke.

"Connor, he did not grudge his life to me, and I think," and here the words came slowly, "I understand now what that means, 'Who loved me and gave himself for me.'"

Then, taking off his hat, he said reverently:

"By God's help, Nelson's life shall not end, but shall go on. Yes, old man," looking down upon the grave, "I'm with you," and, lifting up his face to the calm sky, "God help me to be true!"

Then he turned and walked briskly away, as one might who had pressing business or as soldiers march from a comrade's grave to a merry tune, not that they have forgotten, but they have still to fight.

And this was the way old man Nelson came home.

GRAEME'S NEW BIRTH.

THERE was more left in that grave than old man Nelson's dead body. It seemed to me that Graeme left part at least of his old self there with his dead friend and comrade in the quiet country churchyard. I waited long for the old careless, reckless spirit to appear, but he was never the same again. The change was unmistakable, but hard to define. He seemed to have resolved his life into a definite purpose. He was hardly so comfortable a fellow to be with; he made me feel even more lazy and useless than was my wont, but I respected him more and liked him none the less. As a lion he was not a success. He would not roar. This was disappointing to me and to his friends and mine, who had been waiting his return with eager expectation of tales of thrilling and bloodthirsty adventure.

His first days were spent in making right, or as nearly right as he could, the break that drove him to the west. His old firm—and I have had more respect for the humanity of lawyers ever since—behaved really well. They proved the restoration of their confidence in his integrity and ability by offering

NOT WHAT SHE WENT FOR.

She went for a pint of the liquid curse.
That fair small child of my simple verse:
Her mother sent her, and little thought
What more those pence for her daughter bought.

She got her beer; but she got beside
A thousand evils that eventide;
For she saw the examples of sin and shame,
Results of the drink for which she came.

She heard the talk at that bar of death,
And breathed for a moment that tainted breath;
And the pure young mind got an unknown thought,
None knew the stain that she homeward brought.

She saw, she heard, and she tasted, too,
The foaming draught of that hellish brew;
And the first dire love for the drink that right
Was bought with the money by that fair mite.

Her mother took from her childish hand
The drink she fetched at her sad command;
But she could not take from those bright blue eyes
The scenes like clouds upon azure skies.

She took the change that the maiden brought;

SHE WENT FOR A PINT OF OF THE LIQUID CURSE.

But she could not take from her mind one thought,
Or word, or memory of that hour,
Where first she learned the infernal power.

Years passed away, and the fair young child
Was a drunken woman with passions wild.
Her mother was dying with broken heart,
That she in her drunkenness first had part.

For she saw too late that her pence had bought
A curse for her daughter she little thought;
But she might have thought, and she should have known
That the house of sin was the tempter's throne.

O mothers, fathers and Christians, say,
Shall the children still in this Gospel day
Be offered thus to the Moloch grim?
Nay! cry through your armies: "Away with him!"

And if his worship shall still go on,
Disgracing the world where the Christ was born,
Though the hosts of evil may rage and scoff,
Yet over the little ones cry: "Hands off!"

CLASSES CIDER WITH WHISKY

The Unprecedented Ruling by an Iowa Judge in a Recent Mulct Law Case.

Judge Remley has made an unprecedented decision in the case of Amanda Mefford against Peter Mineck, a well-known grocer of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Plaintiff brought suit under the mulct law, alleging that Mineck sold cider to her husband, who became intoxicated thereon, and on the hearing Remley enjoined Mineck and closed his store, although the evidence showed that the cider was sweet, being a brand sold by nearly every grocer in the city. Four witnesses for plaintiff were impeached, but Judge Remley ruled that all cider should be classed with whisky and beer. Mineck will appeal to the supreme court, and the grocers of the city will pay the expenses. They will also bring the case before the state grocers' convention at Dubuque. The effect of the decision is to make every grocery a saloon, and every wholesaler equally liable. Prosecution under the mulct law is attracting wide interest.

Cincinnati Teachers Can't Smoke.

The Cincinnati board of education has taken the initiative in a most important matter of tobacco and its use by teachers and pupils. The chairman of a joint committee, Dr. Culbertson, who is an eminent scientist, has made a report concluding with the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously: "No teacher or principal shall smoke, in any school building or upon any school grounds, during school hours. Infraction of this rule shall be deemed sufficient cause for dismissal." A great trunk line railroad has recently issued a private circular advising that superintendents caution engineers and signalmen not to use tobacco in any form during working hours.—Journal of Inebriety.

A Sad Case.

A sad case has just occurred in Chicago. After years of faithful service a fireman named Garrich drank so heavily some days ago that he could not be around when an alarm of fire sounded. For this offense he was dismissed from the force, and, failing to obtain work, he committed suicide. This seems to be hard, but what were his superior officers to do? A man who renders himself incapable of performing his duty is not fit to be a fireman, and cannot complain if it seems he is harshly treated.—Albany Journal

Injustice Done Britain.

So much has been said of the new British temperance act relative to the sale of intoxicating liquor to children that we hope the error that crept into a recent contributed article was at once corrected in the minds of our readers. The statement was made that the British law allows children under 14 years of age to drink in the public houses, but the new law which went into operation January 1 of this year distinctly declares that any one selling to children under 16 years of age shall be liable to a penalty. In the same article Miss Tinling is quoted as saying that there are 10,000 barmaids in London. She desires us to state that she is not certain how many there are, but thinks it is not more than 5,000.—Union Signal.

TOBACCO IN FRANCE.

Some Facts in Regard to the Business Which Proves Profitable to the Government.

An interesting though repellant description of the management of tobacco manufacturing by the French government has recently been sent forth by the United States consul at Lyons, France, where is located one of the largest of the 20 state tobacco factories.

It is probably not generally known that the tobacco business in France is a monopoly of the government—no individual having the right to make or sell tobacco without a permit.

That the government controls the manufacture of tobacco does not appear to lessen the quantity of the product or especially to improve the quality. The enormous amount of $79,800,000 annually is received. The expense to the state for new material, labor, freight, etc., is only $14,500,000, leaving $64,500,000 clear profit.

The government issues permits for retail tobacco and cigar stores; but retains control of the wholesale establishments in the large cities called tobacs de luxe, where the high-priced goods are sold. To have the right to keep a retail tobacco and cigar store in France seems to be as much sought after as a post office appointment in the United States. Every change in the French ministry means an increase in retail tobacco shops.

Another sadly interesting feature is the large connection which French women have with the manufacture and sale of the noxious weed.

Of the 17,000 employes nearly 16,000 are women and young girls; and the positions are greatly sought. None but women and young girls are engaged in making cigars, cigarettes and fillers, and in cutting wrappers. It is the women, too, who are chiefly dealers in the weed—generally soldiers' widows. It is not infrequent for the widow of an officer of high rank to petition for permission to keep a retail tobacco and cigar store, and place it in the care of an agent, while her connection with the business remains unknown.

The process of manufacture is too repulsive to describe. The juice expressed brings 16 cents per quart. One quart contains from 40 to 60 grains of nicotine. It is sold to veterinary surgeons, who use it upon animals afflicted with skin diseases. Large quantities of it are exported to Buenos Ayres for the same purpose. Far better if the whole nicotinous product could be exported in similar fashion, by government order, rather than sold under government management to act upon the nerves and vital centers of its consumers, to the undermining of health, wealth and happiness.—Union Signal.

DEWEY USED NO LIQUOR.

Writes to Ohio Lady and Says He Fought Battle of Manila Bay on Coffee Alone.

Boys in a Sunday school class at the First Presbyterian church at Canton, O., taught by Mrs. Carrie Herspool did not like some of the doctrine in a temperance lesson because, they said, Dewey and his men at Manila had taken liquor while in the fight. Mrs. Herspool wrote Admiral Dewey and received a reply which says:

Dear Madam—I am very glad to have an opportunity of correcting the impression which you say prevails among your Sunday school scholars that the men on my fleet were given liquor every 20 minutes during the battle of Manila bay.

As a matter of fact, every participant, from myself down, fought the battle of Manila bay on coffee alone. The United States laws forbid the taking of liquor aboard ship except for medicinal uses and we had no liquor that we could have given the men even had it been desired to do so. Very truly yours, George Dewey.

ITEMS.

Twenty Rochester (N. Y.) druggists have been fined $200 each for selling liquors contrary to law.

Rev. C. F. Williams, for nine years chaplain of the Iowa state penitentiary, has entered the field as a lecturer for the State Temperance union of Kansas.

Long Beach, Cal., for the third time, with the combined liquor traffic against her, has given an overwhelming endorsement to the material, social and moral advantages of prohibition. Long Beach is a beautiful, clean city; no slums, squalor or filth.

The supreme court of Kansas, in addition to upholding the "search and seizure" feature of the Hurrel law, has passed on the "drummer" section of the prohibitory law, declaring it in conflict with the interstate commerce clause of the federal law. The only remedy is with congress, and it is probable that an effort will be made to have the "original package" legislation extended to cover the drummer difficulty.

HAPPY TIME IN OLD TOWN.

"We felt very happy," writes R. N. Bevill, Old Town, Va., "when Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured our daughter of a bad case of scald head." It delights all who use it for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Boils, Ulcers, Eruptions. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

For the Children.

A LITTLE GIRL'S TEAM OF GREYHOUNDS

Orpha Kurtz, the eleven-year-old daughter of Jacob Kurtz, who lives at York, Pa., is the proud owner of a novel team. Deuce and Dawn are fleet footed greyhounds that were broken to harness three years ago. They pace or trot at the will of the little driver, convey her to and from school and take her on shopping tours.

A ROUGH DIAMOND.

The Big Hearted Little Bootblack Who Did the Job For Jimmy.

A New York merchant called to a little bootblack to give him a shine. The little fellow came rather slowly for one of his guild and planted his box down under the merchant's foot. Before he could get his brushes out another large boy ran up and, calmly pushing the little one aside, said:

"Here, you go sit down, Jimmy."

The merchant at once became indignant at what he took to be a piece of outrageous bullying and sharply told the newcomer to clear out.

"Oh, dat's all right, boss," was the reply. "I'm only going to do it for him. You see, he's been sick in the hospital for more than a month and can't do much work yet, so us boys all turn in and give him a lift when we can."

"Is that so, Jimmy?" asked the merchant, turning to the smaller boy.

"Yes, sir," wearily answered the boy, and as he looked up the pallid, pinched face could be discerned even through the grime that covered it. "He'll do it for me if you'll let him."

"Certainly. Go ahead." And as the bootblack plied the brush the merchant plied him with questions. "You say that all the boys help him in this way?"

"Yes, sir. When they ain't got no job themselves and Jimmy gets one they turns in and helps him."

"What percentage do you charge him on each job?"

"Hey?" queried the boy. "Don't know what you mean."

"I mean what part of the money do you give Jimmy, and how much do you keep?"

"Bet your life I don't keep none; I ain't such a sneak."

"You give it all to him?"

"Yes, I do. All the boys give up what they get on his job. I'd like to catch any feller sneaking it on a sick boy."

The shine being completed, the merchant handed the urchin a quarter, saying:

"I guess you're a pretty good fellow, so you keep a dime, and give the rest to Jimmy."

"Can't do it, sir. It's his customer. Here you be, Jim."

He threw him the coin and was off like a shot after a customer for himself—a veritable rough diamond. There are many such lads, with warm and generous hearts under their ragged coats.—Presbyterian.

A Novel Game.

Here's a game that is enjoyed by every one who plays it: Make two cornucopias of fairly stiff paper, leaving the small ends large enough to pass pieces of twine through. Take two pieces of string and slip each piece through one cornucopia, stretching them two feet apart as tight as you can across the room, fastening the ends to either wall.

The strings should be high enough from the ground to enable you to blow into the cornucopia. The object of the game is for two people to stand at the end of the strings and blow into the large openings of the cornucopias and see which can get one across the room first.

It takes a person with a good pair of lungs to send one the length of the string in one blow.

Too Sleepy to Love.

Marion's big brother was going to get home early that morning from a long absence, and all the family got up to welcome him. Marion was waked up two hours before the usual time and was very sleepy even after her bath and breakfast. When her brother came, she did her best, but could not conceal the yawns.

"Why, Marion," said her mother, "you are only half awake!"

"I know it," she answered. "If I had been whole awake, I wouldn't have got up."

"Then you don't love me," her brother said.

"Yes I do," she retorted. "But I can love you better when I'm not sleepy."

How Could He Forget!

The little girl ran flying down the front steps and called out with an agonizing cry:

"Papa! Papa!"

Papa had started down town. He stopped and waited.

"What is it, Bessie?"

"I want to kiss you goodby."

"Well, dear, why don't you kiss me?"

"I will," said the little girl, with trembling lip and quivering chin, "as soon as I can make the pucker!"—Exchange.

THE "SNUGGLETY BUG."

No doubt you have heard of a place that is "snug,"
And perhaps you've been told of the "bug in the rug,"
And if that is so
You'll all like to know
That this tale is about the warm "snugglety bug."

The "snugglety bug" is a cozy old soul,
But he hides himself often down deep in a hole,
Where he's doubtless a-snooze
In a pair of old shoes,
For it must be confessed that his habits are droll.

The "snugglety bug" likes the warmth of the sun
Or the firelight cheerful when daylight is done.
He dislikes bare walls,
And he finds splendor halls
On his snug sense of comfort and notion of fun.

There's a name that this funny bug goes by, my dear,
And he lives in all homes where there's comfort and cheer.
If he lives near with you,
You can prove my words true,
For his nickname is "Content." He's a guest without peer.

Stuart Robson as a Boy.

Stuart Robson, the actor, was a page in the United States house of representatives when a boy. At that time Stephen A. Douglas and John C. Calhoun were in the house, and United States Senator Gorman of Maryland was then a page in the senate. Robson tells a story about Mr. Gorman as follows:

"Mr. Gorman was a playmate of mine in Baltimore, I remember him as a quiet, reserved sort of chap. I remember, too, he took up a collection among the boys for an old apple woman who had a stand in the lower rotunda of the capitol. Some accident had befallen her. A fellow page wouldn't give anything. Gorman had words with him and afterward licked him well. Twenty years thereafter I visited the Maryland penitentiary, and there I saw the boy who had got the drubbing serving out a life sentence for murder, and Gorman was then a United States senator."

Robert Toombs of Georgia got Robson his pageship, though Henry Clay and Jefferson helped him out a little. He preserves a letter written him by Jefferson Davis in answer to one that he wrote Davis thanking him for his efforts. It reads:

My Dear Boy—Toombs did it, but I am glad you appreciate a supposed favor. Ingratitude is a vice which the villain is incapable of attributing to himself.

Filling a Closed Glass.

We have two plain glasses of even size. Their rims, if put on top of one another, apparently close hermetically. When we pour any fluid, preferably water, slowly over the top of the two glasses (as shown in figure) we expect to see the water run over the sides of both glasses to the table. However, this will not be the case. The water expands on the top of the upper glass, drips down its sides and collects in the inside of the lower glass. Both glasses must be rubbed dry before the performance.

THE WAY IT IS DONE.

A Charming Hostess.

Dame Nature's a generous hostess,
Her board is spread with the best,
And none she sends away empty
Who is even one day her guest.

Her rooms you'll find in the country,
Her minstrels are birds and brooks,
Earth and sky are her pictures,
And all over her house are books.

With sweet, enrapturing music
She welcomes each newcomer,
We all have an invitation.
Let's visit her this summer.

ZEB WHITE AND MULE

HE BUYS AN "ORNERY CRITTER" AND ASSIGNS HIM TO FIGHT A BEAR.

The Animal Wants Fair Play—Takes an Unwitting Advantage of His New Shoes to Kick Brain to Death and Perishes Himself.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

"ONE day as I was sittin' on my doahstep," began the old possum hunter when asked for a story, "a stranger come along the road leadin' a mewl. It was a No'th Carolenny mewl, and he looked like a likely beast. I was a-wonderin' why the man was leadin' the mewl instead of ridin' him when he stopped and said:

"'I'm on my way to the Tennessee river to jump in and perish, and I'll sell you this mewl powerful cheap if you want him.'

"'What do you want to perish for?' I said.

"'Bekase I'm alone in the world and too good for it. I can't stand the wickedness around me, and I would go hence and hev a harp and golden wings. This mewl is the last thing I've got to git rid of, and if you fancy him he's yo'rs for $30.'

"I was in want of a mewl jest then," said Zeb, "and after lookin' the critter over I put down the money. When the trade had been made, the stranger wiped a tear from his eye, embraced the mewl in a lovin' way and then said to me:

"THEM TWO CRITTERS WAS ENJOYIN' THEMSELVES."

"'I'd take him with me to the other shore, but mewls can't go that. He'll grieve after me, but if you treat him well he'll git over it in time. Goodby, Zeb White, and if it be so that angels kin come flyin' around on airth once in awhile I'll drap in and see how the critter gits along.'

"It didn't take me long," said Zeb, "to disk'iver that that mewl was ornery. All mewls are jizen mean, but this one was a champion. If I tried to put a saddle on him, he'd lay down in his tracks, and if I hitched him to a cart nothin' on airth could make him pull a pound. He'd bite, and he'd kick, and he went around lookin' for a fuss. In a week I found he was no airthly good. I clubbed him till I was tired, but I couldn't pound no sense into him. One day I got so mad that I was gwine to shoot him, but the old woman mixed in and said:

"'I was jest a-thinkin', Zeb. Do you remember that cantankerous b'ar that was around yere last fall?'

"'Of co'se.'

"'He'll likely come back ag'in this fall. Better leave him to the mewl if he comes.'

"'As to that b'ar,' explained the old man, 'he was the most cantankerous varmint I ever met up with. He'd come sneakin' around at night and chaw up the sheets spread on the grass, and sometimes he'd appear by day and skeer the old woman half to death. I set a trap for him, and he carried it off. I laid out two nights on the watch, but he come like a shedder and almost killed my dawg. He was up to all kinds of tricks, and he bothered me fur three months befo' he disappeared. It was likely he would come back ag'in, and if he did thar would be fun between an ornery mewl and a cantankerous b'ar. I give up tryin' to do anything with the mewl, but he growed meaner and meaner all the time, and he wasn't happy unless he was kickin' his heels ag'in the cabin doahs. It got so the old woman dasn't stir outdoahs, and I had to carry a club to keep him off. I'd had him six weeks and had wanted to shoot him every day when one night that b'ar showed up. He come down off the mountain feelin' mo' cantankerous than ever, and that ornery mewl was waitin' fur somethin' to come along and begin a row. They got at it in no time. Me and the old woman got up and looked out, and them two critters was thoroughly enjoyin' themselves. They was kickin', bitin,' clawin,' growlin' and squealin', and it was better than a circus to watch 'em. They fit fur an hour, and then they got tuckered out, and the b'ar went back to his cave. It was the same thing over the next night and every night for a week or mo'. A b'ar ought to lick a mewl easy 'nuff, specially when he's a cantankerous b'ar, but in this case he'd got hold of a mewl so mean and obstinate that he wouldn't hev turned tail for all the b'ars in Tennessee. He was as spry as a cat, and the way he bit and kicked warmed up my heart. He got a good many scratches in them conflicts, but he wouldn't run away nor give in. One night after we had seen him roll that b'ar over a dozen times without hurtin' him the old woman said to me:

"'Zeb, it ain't exactly a fair fout. The mewl hain't got no shoes on, and his kicks don't hurt. Better give him a decent show.'

"It struck me that way, and the next day I taken the critter up to the blacksmith shop at the Cove and has sharp shoes put on his hind feet. He seemed to know what they was for, and he didn't like it 'tall. He was ugly all the way home, and when night come he stood in the yard with his head down and 'peared to be thinkin'. The b'ar come down about 8 o'clock. Mo'be he was madder than usual, for he pitched right in at once. Me and the old woman both noticed that he didn't use his heels 'tall, but jest bit and jerked, and we wondered at it. However, after fightin' about half an hour the b'ar cornered him, and he had to turn and let fly, and he killed that varmint as dead as a doahnail with one kick. The sharp calks of one of the shoes pierced the b'ar's skull, and over he went and never got up ag'in. I was mighty tickled over it and went out to praise the mewl. He was standin' clus to the b'ar, and he never moved a foot for five minits; jest stood and looked at me through the darkness in a sort of accusin' way and then fetched a gasp and fell down dead.

"'He's bin wounded in his vitals,' said the old woman as she come out with a lantern.

"But he hadn't. He had some scratches and a bite or two, but nothin' to worry about. No, sah. What ailed that mule was madness and contrariness. He'd set out to lick that b'ar without any hind shoes on and reckonin' to fight fair and her sunthin to brag about, and he was mad and contrary 'bout my mixin' in. When he found he'd killed the b'ar, he swelled up till his heart busted and he fell over dead, and I jest believe he was glad to go. Thar was nothin' mo' left on airth for him to fight, and why should he tarry longer? As to the b'ar, I reckon it was the same with him. Leastwise, he laid thar with a smile on his face and was cantankerous to the end."

M. QUAD.

His Store Increased.

"In my travels I had got stuck with five bogus quarters," said the drummer, "and, being a conscientious man, I gave them to my wife when I got home to do some shopping with. She never suspected anything wrong, and of course it wasn't my business to give her a pointer, and all went merry with me until she came home to dinner. Then she said:

"'George, those quarters you gave me were so new and bright that I hated to part with 'em.'

"'But you did let 'em go?' I asked.

"'No. I got a five dollar bill changed instead, and the cashier gave me four more darling quarters.'

"So he did," sighed the drummer, "and that made nine bogus ones on hand to work off."

Art and Ink.

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnus, "but not as downcast as I am when I am applying myself to art and not getting the money."—Washington Star.

Spring Fever.

In balmy spring,
When everything
In nature's line is bustling,
The human frame
Gets weak and lame
And has no use for hustling.

There's lack of zeal,
For men then feel
Desire for toil abating;
Instead of work
They'd sooner shirk,
And oft they're loitering.

They feel no pain,
But just complain
Of weakness that's extending
All up and down,
From toes to crown,
And with all muscles blending.

They yearn for rest
From labor's test,
And often they are wishing
For line and hook
And pole and brook
And week or so of fishing.

They also think
They wouldn't shrink
Where baseball fans are rooting;
That cured they'd be
If they could see
The games and join in rooting.

A circus bill
Is sure to fill
Their cup to overflowing;
They want to quit
Their jobs and flit
And with the show be going.

Queer symptoms these
And queer disease
That energies thus shatter,
But don't be scared
If thus you've fared;
Spring fever's what's the matter.

'Tis beast of ills
And never kills,
Though often so dejecting;
Just work away
Day after day,
And cure you'll be effecting.

NESBITT'S CHURCH DIVIDED

HE INVITED HIS CO-PASTOR TO QUIT THE CULT.

Former French Teacher Took Exception to Mrs. Griswold's Assertion of a Higher Spirituality.

H. Hill Nesbitt, who taught French on the mass-meeting plan and sold stock in a gold mining company in this city, is now the sole pastor of the Church of the New Commandment in Kansas City, says the Indianapolis Journal.

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Griswold helped him to organize the church, but lately she was asked to leave. The members resented what they said was her assertion of a higher spirituality. She said she felt she could lift the church a bit higher than Mr. Nesbitt, because he was engaged in the material things of life. Mr. Nesbitt denied that he was so engrossed. Mrs. Griswold conceded to the church that all prayers are answered, whether or not they reflect credit on those who pray. Following is an extract from one of Nesbitt's sermons:

"I haven't an enemy in the world so far as I am concerned. I have probably as many enemies who are seeking to injure me as any man in town, but I do not harbor resentment against a single human being in the world. In our church we shall be natural. If you want to whisper during the offertory, all right. If I want to take off my coat and be comfortable why should I not? Will that affect the truth? We accept the teachings of men who base them on the Bible, but won't accept the Bible. We spend too much time being Baptists and Methodists to be Christians. In this church we shall base our lives on the life that Christ lived. What difference does it make whether one man wrote one book and another another; whether this book was written 150 years after the events it described or not; whether sprinkling or ducking is the correct method of baptism? We shall seek after the truth here and nothing but the truth. We shall leave creed and dogma behind us and every creed will be welcome, everybody will be welcome."

WARNING.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Pathfinders lodge, No. 19, initiated a class of candidates last evening and arranged to have a lawn social at the home of C. B. Schmick next Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected: Past president, W. H. Ward; president, Harry F. France; vice president, H. H. Brake; secretary, H. S. Oates; chaplain, George A. Harter; sergeant-at-arms, D. H. Barkley; guide, Mrs. Eva Miller; inner guard, John Porter; outer guard, T. J. Traxler; benevolence, Miss Nettie Frazure; integrity, Miss Grace Gates; loyalty, Miss Jennie Hively; captain of the team, J. W. Snyder.

Charles and Ernest Kroeger have arrived from Arkansas to attend the funeral of their mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Kroeger.

Never Know When

The sudden twitches of pain, the twinges, the aches of kidney ills will strike you. If your kidneys are sick kidney backache in its many forms may overtake you at your work or at your home, but it's sure to come, and calls for prompt action.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Will not only relieve, but cure you, because they reach the cause, cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes and all disorders of the kidneys and bladder. Plenty of Fort Wayne indorsements to prove this claim. Here's another case:

Mr. A. Elbett, of 62 Summit street, who conducts a repair shop at the above address, says: "I had kidney complaint for several years and on one occasion was laid up for eight weeks. My doctor thought I had Bright's disease, but none of the medicine I took did me much good. I had about lost all hope of ever getting well when I happened to read about Doan's Kidney Pills, and though I did not have much faith in their doing me good, yet I was willing to give anything a trial that had helped others, so I went to Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store and got a box. As soon as I began using them the pains in my back started to grow less, the kidney secretions began to clear and take on a natural color, instead of being brickish red. By the time I had taken three-fourths of the box I was cured."
